What About Native Borns?
Brewery Stock—
Gambling Shares
Fraud Attracts Attention

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Copyright, 1927.

CHICAGO is arranging to deport "alien gangsters and bootleggers" that break the law—individuals not naturalized, whose wickedness shocks Chicago. That's a good idea, but something ought to be done about the native-born American citizens, without whose co-operation the "alien thugs" could not make their profits.

Wherever you find an "alien thug" making money through crime and through bootlegging, you will also find a few "good Americans" sharing his profits and helping in his work.

C. V. MILLER, of Toronto, left brewery stock to seven Methodist ministers and Ontario Jockey Club shares to opponents of race track gambling.

At the end of nine years, the proceeds of his estate go to the parents of the largest family born in the province during that time.

METHODIST ministers, to get the $75,000 brewery stock, must draw the dividends and vote on the company's management "to see whether their avarice for money was greater than their principles."

The ministers, of course, will do what is necessary to collect the money, and use it for prohibition propaganda, thus thwarting Satan.

LEAVING your money to the biggest family is dull. The mouse would beat any human being, the shad would beat a mouse, and the female oyster, with her millions of youngsters each year would make the shad look like birth control. Leaving money to poor parents that take the best care of their children might be a good idea. But money left for benevolent purposes — excepting science and education—is usually wasted. The work you do while you live counts, there's no knowing what your money may do after you.

AN IRISH girl, living in a queer old castle, on the coast of Ireland, wanted to write. But nobody would print what she wrote; the publishers sent everything back.

Then she wrote "The Diary of an Eighteenth Century Lady of Fashion," and made a success of it, although she wasn't an 18-year-old lady, and didn't know much about fashions. The book was published eagerly. It was taken by genuine solemn reviewers, and now that the rather innocent fraud is revealed, the young woman, probably will have respectful attention from the book publishers.

THUS it goes, if by fraud you prove ability, you attract attention and are permitted to show what you can do on your own account. Even as great a man as Michael Angelo, greatest that ever lived in the world of art, turned to innocent fraud to establish his power. He was young, full of genius. He carved out of marble beautiful imitations of old Greek works, buried the imitations in the ground that they might acquire the appearance of age. Then he sent a sample to Rome,

PIRATE LEADER AGAIN SIGNS

Donie Bush today signed a contract to manage the Pirates again next year. Announcement of his retention was made at a conference of local baseball writers with Bush and Owner Barney Dreyfuss at Pirate headquarters at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The terms were not revealed.

In making the announcement, Dreyfuss paid a high compliment to the ability of his pilot, and Bush, on his own behalf, pledged himself to strain every effort to win the pennant this season and asked the co-operation of the scribes and fans.

Bush also touched on the Cuyler case. He said he wished to have his position with regard to his recent controversy with Cuyler made clear. He declared he thought he was right in the action he took and wanted the players, including Cuyler, to feel he was right, and added that, contrary to any opinions to the contrary, he held nothing but the highest regard for Cuyler personally and as a player and nothing would give him greater pleasure than to be able to use Ki-Ki regularly in the lineup.

"However," Bush said, "it is a fact that Cuyler has not been playing up to the caliber of Barnhart and the Waner brothers and therefore it has been necessary to keep him out of the game. Any time I feel he will be of assistance in helping us to win I will immediately rush him back into the lineup. If my own brother were playing for me and did not come through as he should, I would jerk him out of the game as fast as I did Cuyler. There is nothing personal about the manner in which I have manipulated the use of Cuyler."

Bush explained why he started Adam Comorosky, the recruit who has been recalled from Wichita of the Western League, in middle field today in place of Lloyd Waner, who is injured, after having used Cuyler there throughout the afternoon game yesterday.

"Cuyler is not hitting up to the

TRIP BARES ALLEGED LOOT

A suitcase full of stocks, bonds and other collateral, said to total $50,000, which detectives believe is the loot in a series of New York robberies, was seized by detectives this afternoon following the arrest of Carl A. Roth, 35, Baltimore, said to be a bond broker. The securities were seized in the check room of the Fort Pitt Hotel after Roth had been arrested on a telegraphic warrant while making hasty preparations to leave the hotel.

Roth was bound for Europe, detectives who arrested him for a Baltimore forgery say. Following an examination of the seized securities, detectives declare they have positively identified three stock certificates of Washington Square, South New York, valued at $2,100, as stolen property. The certificates were identified through the names of James Melvin Lee, A. F. Wilson and Richard B. Franklin, to whom they had been made out.

New York authorities are being communicated with in an endeavor to check up on all of the stocks and bonds held by Roth, which range from European industrial and mu-

Air Giant to Visit State

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles is to fly over the City of Harrisburg and the Harrisburg Fair Grounds late this afternoon, it was announced in a telephone message received here today from Commander Charles Rosendahl, at Lakehurst, N. J., where the big airship is moored.

SLAYER OF 8 SHOT FLEEING

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—With the death today of Ferdinand Goodwinski, 53, the death toll in the shooting here Saturday night, when Tony De Capua killed seven members of his family, rose to eight.

Goodwinski, a neighbor, was shot through the abdomen by De Capua when he ran into the latter's home on hearing the shots.

Three other persons, including a policeman, also shot by De Capua, are in hospitals.

De Capua tried to escape from a hospital today, making a break for an open window, but a police guard brought him down with a bullet in the leg. He was shot twice in an exchange of shots with police Saturday night.

Early today Peter Austerick, 25, shot and killed his wife, Catherine, at their home not far from the De Capua home. When police arrived Austerick opened fire on them and was killed by a fusillade from the police squad.

3 Hurt In $10,000 Fire

Two firemen were overcome and another suffered injuries last midnight while fighting a fire in the W. T. Grant variety store, 510 Market street, which caused damage estimated at $10,000. Firemen remained on the scene for several hours fearing a new outbreak of flames.

KIKI CUYLER

START HOP TO ROME

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Sept. 6.—Old Glory raced along this broad white beach this afternoon, swept gracefully into the air on a northwest breeze, and started on its nonstop flight to Rome.

The giant Fokker's golden wings and silvery body sparkled brilliantly in the sunshine of a wonderful September afternoon as the William Randolph Hearst plane climbed skyward out over the blue waters of the Atlantic.

Old Glory went down the beach at 12:23 p. m. (1:23 Pittsburgh daylight time), took off at 12:26 and a few minutes later was a mere speck in the clouds in the distant horizon.

Those aboard the ship were Pilots Lloyd Bertaud and James Dewitt Hill and Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the New York Daily Mirror.

Just before the start Hill and Bertaud flipped a coin and Hill won the toss and took the controls for the long hop to Rome.

Old Glory will wing her way down the Maine coast, over the Bay of Fundy, by Cape Sable, then overseas to Bordeaux, down to the Alps and over these mountains to the Eternal City.

DEFER LONDON-LONDON HOP

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The hop-off of the London to London plane Sir John Carling was postponed today until tomorrow morning. The fliers, Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Medcalf decided to devote today to overhauling their plane, which arrived here yesterday from Caribou, Me.

KLAN ROCKET HURTS GIRL

YORK, Pa., Sept. 6.—Struck by an aerial rocket set off as part of the state Ku Klux Klan ceremonial here last night, Viola Smith, 17, of York, was in a critical condition in West Side Sanitarium here today. She suffered concussion of the brain when struck by the rocket, which exploded, burning two youthful companions, a boy and a girl.

WAYNE B. WHEELER'S DEATH LEAVES SUCCESSOR PROBLEM

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 6.—The ranks of reformers and a great section of the world at large mourned today the death of Wayne B. Wheeler, a figure unique in the nation, credited with being the moving force behind the passage of the prohibition amendment.

Mr. Wheeler, general counsel and so-called generalissimo of the Anti-Saloon League, died at a sanitarium here late yesterday of kidney trouble and heart disease. His funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at Columbus, O.

The death of the Anti-Saloon League's chief counsel deprives the dry forces of their outstanding legal and legislative leader. Men of importance in the dry organization admitted the difficulty in replacing him, and it was said that his official duties as legislative superintendent and general counsel may be divided between two men. Three names have been advanced for the post of legislative superintendent.

SCHOOLGIRL SWALLOWS POISON

Fearing a reprimand because she had refused to resume her studies at the David B. Oliver High School, where she is a member of the senior class, Dolores Sarver, 18, of 519 Jackson street, swallowed poison at her home this morning.

The girl was found by her brother, C. J. Sarver, who took her to the Presbyterian Hospital. Her condition is not serious, it was said at the hospital.

Members of the Sarver family said that the girl had refused to return to school, which opened this morning, preferring to work. Yesterday she visited the home of a brother outside the city. She returned at 10 o'clock this morning, unobserved by members of the family, and went to the bathroom, where she took the poison. A charge of disorderly conduct was lodged against her at the North Side Police Station.

Friend and Foe Here Talk of Wheeler

Pittsburghers who knew Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, and who aided or opposed him in the prohibition movement, today spoke of his life and death as follows:

REV. DR. CHARLES R. ZAHNISER, secretary of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ: "The death of Wayne B. Wheeler is a great loss to the cause to which he was passionately devoted. He was a man of unquestioned integrity, energy and skill. Mr. Wheeler and the late Dr. Baker were the outstanding figures in the advancement of the movement that secured national prohibition for the United States."

MISS HELEN GRIMES, member of Legislature, who has been active in efforts to repeal the Volstead act: "I was very sorry to hear of the death of Mr. Wheeler. I think he was one of those useful men who worked himself to death."

REV. DR. W. I. WISHART, pastor of Eighth United Presbyterian Church: "The death of Mr. Wheeler is a very serious loss to the Anti-Saloon League and the general program of law enforcement, particularly that portion dealing with the prohibition law. His death will be felt very greatly in the council of the prohibition forces. It is a real loss to the temperance cause."

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY, member of the Association Opposed to the Prohibition Amendment: "Wayne B. Wheeler, with his strong personality and militant leadership, was more feared by politicians in Washington than was the Anti-Saloon League. Those working for the cause of prohibition will not be able to replace him. They will find no one who so combines all of the qualities which were necessary to his position."

SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH, president of Carnegie Institute, who has raised opposition to prohibition as it exists: "Every good citizen will regret to hear of the death of such an honest and fearless public servant."

WILLIAM L. KING, executive secretary of the Citizens' League—"He was the outstanding man of the Anti-Saloon League, and his place will be hard to fill. He was a fighter, a brilliant man and a practical lawyer. That combination accounted for his great power."

THE REV. DR. JAMES S. MARTIN, of Beaver Falls, president of the National Reform Association: In the death of Wayne B. Wheeler the temperance forces of the country have lost an able and most fearless advocate of their cause and the country at large a genuine patriot, whose influence for good was appreciated by the great majority of the American people. His enemies feared him, his compatriots greatly admired and will greatly miss him. However, they will see that the work he has so well begun will be brought to a successful conclusion.

AIM PROBE AT 'SECRET PAYROLL'

An effort by Controller C. C. McGovern to bare facts concerning an alleged "secret payroll" of the county commissioners was forecast today with the announcement that four witnesses had been ordered subpenaed for resumption of the hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow before the controller, who is inquiring into the county's fiscal affairs.

Those to be summoned are R. S. Euler, vice president of the Union Trust Company; William H. Ziefel, chief clerk to the county commissioners; James Routley, assistant chief clerk, and Alexander B. Lindsay, bookkeeper in the county treasurer's office.

The subpenas were made out by Controller McGovern this morning and turned over to the sheriff's office to be served.

The controller has charged that the commissioners have kept a payroll chiefly for those assisting at elections and that the names of the persons compensated have not come to light.

THREE HURT AT FIRE

Harry Pfeiffer of Company No. 2 were overcome by smoke and taken to Mercy Hospital. Hoseman Joseph Schultz of Company No. 19 was cut on the face and hands by falling glass.

The alarm was sounded by a pedestrian. The fire, believed to have started in the engine room of the Grant store, had gained rapid headway through the building. A building at 211 Fifth avenue, occupied by the New York Waist House, which adjoins the Grant store, was damaged by smoke.

The second floor of the Grant Company's place is occupied by the Haines Optical Company and the third and fourth floors by the Colonnade Lunch. Both establishments were damaged by smoke.

A large crowd was attracted by the blaze, and police lines were established. Traffic on Market street and lower Fifth avenue was blocked for two hours.

Blankets were used to subdue a fire in the rear of the kitchen of the Hotel Munson, 525 Second avenue, late yesterday. The blaze started in rubbish and caused damage of $150.

Firemen were summoned to Middletown road and Straka street last night to extinguish a fire in an automobile owned by Tony Punri, 20, of Northfield avenue. The damage was estimated at $150.

Injury by Drunkard to Boy Wheeler Guided Anti-Rum Fight

BATTLE CREEK, MICH., Sept. 6.—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, who died here yesterday, was born on November 10, 1869, on a small farm in Brookfield, Ohio. It was during his boyhood on this farm, Mr. Wheeler told reporters a short time before his death, that he had first inculcated in his mind an aversion to liquor. The occasion was when a drunken farmhand rammed a pitchfork in young Wheeler's leg. He said the astounding inefficiency and carelessness of the farmhand, a good hay-tosser when sober, brought a message to him to be felt through the length and breadth of the world.

BRIDGE BACKERS TO AIR VIEWS

Proponents of the plan to erect a bridge across the Monongahela River at Ferry street to connect with proposed tunnels to the South Hills and Chartiers valley, as well as backers of the proposed West End-North Side bridge, are planning to attend the public meeting arranged for tomorrow by the South Hills and Chartiers Valley Tunnels and Ferry Street Bridge Association and lively discussion is probable.

Friends of the Ferry street bridge project lay chief emphasis on the advantage a bridge at this point, connecting with tunnels to Sawmill Run boulevard, would be to the outlying boroughs and townships.

Those urging the West End-North Side bridge put forward the argument that their proposal of a span to connect with proposed river boulevards would relieve the downtown traffic situation as well as open up new residential sections in the West End.

MRS. CORSON DARES CHANNEL AGAIN

STARTS FROM ENGLAND

Mrs. Mille Gade Corson, first mother to swim the English Channel, set out to conquer it again this morning. This time she is swimming from the English to the French shore. The daring American woman is shown above with her two children. She was still in the water late this afternoon.

By International News Service.

DOVER, Eng., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Mille Gade Corson of New York, who set out from South Foreland at 8:50 o'clock this morning to swim the English Channel for the second time, was still in the water late this afternoon.

The accompanying motorboat, Ocean King, was sighted shortly after 3 o'clock making in the direction of the South Goodwin lightship, and it was presumed that Mrs. Corson was still swimming.

Mrs. Corson, who won the title of "the first mother to swim the channel," swam the first time from the French to the English coast.

Runs From Accident, Hits Car

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Careening along the state highway at Meadowlands last midnight an automobile, alleged to have been in charge of a drunken driver returning from a country club, crushed a boy riding a bicycle and a hundred yards farther on collided with another car and knocked it into the ditch.

Kurtz Stopperich, 14, of Meadowlands, who was riding his wheel along the edge of the road, suffered a fracture of the skull and internal injuries and is in a critical condition at the Washington Hospital. In sight of the first accident a car driven by F. S. Tarbert of Washington was knocked from the road and wrecked, but the occupants escaped serious injury. State police arrested William George of Canonsburg on the charge of violating the automobile laws in driving a car while intoxicated.

TRIP BRINGS ARREST

Roth tripped as he was leaving his room in the hotel, and it was while he was gathering up his luggage that detectives rushed through the hall and arrested him. Securities valued at $5,000 were found on his person.

According to information received from Baltimore, Roth forged the name of Peter Whitney, of Baltimore, to a check for $1,600.

"No need for alarm. Getting along nicely," was the text of a copy of a telegram Roth recently had filed to New York. The copy of the telegram, and correspondence indicating he was planning an immediate trip to Europe, was among papers seized when he was arrested. He was lodged in Central Station after refusing to explain his business or how he had come into possession of the securities.

committee; A. J. Davis, superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League; E. H. Cherrington, head of the World League Against Alcoholism and director of the Anti-Saloon League's publicity program; Bishop and the Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie.

The chief counselship, some friends James Cannon, Jr., of Richmond, Va., of the league believe, may go to Edward B. Dunford, who was Wheeler's assistant in the legal department.

It is understood that the posts will not be filled until the December meeting of the league's directorate.

PLANS FOR FUNERAL

Mr. Wheeler's body was to be removed late today to Columbus, O., by his son, Robert Wayne Wheeler, and a friend, Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League.

The 45 state superintendents of the National Anti-Saloon League will act as honorary pall-bearers at the funeral.

Services will be conducted from Central Methodist Episcopal Church, in Columbus, from which Mr. Wheeler's wife was buried two weeks ago after her tragic death in the explosion of an oil stove at their summer home.

Rev. Albert Schatzman, pastor of the church, will conduct the funeral, and national officers of the league, including Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent; Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general manager of publication, and Dr. Howard H. Russell, founder of the league, will assist in the funeral services.

It was understood that Mr. Wheeler would be laid to rest near his wife in the family burial plot in Cleveland.

For more than 20 years Mr. Wheeler had worked for the passage of a national law which would free the nation from what he termed the "grip" of intoxicating liquors, and since the last decade of the nineteenth century, all his energies had been expended toward that end.

When in 1918 the Eighteenth Amendment was passed, Wheeler's prognostications and hopes had been realized, and he had seen a nation accept as law the doctrine of his life.

Wheeler directed the national political activities as well as the legal affairs of the league. He figured prominently in the drafting of the Volstead act, and in selecting the legislator whose name the famous statute bears.

Mr. Wheeler's death was sudden. He was stricken some weeks ago, but had been in the sanitarium only three days. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon he was apparently well and in good spirits. He was sitting up in bed reading. He suddenly lurched forward. The nurse, physician and members of his family were at the bedside. An examination showed he had died instantly when the attack came.

ARITHMETIC

Arithmetic is the bugaboo of Uldine Utley, 15-year-old girl evangelist conducting a six weeks' campaign at Memorial Hall, Oakland. The Rev. Utley originally sought to be a movie actress. A trick of fate made her a minister.

FAMILIAR

In this familiar pose she is just the average young girl. But she says: "The fault with the young people of today is that they are selfish—they can think of no one but themselves." She preached yesterday on "Quest of Souls."

MODERN

And the Rev. Utley becomes again Miss Utley when she dons these clothes after her services. She said "Cigarets are harmful physically and spiritually to those who use them" in commenting upon smoking by young women.

SUCCESS

An an evangelist Miss Utley has been successful. She recently closed a year's campaign in New York City, where she carried her word into Park avenue and the Bowery. Her parents and a tutor are in Pittsburgh with her.

SHAME!

"Aren't Pittsburgh people ashamed of themselves for the little work they are doing for God?" she queried in her sermon yesterday. Miss Utley will preach at Memorial Hall, which was filled for her opening, every night at 7:30 o'clock.

Judge's Plea Puts Off Woodside Hearing

The injunction proceedings to restrain the County Commissioners from printing the name of Robert G. Woodside, former Sheriff, on election ballots as a candidate for County Controller, were postponed today when Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, in Common Pleas Court, asked to be excused from sitting at the hearing because he is a candidate for re-election.

The hearing will be taken up tomorrow when Judge Ambrose B. Reid is expected to preside. The proceedings were instituted by Lula Mosby and Joseph Painter, as taxpayers.

Attorney George E. Alter, counsel for Woodside, filed an answer today to the petition of the complainants who charged that Woodside was not eligible for county controller because he had not been retired from the sheriff's office for a period of two years, as required by a law passed in 1895.

Controller C. C. McGovern, independent candidate to succeed himself, is said to have raised the question of Woodside's eligibility to take the office in case he is elected.

The answer contends that the court has no jurisdiction over a primary election, inasmuch as it is a party affair.

Attorney Frank C. McGirr is representing McGovern.

LOCAL LEGION GUARD LEAVES FOR PARIS

Pittsburghers who are leaving over the Pennsylvania Railroad for New York tonight as an advance guard of the Second A. E. F. invasion of France for the American Legion convention need not be alarmed over reports of threatened hostility toward the legion in Paris, according to Arthur V. Snell, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who just returned from a two-months vacation tour of Europe.

"Early arrivals of legion members, some accompanied by their wives, were well received," he said. "People I talked with in Paris, a fairly representative group, were looking forward to welcoming the Americans."

Pittsburgh's advance guard will leave here at 9:20 o'clock tonight and will board the Tuscania tomorrow. Besides the veterans, many of their mothers, wives and sisters will make the trip.

REPORTS OF JAWORSKI SIGHTING CAUSE FLURRY

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Sept. 6—Excitement was caused at the mining settlement at the Hecla mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company when reports were circulated that John Vashinder and Paul Jaworski, fugitive murderers from the Allegheny county jail, Pittsburgh, had been seen in that vicinity. No basis for the reports could be found. Vashinder has many friends in this district.

KLEIN, KING NOT AT HEARING

Jakie Klein's scheduled hearing before the United States commissioner today, on a charge of intimidating William L. King, secretary of the Citizens League, a government witness, was set aside when neither the defendant nor the government witnesses, presumably by mutual agreement, appeared.

The Commissioner announced that the preliminary hearing would be eliminated and Klein's case would be given to the Federal grand jury at Erie the last week of this month.

County 'Lily White', No Rum Violations—Say Constables

The "blind men's parade" took its usual course through Quarter Sessions Court today when the constables of the county appeared before Judge Harry A. Rowand to make their quarterly returns.

A visitor would have been impressed by the purity of the county, judging from the preponderance of "lily white" reports.

"Have you made diligent inquiry and found no instances of liquor law violations, gambling or the existence of slot machines?" asked Assistant District Attorney George P. Langfitt of each one in the long line of peace officers, and each, in turn, with few minor exceptions, gave his district a clean bill of health.

Police Court Bites Into Extra Pay For Sunday

Nine Pennsylvania Railroad track workers took on an outside job for Sunday and Labor Day, that of laying a siding from the Pennsylvania Railroad right-of-way in to the Dippel Coal Company storage yards in Nixon street, North Side. Their pay, however, will cover time spent lounging about a police station as well as at track laying. Police arrested the whole crew because they were working without a permit after warning the man in charge to cease work.

W. H. Dippel, representative of the coal company, assumed responsibility for the job when the trackworkers were arraigned in North Side Police Court charged with a violation of a city ordinance. The case was held over pending a survey of the property.

NAB SUSPECT HERE IN THREATS TO COOLIDGE

Accused of having sent threatening postcards to President Coolidge, members of the House of Representatives and of the Supreme Court, during the closing days of the fight to save Sacco and Vanzetti, Edward John Kutchero, 28, of 1239 Troy Hill road, was taken into custody today by Postoffice Inspector George V. Craighead and Fred W. Plancke, superintendent of the North Side postoffice. He was held for court trial in $2,000 bail.

Denying that he is the author of the cards, Kutchero, according to the officers, admitted signing a hand-printed proclamation addressed to the House of Representatives. He refused to say who printed the message.

One of the cards received by the President was addressed "Ye Olde Soake Coolidge."

The majority of the cards were posted from the box at the foot of Troy Hill road, between August 1 and August 17.

The last card to President Coolidge, mailed August 17, was as follows:

"Accept this card as a humble apology upon past remarks—but if you pardon me, something should be done. Sincerely, 'E. J. K.'"

Kutchero, a Bohemian, said he had not been employed since the first of the year. He formerly worked for a grocery concern.

"Worst Boy"

FRED HUBENYHAL, JR.

"He's the worst boy in Pittsburgh; he'll steal anything not nailed down and abuses neighbors' children by tying them to trees and stakes," said Fred Hubenyhal, Sr., in describing his son, 16, to Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court and asking that he be sent to the Industrial Training School, Morganza. He would not work, the father said, refused to attend school, and pawned articles stolen from his home. He was committed to Morganza.

ARRESTS IN BALTIMORE MAY CLEAR THEFTS HERE

Holdups in 20 chain groceries in Pittsburgh may be cleared up by the arrest of Benjamin Harrison, 22, and Joseph Kizal, 23, in Baltimore last Saturday. Today local police received pictures of the two young men, arrested in a $200 holdup in Baltimore. One of the prisoners answers the general description of one of the holdup men operating here. Both men say they recently were in Pittsburgh.

C., United States commissioner of pensions, who is visiting here, will deliver an address tonight to veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World wars. Col. to the Cardinal interested in the fine arts.

THE Cardinal told him to reveal to nobody where he excavated the "ancient work of art." The Cardinal would come himself and continue the excavating.

Michael Angelo wrote, telling the Cardinal that if he liked that sort of thing, he, Michael, could make as many for him as he wanted. The Cardinal, a wise man, took the thing in good part.

FRENCHMEN complain of the high cost of living. But bread costs only three and one-half cents a pound. We should not complain of that here. The French government regulates the price of bread, and has done so for many years.

Hard liquor, which the foolish Napoleon III put within easy reach of the French people to make himself popular, is very heavily taxed, which is one good result of the war. Light wine is not considered an "alcoholic drink" in France. It is part of the nation's food. The people drink it as we drink coffee, and as temperately.

A MILLION DOLLARS, once an important sum, is now "small change" in the eyes of high finance. You must be a BILLION dollar concern to be anything. The recent combination of the Chase National and the Mechanics and Metals National Banks produced a bank with assets of one thousand two hundred and fifteen million dollars. The ten billion dollar bank will come in due time. This is a billion dollar country, and hasn't really started the development of the national wealth.

COUNTY COURTS RESUME WORK

The Allegheny county grand jury today began work on more than 1,200 cases which will be presented to it during the five weeks it is expected to sit, having been sworn before Judge James R. Macfarlane, presiding judge, at the opening of the September term of Criminal Court. William J. Hutchinson, a salesman, of 608 Woodbourne avenue, Nineteenth Ward, was named as foreman of the grand jury, which consisted of nine women and eight men.

Jury trials were resumed after the summer recess, with six Criminal Courts in operation. Judges Josiah Cohen, Harry H. Rowand, Thomas J. Ford and Richard W. Martin will sit in Criminal Court during the September term and will be assisted this week by Judges Miles F. Potter of Union and Snyder counties and Watson R. Davis of Franklin county.

FIRE AT POWHATAN, O., CAUSES $9,000 DAMAGE

MARTINS FERRY, O., Sept. 6.—Returning from a trip to Pittsburgh early today, Postmaster R. E. Saner, Powhatan, discovered fire that menaced the business district. It was confined to the confectionery and dwelling of John Vlasco. Damage amounted to $9,000.

Flapper Is Swayed By Girl Preacher

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

A carmined-lipped flapper, mascara streaking her tear-stained cheeks, hit the saw dust trail at Memorial Hall last night. Bravely she marched up and pledged herself to support Uldine Utley and go out in quest of souls in Pittsburgh.

And Uldine in pure white, with a pink rose in her Bible and with the little catchy sob in her voice that characterized her speech, was most appealing. She had her audience right with her—even if the crowd was surprisingly small. Of course, it was a holiday.

Now and then a startling "amen," "hallelujah" or "bless you, sister," burst forth from the crowd when the 15-year-old evangelist waxed particularly enthusiastic. Uldine likes to know they are with her. She believes in a real "amen corner," she says.

The little preacher was tired-looking, and seemed even much older than before. Throughout the crowd a doubtful Thomas frequently nudged someone and leaned over to ask if so-and-so really believed the girl was only 15! As she waded into her sermon people were more uncertain than ever.

Uldine took as her text a verse from Gen. 26: "And there was a famine in the land."

Wise old clergymen have done much worse than she did last night in handling her sermon. She is a remarkable talker—there is no doubt about it. Uldine is a born parson.

Noisy children in the front row seemed to disturb her not one whit. She seemed entirely unconscious of them as she went on:

"Get down and dig! It is not surveyors we need. We don't need people to tell us where the wells of living water are. We need real diggers, people who will get down on their knees. Systems, organizations and committees are implements. But that is not what the great crying need is. It is the individual digger."

Then she leaned out over the little pulpit built especially for her and told her crowd softly, with the little sob:

"Fame and pleasures will not give you happiness—satisfy your hunger. No magic well will spring into being. No well of comfort and ease. What you need is Jesus, Jesus, Jesus, the sweetest name I know."

Uldine told of overhearing some girl talking about her one night on the street. One of them said:

"Oh, that poor, poor girl—with all those old people and she has to be so dignified in church! She must be miserable."

Right then and there the little evangelist assured her audience that she was the happiest girl in the world. That she didn't know what it was to have a moment of doubt or uncertainty or tears.

When she asked for sinners who wanted to start digging their own wells three women and one man held up their hands. She begged them to come forward, but they didn't have quite that much nerve. So she called for volunteers to pledge themselves to save Pittsburgh and a crowd gathered around the altar.

The flapper hesitated a moment, then joined them—weeping and penitent. Uldine nodded understandingly.

GASSED IN WAR, FOUND DEAD

Howard E. Merryman, 37, of 506 East Lacock street, gassed veteran of the World War, was found dead this morning at the foot of Mendota street in a truck belonging to Patrick Began, huckster, 110 Mendota street. Mrs. Began found the body. At the Allegheny General Hospital it was said death was due to natural causes. Police believe he climbed into the truck to sleep.

Merryman, a patient from time to time at the Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, had been a member of Company H, One Hundred and Sixty-third Infantry. He was married but the address of his wife is not known. His father, F. H. Merryman, resides at 715 Sixth street, N. E., Washington, D. C.

CHILDREN DURING PLAY LOOSE AMMONIA FUMES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Children playing around the old Emmerling brewery yesterday opened the valves on an ammonia tank, and city firemen were obliged to use gas masks to shut off the escaping ammonia and rescue the children.

MRS. SWEETIN GOES ON TRIAL AGAIN

POISONED

Mrs. Hight, one of the victims of the strange love pact, an invalid at the time when she was poisoned. Hight recants his Biblical plea: "The woman did tempt me."

SEEKS FREEDOM

Mrs. Sweetin, on trial today to seek her freedom from complicity in the poisonings. Testimony in the first trial revealed that she had poisoned her husband, in bed with injuries, and five weeks later Hight had poisoned his invalid wife, in whose body traces of poison were found in a postmortem brought on by wagging tongues in "Little Egypt." "Elsie's beauty tempted me," said Hight in court, "and I fell. I still love her." The poisonings followed clandestine meetings between the two, after Hight, a horse-breaker, had changed his profession to that of the ministry.

TESTIFIES AGAIN

The Rev. Lawrence Hight, Ina, Ill., serving a life sentence for the poisoning of his wife and Wilfred Sweetin, miner, will appear in court again in the retrial of Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, sentenced to 35 years for the killings. Mt. Vernon, Ill., trial city, wonders if Hight will assume full blame.

ACCUSES ATTACKER, DIES

DIES FROM WOUNDS

Edward Flynn, 60, died in Homeopathic Hospital as the result of knife and revolver wounds suffered when he was held up by five young thugs at Center avenue and Graham streets.

IDENTIFIED

Harry J. Crouse, 24, 7437 Susquehanna street, identified by Flynn, the hospital's engineer, as one of his attackers. Flynn brightened for a moment, pointed out the man, then died shortly later.

LOEW FUNERAL THURSDAY; THEATERS CLOSE

ENTIRE STRING OF PLAYHOUSES IN MOURNING

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The career of a furrier's helper who in 34 years developed a penny arcade into vast interests in the motion picture industry and a nation-wide chain of vaudeville theaters was recalled today with the death of Marcus Loew.

Loew, who was 57, had been inactive because of heart disease for three years. The end came unexpectedly yesterday as he slept. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday morning at his $1,000,000 marble home. He rose from an East Side tenement.

Loew theaters throughout the country will be closed the day of the funeral, it is announced by Nicholas M. Schenck, business associate of Loew, who is mentioned to succeed him as head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation and the Loew chain of theaters.

WITH WARFIELD

Loew leaves his wife and twin sons, Arthur H. and David, who are identified with the Loew business.

After three failures, Loew started on the road to fortune with David Warfield, the famous actor, for whom he managed an apartment house. When Loew was [illegible] he and Warfield opened a penny arcade in New York in which some of the first crude motion pictures were exhibited.

At his death Loew was president of nearly 100 subsidiary motion picture concerns and was accounted one of the wealthiest men in the amusement industry.

School Calls 250,000, Setting New Record

The call to classes sounded this morning in city, county and parochial schools for a quarter of a million pupils. It was the largest enrollment in the history of the city and county. It is also the first time for many years that no buildings were reported acutely crowded.

The city enrollment was estimated at almost 100,000 in public schools and 31,000 in parochial schools. Numerous additions to city school buildings have been completed during the vacation season to give greater seating capacity or to replace the uncomfortable makeshift "portables" which have clustered about many school buildings since the halt in building operations necessitated by the World War.

McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton and the boroughs and townships report record enrollments.

One of the most pretentious new school structures which will be put into use this season is the new Cathedral High School for boys, in the Bellefield district.

BRITISH KEEPING INDIA'S PEACE

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—British administration of India is greatly benefiting its 350,000,000 natives, declared S. C. Legge, general manager of the East India railroad here.

Accompanied by P. S. Sheridan of the British Board of Railroad Supervisors, he arrived in Chicago to make a study of American tourist passenger transportation.

"Great Britain is maintaining peace between two enormous religious factions—the Hindus and the Mohammedans—which cannot co-exist in harmony," said Mr. Legge. "If the British were to withdraw from administration of the country, I'd hate to say what would happen. The two faiths would fall out with disastrous consequences to the world's commerce." India has but 40,000 miles of railways, Mr. Legge added.

HOPE REDFERN MAY BE SAFE ON ISLAND

By Universal Service.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Sept. 6.—Hope that Paul R. Redfern and his airplane, Port of Brunswick, are safe on some island off the coast of Venezuela or off the mainland in some inaccessible spot was revived today when the steamship Christian Krohg arrived here and brought positive word that it had communicated with the Georgia flier August 26, when he was within 165 miles of the South American coast.

Redfern circled about the ship 55 minutes and dropped five notes in the water alongside the Christian Krohg, three of which asked directions, which were given him. He was last seen heading in the direction of the Venezuelan mainland, 165 miles away. Between him and the mainland was a group of islands, on which he may have landed. These were within 100 miles of where the ship met the airplane.

Officers of the ship expressed the opinion that Redfern had landed on one of the islands or on the Venezuela coast and, after a rest during the night of August 26, proceeded the next day southward on his hop to Brazil. This would account for his reported having been seen over Orinoco by a native mail carrier August 27, 1927.

WANT CROSSING ABOLISHED

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Immediate steps will be taken by the local authorities to have abolished the grade crossing on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Meadowlands, where on Sunday four lives were taken when a fast passenger train struck an automobile. More than a score have been killed at the same spot within the last five years. If it is not found feasible to abolish the crossing, the Public Service Commission will be asked to compel the railroad company to maintain a watchman.

PROVE FRENCH FLIER FAKED HEIGHT RECORD

ALTITUDE MARK CLAIMED FOR U. S. PILOT

PARIS, Sept. [illegible] Jean Callizo, who gained fame as an altitude flier, today stood disgraced and stripped of his honors.

The sports [illegible] of the French Aero Club last [illegible] after a hearing on the charges that he falsified the barograph [illegible] record-breaking [illegible] that they were [illegible].

It inflicted the severest penalty within its power [illegible] for life—and struck from its list the previous records with which he had been credited.

The decision was reached by unanimous vote after a [illegible] careful examination [illegible] in which a number [illegible] examined Callizo [illegible] steadily for hours and [illegible] with several of the [illegible], but finally, it is alleged, he admitted the charges true.

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6—A claim for the world airplane altitude record is to be made for Lieutenant John A. Macready, former Army ace, following the exposure of an alleged hoax by which Jean Callizo, French airman, now holds the mark, it was learned here.

Macready is officially accredited with having attained an altitude of 38,704 feet in a flight at McCook Field, Dayton, O., January 29, 1926.

MacReady was unable to beat the record of the Frenchman Callizo, who claimed to have reached 41,800 feet.

Now it is charged that Callizo's claims were based on the falsification of his barograph reading by tracing lines on it with invisible ink.

All Ages in Sun-Tele's Melody Way Club

From the four corners of the tristate district enrollments came in today for membership in the Sun-Telegraph Melody Way Club. The club, offering anyone the chance to learn to play the piano, is no respecter of ages, classes or conditions.

The entrants in the club range from nine years up; many are adults. Those who failed to send in applications for membership should do so. The first lesson will be printed in Saturday's issue of The Sun-Telegraph.

The last Sunday Sun-Telegraph carried the piano chart needed by everyone desirous of learning to play free of charge. The system presents instructions in a new way, fashioned to entertain as well as supply the fundamental knowledge. Those who missed the chart may procure it by writing the circulation manager, enclosing 10 cents in stamps for mailing expense.

Music dealers are hastening to organize melody way clubrooms, where entrants in the club may have the use of pianos and instructors free of charge. Send in your application blank to The Sun-Telegraph, and you will receive a button and a certificate entitling you to enter any of the classes. Choose your own. Their locations will be announced Wednesday.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, LIKE BIBLE, OMITS QUOTES

LONDON, Sept. 6—George Bernard Shaw has given a characteristic explanation regarding the omission of quotation marks from the printed editions of his plays. Answering an inquiry Shaw's secretary wrote: "In answer to your letter Mr. Bernard Shaw desires me to say that if you will open the nearest Bible, you will see how much better a book looks without apostrophes than with them."

BESIEGED MAN SHOOTS 16

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 6—(AP)—Wesley Cooksey, 39-year-old laborer, armed with a shotgun, held his home last night for four hours against police seeking him for threats he had made against his wife.

Before he was brought out mortally wounded, he had shot and wounded 16 persons—seven policemen and nine bystanders. Edward Sutheimer, chief of detectives, was wounded seriously, and a patrolman, Ray Langford, was struck in the head by a charge from Cooksey's shotgun. Chief of Police Harry Anderson was shot in the hand.

Tear bombs failed to dislodge the Negro, who continued to pump shot into the police and the crowd that pressed closely behind them. It finally was necessary to set fire to the house. Cooksey staggered forth and died shortly afterward with several bullets in his body.

Hillario denied being the holdup man, but was fined $50 with the option of spending 30 days in jail.

Ed Wynn in George White's Show In Nixon This Week; Alvin Stage Offers Clark and McCullough

By GEORGE SEIBEL

GALES of laughter swept the Alvin Theater at both performances yesterday, as those irresistible funny men Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough, rambled through the musical show styled "The Ramblers." It was amusing at all times, and when this pair was on the stage it was exhausting. Clark is a fortune teller and trance medium, also to foretell the future whenever anyone tells it to him, while McCullough is his assistant. Together they squeeze every drop of fun out of any situation or line, and get it across to the audience every wherever they plant a joke they raise a riot, and the book by Guy Bolton provides ample opportunities.

GEORGE SEIBEL

They are surrounded by a company of uncommon excellence, both in effective comedy and alluring dances. Marie Saxon is a whirlwind of grace besides being the possessor of a smile that would cure the most aggravated blues. Then there is little Ruth Tester, who elevates awkwardness into a fine art. And there is Norman Gallo, whose acrobatic dances are executed with as much ease as ordinary mortals breathe. Georgia O'Ramey is a comedienne who is as effective in her way as Bobby Clark, and their bit of fooling with a flute was riotous by its apparent spontaneity.

The men in the cast looked human, and sang well and danced with vim and grace. This includes Billie Taylor, Sam Critcherson and Harry Miller. William E. Browning and Norton Spurr played a pair of Mexican bad men murderously enough and Spurr also did a dance specialty that was very difficult and very well done.

As for the music by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, it is exceedingly tuneful, especially "All Alone Monday," and "You Smiled at Me." As for the costumes, they represent a high tide in sartorial taste and lavishness. As for the stage settings and lighting, the production leaves nothing to be desired. It is one of the best musical attractions that have been seen here in a long time, and it is clean without being prudish. Best of all, however, it is uproariously funny, thanks to Clark and McCullough.

Ed Wynn is among comedians what Mark Twain was among humorists, a funny man with ideas, with a brain he uses to amuse the world, mingling ideas with the amusement. He is the pivot around which the whole new George White show, called "Manhattan Mary," was turning most of the time at the Nixon Theater last night. And there is much to turn—girls in a glitter of lights and glory of colors, dancers in steps novel and intricate, a male chorus of surpassingly good voices, and stage settings that visualize a great many well-known spots of New York, beginning with a very realistic representation of Broadway and ending with a reception by Mayor Jimmy Walker in front of City Hall.

It is a production that deserves the well-worn circus adjective, "stupendous." Whether there are 100 beauties by actual count in the ballet it would not be possible to say, because they were too numerous to count. Whether there were actually 24 in the Broadway Duster chorus doesn't matter, because they sang well enough for two dozen. Certainly it is one of the most colorful productions that even George White has ever put on—added to which is the fact that he himself is part of the show, in the dress rehearsal that closes the first act, bringing a considerable part of the cast out among the audience, with Ed Wynn himself conducting the orchestra.

Wynn's delicious foolery is ably seconded by Lou Holtz, a most amusing type, while the other star of the show is dainty Elizabeth Hines, who sings and dances herself into the hearts of the audience. Paul Frawley plays and sings the hero in manly fashion. Harlan Dixon enacts a stage manager with vim and verve, the Williams Sisters excel in eccentric dances, and there are many other people of charm and cleverness. But the whole business revolves around Crickets, the waiter, played by Wynn—scenic splendor, gorgeous dress and undress of the chorus, tuneful numbers that are sung and danced, all these seem to exist only for this super-clown who has exalted idiocy into genius. The audience marveled at the beauties of the production, but it waited for Wynn when he was not on the stage. George White has been wise in making him the Man in Manhattan, and also in making Miss Hines the Mary.

MUSICAL REVUE HEADS SHERIDAN VAUDEVILLE

Eddie Hodges and His Pirates, in a musical revue, top the vaudeville program in the Sheridan Square the first three days of this week. Kokin and Galetti present a group of trained monkeys. Morin and Gale, ventriloquists, and Vic and Peggy Binns, in a dance presentation, complete the vaudeville part of the bill.

The screen feature is a comedy drama of a pugilist and his manager, who break into fashionable society. It is titled "Is Zat So?" and features George O'Brien and Edmund Lowe. Others in the cast are Kathryn Perry, Doris Lloyd, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Cyril Chadwick. A film comedy, news pictures and an organlogue are on the bill.

FILM 'CAMILLE' IS MODERN

Eleanore Duse and Sarah Bernhardt certainly would have a terrible time recognizing the tragic heroine they essayed so well and so often on the legitimate stage in the "Camille" that Norma Talmadge portrays on the Grand screen this week. And one shudders to think what the great dramatist and novelist, Dumas, the younger, would think, could he know what the movies have done to his beloved "The Lady of the Camelias."

Well, the producers said they were going to modernize "Camille" and here's a time they kept their promise. So modern is it that there appears to be little of the original Dumas classic left. Yet, it remains a photoplay of unusual merit for a number of reasons—two of which are Norma Talmadge and Gilbert Roland.

Miss Talmadge offers a Camille with bobbed hair and luxurious modern raiment, a Camille that meets her sweetheart in the atmosphere of present day Paris. And this drama of tragic love has a few things at least in common with the original. It has its big moments—moments which sweep forward with deep romantic appeal, moments of fine dramatic power. And there are no cheap melodramatic gestures. For this let us sing praise to Fred Niblo, the director, and the cast of players.

It is an exceptionally capable cast that supports the star. Let the John Gilberts and the Ramon Novarros look to their honors. In Mr. Roland the screen has an actor of true histrionic ability as well as a handsome young man. Alec Francis, as the baron, and Maurice Costello, as the father of Armand, the role played by Roland, give characterizations that are distinct assets to the production.

There are many impressive episodes in the photoplay—not the least of which is the sequence where the church bells chime one kind of hope to the world and hope of another kind to the dying "Lady of the Camellias" on Christmas morning.

The Grand stage offers Chief Caupolican, Indian baritone, and De Lima and Marita, dancers. Short screen features complete the bill.

"WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS" ON OLYMPIC SCREEN

"We're All Gamblers," a picturization of Sidney Howard's stage play "Lucky Sam McCarver," is being shown on the Olympic screen this week. The plot concerns the romance of a rugged lower-class New Yorker and an aristocratic society leader, who try to find happiness by merging their widely diverse backgrounds. The principal players are Thomas Meighan and Marietta Millner.

Charles Hackett, leading tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera, heads the Vitaphone program. Ohman and Arden, radio broadcasters, offer a round of song as the second Vitaphone number, while the third offers the Four Aristocrats, recording artists. A screen comedy, an Aesop Fable and news pictures complete the bill.

RENEE ADOREE STAR IN CAMEO PICTURE

"Back to God's Country," a screen melodrama of the North country, based on James Oliver Curwood's novel, is the current feature in the cameo. Renee Adoree has the principal role. Others in the cast include Robert Frazer, Mitchell Lewis, Walter Long, Adolph Milan and James Mason. In the film a Northwest trapper is forced to kill a man in self-defense. It is known to a villainous sea captain. The trapper's daughter agrees to marry the sea man to protect her father. The story is revealed to a young American engineer, who plans the escape of father and daughter. This is effected with the assistance of a vicious dog the hero has befriended. A comedy, news pictures and music complete the program.

CRAWFORD ORCHESTRA FOR SANDERS' DANCE

The fall dance season opened last night in Sanders, on the Freeport highway, Aspinwall. Jack Crawford and his recording orchestra played the numbers for the dances, opening a week's engagement at Sanders. Twelve men are included in the personnel of the Crawford orchestra, and their repetoire includes a complete variety of song and dance specialties. There is dancing nightly at Sanders. The glass dance floor is said to be one of the few of its kind between Chicago and New York. A large number of reservations have been received by the Sanders management for the Crawford orchestra appearance this week.

Danced to Top -:- You Mightn't Guess -:- Stock Favorite

GEORGE WHITE used to be a "hoofer." Now he is a producer, well known for his annual big revues. His latest venture is "Manhattan Mary," in the Nixon.

WHO THESE business-like appearing gentlemen are unless we told you, so we'll let you have the correct information. They are Bobbie Clark and Paul McCullough of "The Ramblers," in the Alvin, as they appear without make-up.

LEAH WINSLOW of the George Sharp Production Stock Company in the Pitt has no need of identification. Of course, she is in the "Three Wise Fools."

COMEDY IN PITT IS WINNER

"Three Wise Fools," Austin Strong's melodramatic comedy, which was an emotional and laughing success in its original presentation here and elsewhere, yesterday proved that the qualities which made it a favorite with theater audiences remain strong enough to cause the same response that first marked it as a "hit." Presented by the George Sharp Production Stock Company at the Pitt, it was received with such distinct manifestations of approval as hearty laughter for the comedy and the tense silence that betokens deep interest and sympathy when the emotional chord was struck. Two large holiday crowds acted as if they were having a very good time, and—truth to tell they were.

Thurston Hall had opportunity for artistry as the crustiest of the three old bachelors who were lifted out of their groove of 40 years when the daughter of a former sweetheart of all of them comes to them as a bequest of her dying mother. He had the opportunity and he made good. So did Anne Forrest, who played the girl. Miss Forrest was a delight in the lighter moments of her characterization and effective, even if a little strained, in an emotional climax when she learns her three bachelor friends suspect her of complicity in an attempt on the life of one of them.

John W. Moore, juvenile lead, as the nephew of the crusty one, seemed to have just the right amount of impetuous dash to fit a character supposed to be a trifle willful but wholly likeable. He stands high with Pitt audiences and yesterday's performance further entrenched him. Joseph Lawrence and Gus A. Forbes as the other two "wise fools," gave a much more finished performance than could be expected for a "first night" and scored individually. In fact all members of the company, including Leah Winslow, Geoffray Bryant, Reed Hamilton, Garland Kerr, Edwin Vail, Phil Maher and Irene Levine, did commendable work.

The piece was mounted in excellent taste, the one setting being built with a good sense of the importance of accurate detail.

Pleasing Musical Show Is New Attraction In the Gayety

An entertaining musical comedy, "Around the World Revue," is the second Columbia attraction of the new season, opening yesterday for a week's engagement in the Gayety. Cleanliness in dialogue and action is a striking feature of the performance as witnessed last night.

Billed in the feature parts are Roy Butler and Hal Kennedy, in low comedy roles, and Howard Blair, given to a feminine impersonation that tempts the mind to remember him for a finished performance. It would not be surprising if the future held success in higher priced attractions. The feminine contingent presents Bee Paige and Alice Ritchie in the ingenue and soubret roles, respectively. The other members of the cast are above the average in ability.

Interesting moments are found in the offering of two scenes from "The Old Homestead," a well performed bit. Walter Ayers gives an entertaining portrayal as Joshua Whitcomb. There is just sufficient of this old-time popular drama to give excellently proportioned variety to the 19 scenes staged in two acts of the production.

One of the pleasing features is the well-drilled and good-looking chorus. The capable stepping and pleasing costumes enhance the work of this important part of the musical offering. Tasteful scenery with good lighting effect add much to the entertainment.

CAMERAPHONE SHOWS TWO FEATURE PICTURES

"Heaven on Earth" is the one photoplay feature this week in the Cameraphone. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, starring Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree. The picture offers both comedy and tragedy. Another is "Through Darkest Africa," a picture of an exploration trip through the wilds of the Congo. There are a number of thrills in this production, one a battle to the death between two infuriated rhinoceroses. News pictures and music are on the program.

HARRIS PROGRAM IS VARIED

Harry Jolson, brother of Al Jolson, masquerades as a black-face clown in the Harris this week, topping a bill of vaudeville and photoplay. It may be said for Harry that he hasn't stolen his brother's "stuff." He puts over an original act of song and chatter that wins applause. Duke Attenbury and Kenneth Gillum are laugh-getters with their nonsense and collegiate bloomers. Operatic music is offered by the Colonial Sextet. Jack Narcus and company present a travesty, "The Covered Wagon." Selma Braatz juggles hats, balls and umbrellas in a novel manner. Davis and Connie pace through some dance steps. "Colleen," a comedy romance, which opens in Ireland and ends on the American horse-race track, is the photoplay feature. It is an entertaining production and boasts a cast of capable performers, including Madge Bellamy, J. Farrell McDonald, Charles Morton and Sammy Cohen. An organlogue and short film features complete the bill.

"JAZZTIME REVUE" SHOWN IN ACADEMY

"Jazztime Revue," a burlesque in 25 scenes, is this week's bill in the Academy. Kitty Madison, comedienne and songstress, heads the cast and appears in a travesty on Dante's "Inferno," presented in the form of a dream with fantastic scenic effects. There is also a satire on "Madame X." "Crooked Crooks" is another comedy skit. Attractive costumes are shown in the scene, "Art Studio." Irene Franklin, prima donna, Laurette Dore, Ann Corio and George Rehm are prominent. Harry Evanson leads the comedy forces. A Honolulu dancer, billed as "The Girl with the Mask," is seen in special dances. Vaudeville specialties are introduced.

Wayburn's "Varieties" Heads Vaudeville Bill In Davis

A pleasing program of vaudeville and screen entertainment, of which Ned Wayburn's "Variety Show" is the headliner, marks the opening of the fall season in the Davis this week. Wayburn's show, in more than a score of different scenes, serves to introduce 12 proteges of the well-known showman as well as a number of performers known to theatergoes. The Four Ortons, in "At the Circus;" Fred Hughes, tenor, Mary Horan, in "The Cameo Revue," and Al and Fanny Stedman in "Pianocapers," are highlights of the Wayburn vehicle, the keynote of which, as its title indicates, is variety and novelty. The photoplay feature, "Is Zat So," proves a good comedy drama of a prize fighter who is "wise-cracked" into winning the big bout and into the ranks of fashionable society by his manager. George O'Brien is the pugilist and Edmund Fairbanks, Jr., has the role of a gay man about town. Kathryn Perry and Doris Lloyd have feminine leads. There are lots of laughs in the production. In addition to the feature film and the Wayburn show, Sullivan and Lewis entertain with a novelty act on the stage, while the Wilson brothers, Joe and Frank, do a padded cell skit that provokes the laughs. A film comedy, news pictures and orchestra music complete the bill.

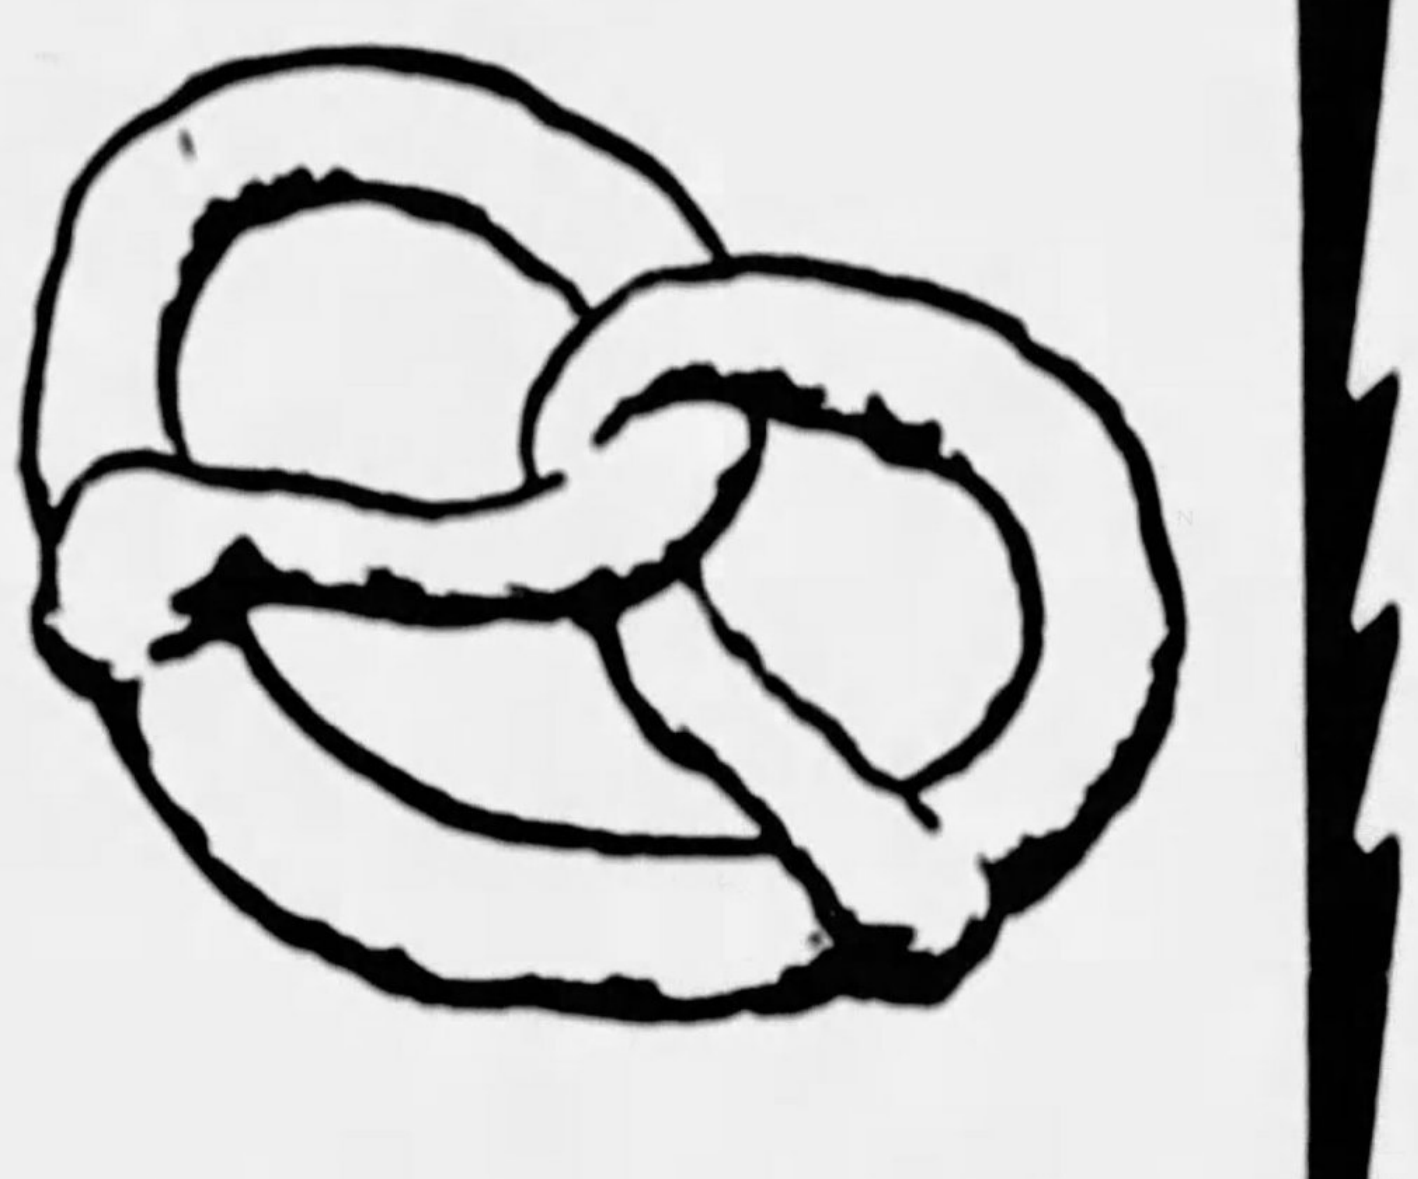
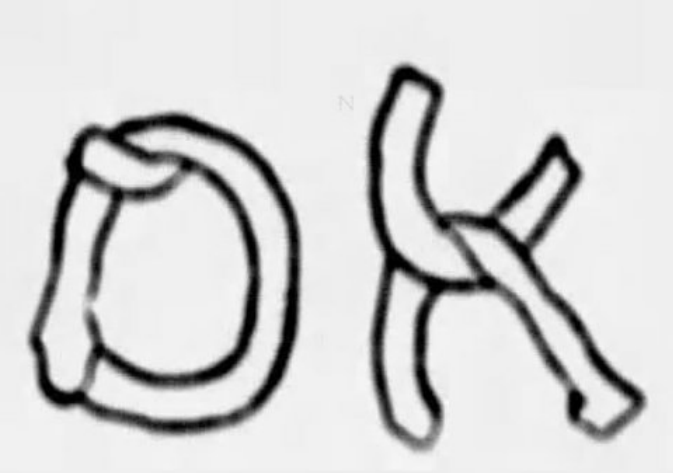
Bite yourself an Alphabet



And they're both ardent pretzeleers

Back in '73 Grandpa was the pretzel biting champion of Kokono County—and he's still good. He can bite straight through the alphabet without spoiling a single pretzel. Bobby can already make a "B" in a single bite, but he's apt to leave rough edges on his "Q's."

In a statement recently bitten for the press, Grandpa said: "Uneeda Bakers' pretzels are



"Pretzels today are better than ever. Crispier than the kind we had when Grant was president. Crunchier and more brittle than even those of the Garfield-Arthur period. And the salty taste is what I call salty."

The Golden Age of pretzels is here. People are eating O-So-Gud Pretzels every chance they get. Before you go to bed—great. With ginger ale—fine. With soup, salad or dessert—nothing smackier. For children in between meals.

Easy to digest? Yes. And remember—O-So-Gud is the name. Why so good? Because they're made by the Uneeda Bakers.

TRI-BOROUGH CLUB USES NEW FORM IN YEAR BOOK

The Tri-Borough Club of New Kensington, Parnassus and Arnold has compiled its new year book in an entirely new form, a particularly concise and comprehensive arrangement of indexed and graduated pages which enables the reader to turn directly to the information desired. Mary Stuart's "Collect for Club Women" following the title page is itself followed by a page indexed "General Information" and another headed "In Memoriam." A page listing the past presidents immediately precedes the programs, which are indexed according to months, and these are followed by the officers and committees.

Thursday will see the opening of the club season in the Aluminum Clubhouse, New Kensington. Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, vice president of this district of the State Federation, will be the speaker. The October meeting will be for business and reports of the State Federation convention and in November Mme. Suzanne Karpova will tell of "The Russian Revolution As I Saw It." A program by the junior department is on the calendar for December; January will bring Dr. Manuel C. Elmer, head of the department of sociology, University of Pittsburgh, for a talk on "The Passing of the Red Tablecloth," and February, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Motz, of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, to speak on "Citizenship." Mrs. Thomas U. Chesebrough, a member of the Pittsburgh College Club, will talk on "Carolina Plays and Playmakers" in March; in April the club will hear an address on "The Foreign Policy of the United States in Retrospect and Contemporary," by Dr. Alfred P. James, department of history, University of Pittsburgh, and in May, A. W. Wilson, Jr., president of Kiskiminetas Springs School, will speak on "A Boy's Education." In June the club will close with the annual party in charge of the social committee with a program under the direction of the dramatic committee.

BABY IN 150 OPERATIONS

BREATHES THROUGH TUBE

Baby Ruth Bierly, 5, patient at Memorial Hospital, Johnstown, able to breathe this week for the first time in four years without the aid of a silver tube, has made 150 trips to the operating room in four years' treatment. Due to a trachea obstruction, the tube was inserted through her neck to the windpipe, resulting in a deep scar. She is shown with a hospital nurse.

Two More Matinees In Alvin; Three In Pitt Next Week

Funny as they were in the "Music Box Revue" as buffoons of extraordinary gifts, Clark and McCullough have reached new heights in "The Ramblers," the present occupant of the Alvin. There will be matinees tomorrow and Saturday in the Alvin.

Beginning next week, there will be three matinees in the Pitt—Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The first play under the new order will be "The Show Off," which will be presented with Thurston Hall and Anne Forrest in the leading roles. It is a comedy of a typical American home.

From the summer run on Broadway, "Let's Go" will come to the Gayety next week, bringing Eddie Hall, Johnny O'Donnell, John K. Rader, Walter "Pep" Smith, Jack Reddy, Mae Dix, Bebe Almond, Annabelle Allison, Helen Flynn and 32 chorus girls.

Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall are co-starring in "Smile, Brother, Smile," the screen feature booked for showing in the Davis next week.

The vaudeville in the Harris next week will be headlined by "Cuckoo," with a company of ten. Delton and Finney, the Manniken Cabaret, and Debeel and Vine are also on the bill, which will also include a photoplay.

The burlesque "Hello Paree" will be the attraction next week in the Academy, with Margie Pennette and Lee Hickman as featured players.

The Sheridan Square's program for the first three days of next week will have the Midget Follies as its headline feature and a number of other acts, including Princeton and Yale, a novelty offering.

"Chang," a vivid and thrilling conception of man's fight for life in the Northern Siamese jungle, will be the screen attraction in the Grand next week.

ZIONISTS TO END COALITION

By GERSHON AGRONSKY.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 6.—The creation of a non-partisan cabinet to conduct the affairs of Palestine seems to be the likely outcome of the demand by the American delegation to the World Zionist Congress for a complete re-organization of the Zionist executive committee.

The coalition cabinet which has functioned for the past four years, and which includes Socialist members as well as orthodox Zionists, is expected to be abolished and a non-political government substituted.

Under the American proposals an administrative body of three members, chosen for their personal qualifications, would be selected.

CONSTIPATION SAPS VITAL STRENGTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings quick, natural relief!

Don't permit faulty elimination to undermine your health. It is the cause of widespread suffering and pain. Dizziness, spots before the eyes, headaches, sleeplessness—are just a few of the symptoms of this scourge.

Guard against it. Prevent it in the way that is nature's own method of combating illness. By including plenty of healthful "bulk" in your daily meals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Kellogg's is 100% bran or "bulk." It accomplishes results no part-bran product can equal. That is why doctors recommend it.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. Two tablespoonfuls daily — in chronic cases, with every meal. Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey for an extra treat. Mix it with other cereals. Use it in cooking. Appetizing recipes on every package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

WARNS AGAINST WAR MONGERS

By Universal Service.

EDINBURGH, Sept. 6.—Stinging denunciation of "war mongers" was voiced by George Hicks in his presidential address at the opening of the British Trades Union Congress here. "In every country there are a number of governing men and statesmen, soldiers, naval men and diplomatists who seem to possess abnormal homicidal tendencies," said Hicks. "They play with the horrible instruments of death and destruction like children playing with razors.

"The frightful surgical operation of 1914-18 which left the human race weak and trembling has not eradicated militarism. The war mongers are still with us. They have the power to involve all the people in this country and in other countries in another world war. Humanity would shrivel in another world war like grass before a prairie fire. It would mean the doom of civilization."

Hicks called on labor to unite against war.

"CHATTER" has no business in a Model T Ford. It wasn't there when the car was new. And it can be kept out—easily. The minute you detect a drag or grip-and-slip in the bands, put Atlantic N. C. on the job. Out goes the trouble, instantly! Use Atlantic N. C. regularly and "chatter" won't have a ghost of a chance to come back.

Atlantic N. C. is the finest investment in motor smoothness and riding comfort a Ford owner can make. Means a big saving in upkeep too. Bands stay pliable—last much longer . . . fewer renewals are necessary. Your whole car will give you many, many extra miles of dependable service.

Atlantic N. C. is unlike any other oil. Its effectiveness is permanent —the "non-chatter" quality won't evaporate or "wear off." Ask for summer grade—in one or five gallon cans, or by the quart. Free crankcase service most everywhere.

PGH.-NEW YORK AIRPLANE COMING

J. Warren Smith, manager of Mayer Aviation Field, Bridgeville, and Walter Chambers, secretary of the Langley Beacon Association, left Pittsburgh today for San Diego, Cal., to bring Pittsburgh's first whirlwind-motored cabin airplane to Pittsburgh.

The plane is a Ryan monoplane, similar to that in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew from New York to Paris, and is the first of a fleet which C. P. Mayer, owner of Mayer Field, has ordered to inaugurate an airplane passenger service between New York and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Chambers are scheduled to arrive in Pittsburgh early next week. They expect to make the journey in two hops, the first from San Diego to Dallas, Tex., and from Dallas to Pittsburgh. In Dallas, Wright Aeronautical Corporation experts will inspect the whirlwind motor after its nine-hour flight from California.

"We believe Pittsburghers want aviation passenger service, and Mayer Field is going to give it to them," Mr. Mayer said as Pilot Smith and Mr. Chambers entrained for San Diego.

"In the nine years Mayer Field has been in operation we have carried more than 50,000 passengers and not one of them has been scratched," declared Mr. Mayer. "This record demonstrates that commercial aviation is practicable and is responsible for our investment of $50,000 in modern equipment, all of which will be delivered between now and Christmas.

"With the cabin monoplane, such as the Ryans which we have ordered, and for which Mr. Smith and Mr. Chambers started today, flying in winter is just as comfortable as in summer."

GERMANY CURBS OCEAN FLIGHTS

By LAURA PATRICK.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—The German government, aroused by the startling death toll of ocean flights, in all probability will prevent any future attempts to cross the ocean in single motored land air planes. The government plans to make use of existing ordinances against overloading, according to a representative of the Ministry of Transportation.

The prohibition, however, will not apply to the expeditions planned by the Junkers at Dessau, or to Otto Koennecke, who is ready to fly from Cologne, since both had already received the tacit approval of the government before the Honolulu disasters or the loss of the St. Raphael impressed the public with the hazards of such adventures.

Though the Nationalist press continues to encourage the German effort to be first to cross the ocean from this side, the Liberal newspapers are assembling statistics showing a list of 25 dead ocean fliers since Lindbergh made his trip to Paris.

LEVINE AGREES TO BAR WOMAN

By Universal Service.

Special Cable Dispatch.

SLEAFORD, England, Sept. 6.—Charles A. Levine has agreed not to carry Mabel Boll as a passenger on his trans-Atlantic flight.

Therefore the dispute with Capt. Hinchcliffe, who will pilot Levine's plane, has been settled. The British airman refused to make the flight if he had to carry Miss Boll as passenger.

Levine today postponed his trans-Atlantic take-off until tomorrow, owing to adverse weather conditions over the ocean.

Aunt Emily Plays Hostess To the Jerome Family; Mabel Faces Facts

What Has Gone Before

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family which consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU AND MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY downtown afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Sally is heartsick and jealous, and because of this, begins to see more of Ted Sloan than usual. Beau manages to get $110 from Ted Sloan by means of two bad checks, and Ted threatens to turn him over to the police. Sally borrows $100 from Mr. Peevey and gives it to him. But instead of paying Ted with it, he uses it to elope with his fiancee, MABEL WILMOT. Millie's love affair goes serenely on, and she tells Sally that John Nye has hired an assistant for her so that she'll be free to go to lunch with him. One night when Sally and Ted have been dancing at the Blue Lagoon Sally meets one of Millie's erstwhile suitors, Davidson. He asks her to dance while Ted is getting her wraps.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"THERE was something wrong with the water heater tonight," she yawned, "and there's only enough hot water for one bath. That's your hard luck, Sally." And she vanished into the bathroom to take the nightly hot bath, that both girls took religiously—when there was enough hot water. Usually there was not!

Left alone, Sally stood looking down at the two radio batteries standing on the floor of the room, under the windows. She looked at them for a long time, and then she bent down and just touched them with her fingers, very gently, as she might have touched the lean, tanned hands of the man who had set them there.

She turned out the lights and went to bed.

Aunt Emily's dinner the next day was a family picnic.

For the day was a hot and sunshiny Sunday, and the trees in Aunt Emily's garden were still green and fresh. Lacy shadows patterned the grass beneath the old elm tree, where Aunt Emily had laid a long tablecloth.

Beau and Mabel were there when the others arrived, and Mabel kissed everybody and the quarrel was made up.

"And now everything's just fine again," as Mrs. Jerome said placidly, as she took her third helping of chicken salad.

Mrs. Jerome was more than likely to think that everything in the world was "just fine" so long as she had plety of chicken salad, a comfortable garden chair, and a daughter to brush the flies and mosquitoes away from her, as Sally was doing now.

But it seemed that everything in the family was not "just fine."

For after dinner Mabel drew Sally away, behind the currant bushes along the fence, and told her a story of disillusion and disgust.

"I'm just having the most awful time with Beau!" she began, hotly, not looking at Sally as she talked. "He got paid yesterday noon, and last night at 5 o'clock he sailed in with half of his salary gone. He knows a bookmaker, and he'd been playing the races. He picked the wrong horse, of course. You'd just know he would! And he wears so many clean clothes! You should have seen our laundry bill this week, and I had to pay it! What he had left last night he spent on a quart of liquor and a big tin of cigarets."

"He's always spent his money that way. I've told you so a thousand times." Sally spoke gravely, her compassionate, understanding eyes on the unhappy face beside her.

"I know you have! But I never believed you 'till now," Mabel answered, frankly. "You see, I was so much in love with him—"

"Aren't you still?" interrupted Sally. "You've been married only a week, you know."

Mabel put her head down on her knees and began to cry.

"Sure, I'm in love with him," she wept. "Do you think I'd stay with him, and pay his board bill and his laundry bill if I didn't love him? I spent every nickel of my salary except five dollars yesterday, Sally, settling up for the week—I tell you, we're just up against it!"

Very slowly Sally opened her little gray leather handbag, and took out a five-dollar bill from it. She knew what she was expected to do, and she did it.

"I can only lend you this, Mabsy," she said, folding it into Mabel's eager little paw. "Mother was going to buy you a wedding present, but I'll try to persuade her to give you the money instead. And then you'll have to pay this money back to me. I'm sorry, but I've got to have it again."

"Sure, I'll pay it back! You know I will!" And Mabel jumped up, brushed the tears from her eyes, gave her skirts a shake, and was herself again!

"You're a sweet cookie!" she declared, flatteringly, and hid the money in the top of her rolled stocking.

CHAPTER XXVI.

LATE that afternoon, when long, blue-gray shadows lay across Aunt Emily's lawn, a big brown car drove in between the gate posts and came to a stop before the steps of the house.

"Why—it's John Nye!" Sally cried, her wistful eyes on the tall, dark, good-looking man who swung himself out of it. Something in her voice made Aunt Emily give her a sharp, quick look before she trotted briskly away to welcome him.

"So it is!" drawled Millie, pulling herself up from the basket chair where she had been taking a quiet cat-nap. "He said last night he might drive out to get me today—"

"He can take us all home, and we won't have to ride the crowded street car!" Mrs. Jerome broke in eagerly. Before Millie could stop her she was half way across the lawn, calling out to him.

"Oh, Mr. Nye, how nice of you—I'll go right in and get my hat and be ready in a minute!" She went up the steps with a swiftness that she had not shown in years.

Mabel burst into a laugh. "Well, look at the old girl go, will you!" she giggled. "She sure can show some speed when she wants to, can't she?" Mabel probably never had read the Ten Commandments and knew nothing about honoring her mother and father—or her mother-in-law, or anyone else, for that matter. She had no respect for anyone, really. She laughed again, and Beau laughed with her.

Millie gave them a blighting look. "How can you laugh about a thing like that?" she asked bitterly. "I think it's terrible—wishing herself on him for a ride home! When she knows perfectly well that he came out for me and for nobody else!—I could just shake her!"

Mabel, still giggling, turned to Beau. "Well, as long as your mother's going to drive in with Mr. Nye, you and I may as well go along, too," she said to him. "Come on, darling."

They jumped up from the grass where they had been sitting, holding hands. They were still in that blissful honeymoon state where they were not happy unless they were making love to each other.

Millie groaned, watching them cross the lawn with their arms linked lovingly. They got into John Nye's car as if they owned it.

"Isn't that the pink limit?—Wishing the whole family on him?" she appealed disgustedly to Sally, as she shook out her rumpled pink dress and fluffed up her tousled yellow hair. "Well, come along, we may as well start."

But Sally shook her head and did not stir from her cushion on the grass.

"No, thanks, Millie. I'm going to stay and have supper with Aunt Em," she said quietly and firmly. Not for worlds would she have driven off in John Nye's car behind him and Millie. Not for anything.

She stayed where she was, holding up a magazine in front of her as if she were reading. She did not lower it until she heard Aunt Emily calling "Goodby" to everyone, and then the low murmur of the brown car as it started away.

"Was I very rude?" she asked when Aunt Emily, trim and severe in gray linen, came back across the smooth grass to her. "And do you mind if I stay for supper? I invited myself." She put down the magazine.

Aunt Emily did not seem to have heard her questions. She stood squarely in front of her, with her piercing eyes on Sally's big blue ones.

"Sally!" she said finally. "You

WARSHIPS QUIT SEARCH FOR 7 FLIERS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The last hope that searching American war craft would find some trace of the seven missing Hawaiian fliers apparently vanished today as the scout cruiser Omaha, flagship for Rear Admiral Luke McNamee, and the destroyers Paul Hamilton, Stoddert, Thompson, Kennedy, Somers and J. F. Burnes rested here on their arrival from Honolulu after searching an area approximately 450,000 square miles in extent.

Admiral McNamee reported that not a single trace of the missing Dole fliers was discovered.

Simultaneously with the return of the Omaha and the destroyers, came word by radio from Rear Admiral Ridley McLean that two divisions of submarines had discontinued the search for the Hawaiian fliers. The submarines are steaming from the one hundred and thirty-fifth meridian for San Diego. They are due Thursday.

Ocean Air Trips Kill You No Deader Than Autos—Rogers

BEVERLY HILLS, CAL., Sept. 6.—Every paper is raving about legislation to stop ocean flying because 13 people have been lost, just a fair Sunday's average in auto deaths. From 10 to 15 is just about the number that are always in a bus when it meets a train at a grade crossing, yet you never see an editorial about relief from that. You may not die as spectacularly in a machine as you would if you dropped in the ocean, but you are just as dead. Yours back in this town don't look so good since a certain party ain't mayor. Mind you, I am not knocking.

GLOBE GIRDLERS ARRIVE AT CALCUTTA

CALCUTTA, British India, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Forging steadily ahead in their endeavor to break the record for a voyage around the earth, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, arrived here today from Allahabad.

The trip, made in 4 hours 40 minutes, added 461 miles to their log, and put them 8,800 miles from their starting point, Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, which they left on August 27.

They flew to Allahabad yesterday from Karachi, a distance of 925 miles, in nine and one-half hours, and left the aviation field, six miles outside Karachi City, at 7 o'clock this morning. The next leg, from Calcutta to Rangoon, Burma, is 665 miles.

The Pride of Detroit made a graceful landing at the Dumdum airdrome here after an uneventful flight from Allahabad. Brock and Schlee said the weather was quite good until the journey was about half over, but less favorable later, as they encountered low-hanging clouds and a slight rain. They leave for Rangoon tomorrow.

Their route from that point on has been tentatively mapped out as: Tourane, French Indo-China; Hongkong, Shanghai, Tokio and then over the Pacific via the Hawaiian Islands.

TRICK LAID TO ORGANIZATION

"The Allegheny County Bar approved no slate of nine judicial candidates," he said. "It did approve a list of 14, and of that 14 I led the ticket, receiving 1,811 out of 1,227 votes—more than any organization candidate." Attorney A. E. Kabel also spoke.

like that man of Millie's, don't you?"

The question came so unexpectedly that Sally answered it almost without thinking. She answered it with a short little nod of her head and a "Yes" that was more like a quick sigh than a word.

And then she found herself telling her aunt all about it. Aunt Emily, for all her snap and matter-of-factness, was the kind of person to whom other people go with their troubles and their confessions.

Confession is good for the soul, and it has a way of taking a load off the heart, too. And Sally felt a certain relief when she had told Aunt Emily the whole story.

"It's silly to say I'm in love with him," she wound up, looking dreamily across the garden at the autumn roses, dimly pink in the dusk, "but I think I am—without really knowing him, Aunt Emily. I saw him one day in the elevator in our building, and the next minute I was so in love with him that I couldn't take my eyes from him."

Aunt Emily smiled. Her smile was a mere quiver of her straight mouth.

"I wouldn't give much for that sort of love," she said. "That isn't the real kind. You've got to know a person to really know that you love him, my dear child."

Sally's face brightened a little. "I hope that's true," she declared. "I hope this is just a passing fancy—I wish I didn't think about John Nye all the time. It bothers me, and I'd like to get over it."

"You probably will. Love's like the mumps. It hurts while it lasts, but it doesn't last forever."

Aunt Emily began to pick up the cushions from the grass and set the basket chairs up against the old willow tree.

"Let's go in and get something to eat, and then I'll walk down to the car line with you," she said. "Let's see, there's cold chicken and tongue and some tomatoes."

There were a good many other things on the table in the cool, peaceful dining room—peaches and cold biscuits, and two kinds of cake.

But Sally ate almost nothing. Aunt Emily noticed that while she chatted about the changes she was going to make in the house as soon as she started serving chicken dinners to the public.

"I'm going to have the dining room and parlor thrown into one room," she explained, looking through the doorway at the big shadowy room beyond the dining room.

It was the loveliest room Sally had ever seen. A room of faded flowery chintzes, dim old family portraits in gilt frames, and blue Bristol glass vases filled with Aunt Emily's fall roses.

All her life it had been a pleasure to Sally to think that she belonged to a family who had owned a room like that. It was the kind of room that fine, gentle people had lived in. People of good taste. People who had had a love for beautiful, simple things just as Sally herself loved them.

"I hate to think of your spoiling the house that way," she told Aunt Emily later when they were waiting in the hot thick darkness for a street car.

Her aunt grunted. "'The world do move,' my dear, and I'm going to keep moving with it!" she replied. "And I'm sick and tired of staying in my school-teaching rut any longer. If this new thing means giving up part of my house, I don't care! I wish you'd come into it with me."

Sally shook her head. "I can't," she said decidedly. "Not just now. We've a load of debts that have got to be paid off, and fall's coming on and we've all got to have new coats and things. No, I can't quit my job right now. It's a sure thing, and doesn't take all of my time."

Aunt Emily was silent for a minute. Then she said "Hmm!" She said it scornfully.

"Let's go in and have something to drink," she suggested, taking Sally's arm to lead her into the drug store on the corner.

"Two root beers," she told the clerk, and while he was fixing them she lifted the glass top over a plate of sandwiches on the marble counter.

"Just look at those dried-up things! And they get 10 cents apiece for them!" she whispered to her niece. "I know people will pay $2 for the kind of food I'm going to serve! I'll bet you anything that inside of a year, Sally Jerome, I'll own an automobile and have a fine, fat bank account, besides! I'm going to make money in this wayside inn business—and if you have any brains you'd better come in with me!" She was stubborn, was Aunt Emily, and she hated to take "No" for an answer when "Yes" was what she wanted.

But "No" was what Sally said once more. She said it regretfully for, like her aunt, she had a love of adventure. The thing untried was the thing that lured her always.

"I can't," she said. "If I had $100 ahead, I would. But I haven't got it."

For an instant she thought of the $100 that Millie had coaxed from her mother for new clothes.

"I might ask for that," she said to herself, but she knew it would be useless. Millie never gave up anything she wanted, once she got her soft, grasping hands upon it.

"All right! Give up everything for your family if you want to!" snapped Aunt Emily. "Now that Beau's married, there's no reason why your mother and Millie couldn't live on what they have for a while. Your mother gets her checks every now and then. She kept you all on them when you were little children."

"Yes, but she's turning them all over to Beau and Millie now!" Sally wanted to say, but she did not. She looked at her glass with downcast eyes and said nothing at all. No use to rattle the family skeletons before Aunt Emily.

"I carried all my family's burdens when I was your age," snapped Aunt Emily. "And look at me now—an old maid with barely enough to get along on! And I've made plenty of money in my day, Sally. I gave most of it away—to my family. They all had it from me—and not one of them ever paid me back or said 'Thanks,' either!"

Sally raised her eyes then and looked at her.

"I expect to be an old maid myself, Aunt Em," she said. "And I expect to be a poor old maid—and I'm not worrying over it. Somebody's got to look after mother and I'm glad I'm the one to do it. And somebody's got to look after Millie until she's married!"

"It looks to me as if she were going to marry this Nye," observed the older woman. "And if she does, I certainly am going to be sorry for him."

CHAPTER XXVII.

JOHN NYE'S big brown automobile was standing before the apartment house when Sally turned into the street that warm October night.

Its bright headlights silvered the pavement in front of it and dimmed the stars in the sky above it. As Sally came abreast of it, it gave a long loud siren call and Millie's gay voice called out to her:

"Hi, you, Sally! Where you been so long? We've been waiting for you almost an hour."

"Waiting?" echoed Sally, crossing the sidewalk and coming to a standstill beside the brown car. "Why were you waiting for me?"

In the darkness above the dashlight she could make out Millie's small white face and beyond it John Nye's dark one.

It was he who answered her.

"I'm making an 11 o'clock train tonight, Miss Jerome," he said. "And Millie's going to drive me down to the station and keep the car until I come back to town. I thought perhaps you'd drive down with us and then she wouldn't have to come back alone."

"Oh, yes—" Sally nodded her head in the darkness. "All right. I'll run upstairs first and see if mother has everything she needs."

"I did that, dear," said Millie, at her very sweetest. "She'll be all right until we get back." She leaned back in her seat and opened the rear door of the car.

But Sally hesitated. . . . Millie might not be telling the truth about her mother. Millie was more capable of warping the truth when it pleased her to do it.

"Did you give her her hot milk?" she asked uncertainly. "And find her glasses for her, and help her into her clothes for the night?"

"Oh, for heaven's sake, yes!" Millie snapped impatiently. "Do you suppose I'd say I had if I hadn't? And do you think I'd leave Mother if I didn't positively know she was comfortable? You know I wouldn't."

But Sally knew that she would if she felt like it.

She racked her brains, but she couldn't remember a single time when Millie had done anything toward making Mrs. Jerome comfortable and contented.

Quicksands of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

ALL IN READINESS TO SPRING THE TRAP ON JACK LESLIE.

I TURNED from the telephone after Lillian's call and put on my hat and a warm motor-coat in the same mechanical, half-dazed fashion which had characterized all my movements since Dick's awful accusation against me. Young Noel Veritzen's visit to me and my promise that I would aid him in rescuing the masked dancer from Jack Leslie's infamous plot seemed like the happening of years before.

Next I telephoned for a taxi and then, although speaking to Dicky was something akin to the ordeal of walking over burning plowshares, I walked to the place where he was watching the refrigerator in the kitchenette, and spoke quietly: "Lillian has just telephoned that she wishes me to take a taxi and come to her at once. I do not know when I shall be back. If she wishes me to stay all night, I will telephone you."

"Very well," he returned icily, and I went back to the living room to wait for the taxi, but with a sudden thought that Mary had seemed a bit feverish and hoarse at dinner time, I ran noiselessly up the private stairway from my room to hers, and stole softly toward her bed to see if she were all right.

She was lying in her usual attitude, curled up almost in a ball, her curly head buried in the pillow. But her cold evidently had made her restless, for she woke at my entrance and croaked sleepily:

"Auntie Madge, where are you going?"

"Mrs. Underwood wants me to come to her," I replied. "I am afraid she is ill."

"Oh! I'm sorry," she said. "Don't take cold yourself."

"Are you all right?" I asked her.

"Perfectly," she answered, and as the taxi horn just then punctuated her answer I said "good-night" and hurried away.

There was but one car in the block which Lillian had designated, a big limousine drawn up just beyond the entrance at the number she had given me. Hugh Grantland leaped out and came running to the taxi.

"Here," he said to the taxi driver, thrusting a bill into his hand. "We shan't need you any longer."

I saw Lillian leaning from the other car as Hugh rushed me across the street, and she made room for me beside her. She made no reference to the news which I knew Hugh had given her. But the clasp of her hands as she seized mine spelled volumes of sympathy. Her voice, however, was crisp and forceful.

"Do you see those brilliantly lighted windows on the third floor?" she asked, and I followed her gaze to the only illuminated spot in the dark building. "Those belong to Jack Leslie's apartment," she continued, "and they are supposed to be the scene of the 'party' he is staging for the masked dancer. That is what he promised her—a party—but he planned to be the only other person present. Lee Chow is already inside the house—oh! the power of gold on itching palms—and Hugh has a duplicate key to the hall door. We won't have long to wait now."

It was but a few minutes before a taxi came tearing down the street and drew up before the apartment entrance. Behind it, almost a block away, came a second. Lillian nudged me.

"Noel Veritzen, making sure of where Jack takes her," she said.

From the first taxi Jack Leslie descended and gave his hand to a figure so wrapped in a big fur coat that one could distinguish no detail of her appearance save that she was tall, slender and had unusually pretty legs. She appeared to hang back for an instant, then he led her up the steps, unlocked the door and they went inside. The taxi man drove away, and as he disappeared around the corner the second machine, which had stopped in the next block came up, and Noel Veritzen, pale, but with eyes glowing feverishly, came up to the limousine after dismissing his driver.

"It's all right, lad," Lillian said, putting a reassuring hand upon his arm. "Lee Chow is inside and all the rest of us will be just as soon as we are sure Leslie and the girl are safely in his own rooms."

He drew a deep breath of relief, his forehead was wet and he was trembling. Hugh Grantland stepped out of the car. Walking to the door of the apartment house, he opened it and stepped inside.

"Leslie doesn't know him," Lillian whispered, "so even if he does see him, he won't suspect anything."

But Hugh was back in another minute with the information that it was safe for us to come up, and after giving instruction to his chauffeur to back up to the door of the apartment house and keep his motor running, Hugh led the way back to the apartment house, and up the stairs to the third floor, and the rear of Leslie's apartment, where we crept through a door held ajar by Lee Chow.

That the room did not belong to Leslie's apartment, but was an unused one connecting with it, I surmised from the absence of any furniture, a discovery I made when Lee Chow's flashlight showed us where to stand. Then the Chinese spoke.

"No matter what you see or hear, make no noise until Mr. Grantland gives the word. Please, Mrs. Graham, you especially remember this."

For a moment we heard Leslie's voice in what was evidently some sort of explanation, and then a girlish voice with an undertone of terror in it, came clearly to our ears.

"Don't tell me any more lies. There is no party here, only yourself. Let me out of here this instant!"

It was Mary Harrison's voice, Mary, to whom I had said good night but a few minutes before, a good three miles away!

For the Lovelorn

Man With the Sardonic Smile

DEAR MISS GALE:

I would like very much to take up just a wee bit of space in your jolly column. I trust you will not treat me as an intruder. Rather, consider me an interested spectator, who, being a daily reader of your column, wishes to put in his oar. We of Britain have not the same conditions to contend with as have you people over here. Conditions that I have seen here in Pittsburgh and in other cities about the States would not be tolerated for a moment in my country. I have seen "parties" held night after night, which were considered quite "au fait" while we Britons held the line some years ago, but these happen to be right here in Pittsburgh with no such extenuating circumstances to excuse them. What is the reason for this, dear Miss Gale? Must the impression that one takes back with one be that America, especially the younger generation, is devoid of even the fundamentals of decency? Bless you, no. I do not mean all of you. I have met hosts of your captains of industry, all fine, upstanding men, but they are of the "Old Guards," the majority public school trained, with high ideals and all that sort of thing. What I mean is the type of men and women being turned out of your great universities. Spongers, idlers, filled with inflated notions of their own importance. Incompetent (I can give you many such instances) and most hopelessly hopeless. God pity them. The day is not far off when they will be made to realize the folly of their ways. But your pardon, Miss Gale. I might chatter away like this unceasingly, but it wouldn't change things one little mite. Thanks awfully for your time and space. Cheerio.

THE MAN WITH THE SARDONIC SMILE.

Do you find these conditions exclusively in America?

Buttercup.

DEAR MISS GALE:

Is it proper for a girl to write to a boy first? BUTTERCUP.

It is the boy's place to write first, if he wishes to begin a correspondence.

Potato Salad.

For dressing put 1 or 2 raw eggs in bowl, add salad oil and sweet cream, about ¾ cup; ¼ cup vinegar; pepper and salt to taste, about 1 teaspoon sugar. Beat with egg beater and mix in salad.

Baked Indian Pudding.

Soak 3 tablespoons tapioca 3 hours, then add ½ cup sugar, scant cup molasses, 3 tablespoons meal, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, lastly 1 quart milk. Bake 2½ or 3 hours, stirring every few minutes.

Milady Beautiful

By LOIS LEEDS

BEAUTY QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Reducing the Limbs.

DEAR MISS LEEDS—You helped a girl friend of my aunt's, so I am asking you to help me. (1) Is there anything to do to make fat arms slim? (2) How can fat legs be made slim? (3) What is good to remove blackheads? (4) How much should a girl weigh if she is 19 years old and 5 feet 3½ inches tall? MAE.

Answer—(1) If you are much overweight for your age and height you will need to diet as well as do special exercises for reducing arms and legs. Here are two exercises for the arms. (One) Stand erect with arms hanging at sides and fists clenched tightly, palms toward your body. Twist both arms outward until palms are facing out. Tense your muscles while you do the movement. Repeat until tired. Vary the exercise by doing it with arms held out at shoulder level and, again, with arms held above your head or out in front. (Two) Stand about three feet away from a sturdy table. Lean forward and place your hands on the table, keeping elbows straight. The exercise consists of slowly bending your elbows outward, thus lowering your chest to the table's edge but keeping your body straight from neck to heels. Do not bend at the knees or waist. (2) High kicking is excellent for fat legs. Suspend a pillow in a doorway at about shoulder height or a little lower, stand a few paces away from it and try to kick it with your toe. Other exercises for reducing heavy limbs are given in my leaflets "Care of the Arms" and "Care of the Legs." I shall be glad to send you copies of them if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for them. (3) Thorough cleaning of the skin every day is required in the treatment of blackheads. Wash your face with soap and warm water, using a complexion brush to rub in the lather. Rinse well first in warm then in cold water. Dry and pat on an astringent lotion like witch-hazel. Any blackheads that are "ripe" should be pressed out gently before the cold rinse. (4) About 120 pounds. LOIS LEEDS.

OATMEAL FOR OILY SKINS

Dear Miss Leeds—(1) My skin is oily. Will oatmeal bags remedy the condition? How are they made? Should soap be used also? (2) I have red hair and brown eyes; what colors should I wear? (3) I am 15 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh 117 pounds. Is that correct? RED.

Answer—(1) The oatmeal softens hard water and is soothing to the skin. It does not correct excessive oiliness, however. Put a heaping tablespoonful of the meal in a small clean piece of muslin or cheese cloth and tie it up into a bag shape. Immerse this bag in the wash basin in which you wash your face. Use soap and warm water to cleanse your skin. Rinse well in clean warm water. As a final rinse use a basinful of cold water to which you have added a few drops of tincture of benzoin. Please send for my leaflet on "Care of Oily Complexions" and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (2) If your skin is fair, as is usually the case with red-heads, you will look your best in green with a yellowish or bluish tone in a light shade. You may also wear almond green and reseda, taupe, gray, dark blue, pale orchid, pastel pinks in sheer fabrics, beiges, dark browns, cream, greenish yellow and black. (3) Yes. LOIS LEEDS.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR

H. H. N.—Yes. I consider the new ray method of permanent removal of superfluous hair safe and satisfactory. It is important to have an experienced operator, of course. So far as I know there are no unpleasant after-effects. LOIS LEEDS.

Something Really new . . . for the table

The whole world is knocking at Pittsburgh's door for the new cereal food discovered and perfected by the House of Heinz and the Heinz Fellowship at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

By a new process, owned exclusively by Heinz, rice has now been transformed into a fairy-like food with a popcorn flavor that instantly captivates every taste, stimulates lazy appetites, and satisfies hearty ones.

Heinz Rice Flakes are a revelation in constant delicacy and crispness, and they stay crisp in cream or milk.

Far more important than the delicious flavor are the health protecting qualities of Heinz Rice Flakes. The new process so utilizes the natural roughage of the rice that it imparts a moisture-absorbing property which is one of Nature's best eliminative aids.

Eat Heinz Rice Flakes! Children love them, too!

BELIEVE HUGHES WOULD ACCEPT NOMINATION

By LOUIS J. LANG.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—"I still think that President Coolidge will be renominated and re-elected."

Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, on his return from Europe made that reply to queries.

Confidants of Mr. Hughes aboard the Leviathan declared that from conversations with him they were convinced he would continue, out of loyalty to the President, to urge Mr. Coolidge's renomination.

They asserted, however, that if Hughes is told by the President, positively and finally, "I am out of consideration," he will permit his name to go before the national convention as the choice of New York state Republicans.

Hughes laughed when reminded that he had proclaimed:

"I am too old to run for President."

He said:

"I never felt so strong and well in my life. Long walks in France and Italy and a five-mile-a-day tramp about the Leviathan decks have put me in perfect physical condition."

HIP VACCINATION WOMEN INSIST

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Feminine vanity gave medical officers a difficult two hours on board the American merchant liner American Banker, which docked here from London with 75 passengers, a crew of 7o and the smallpox flag flying.

The smallpox was developed two days ago by Third Assistant Engineer Jack Tarleton. Although he was isolated at once, the port medical authorities detained for observation at Hoffman Island 16 members of the fireroom force who had been exposed.

Passengers and crew were vaccinated before any were permitted to land. After a committee representing women passengers, notified the physicians they would not submit to vaccination on their arms or legs, the medical staff requested them to decide where they would be vaccinated. A majority took their vaccine on the hip.

FORMER KAISER STILL HOPEFUL

By Universal Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—First hand proof that the former kaiser has not given up hope of restoring the throne appeared today with the publication of a telegram in which Wilhelm calls upon "the faithful" to work for the restoration of the monarchy.

Wilhelm telegraphed to Field Marshal Mackensen, commanding the reunion of the "One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Old Veterans" as follows:

"Happy thanks for the oath of fealty from the One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Potsdam old veterans.

"That which was gloriously established and then treacherously destroyed, you must once more strive to establish. God be with us."

MRS. GIBSON, PIG WOMAN, DYING

GAS MANTLE INVENTOR FOUND DEAD IN WOODS

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 6.—The body of Charles Longren, 77-year-old inventor who disappeared from his home, Mt. Magazine Page

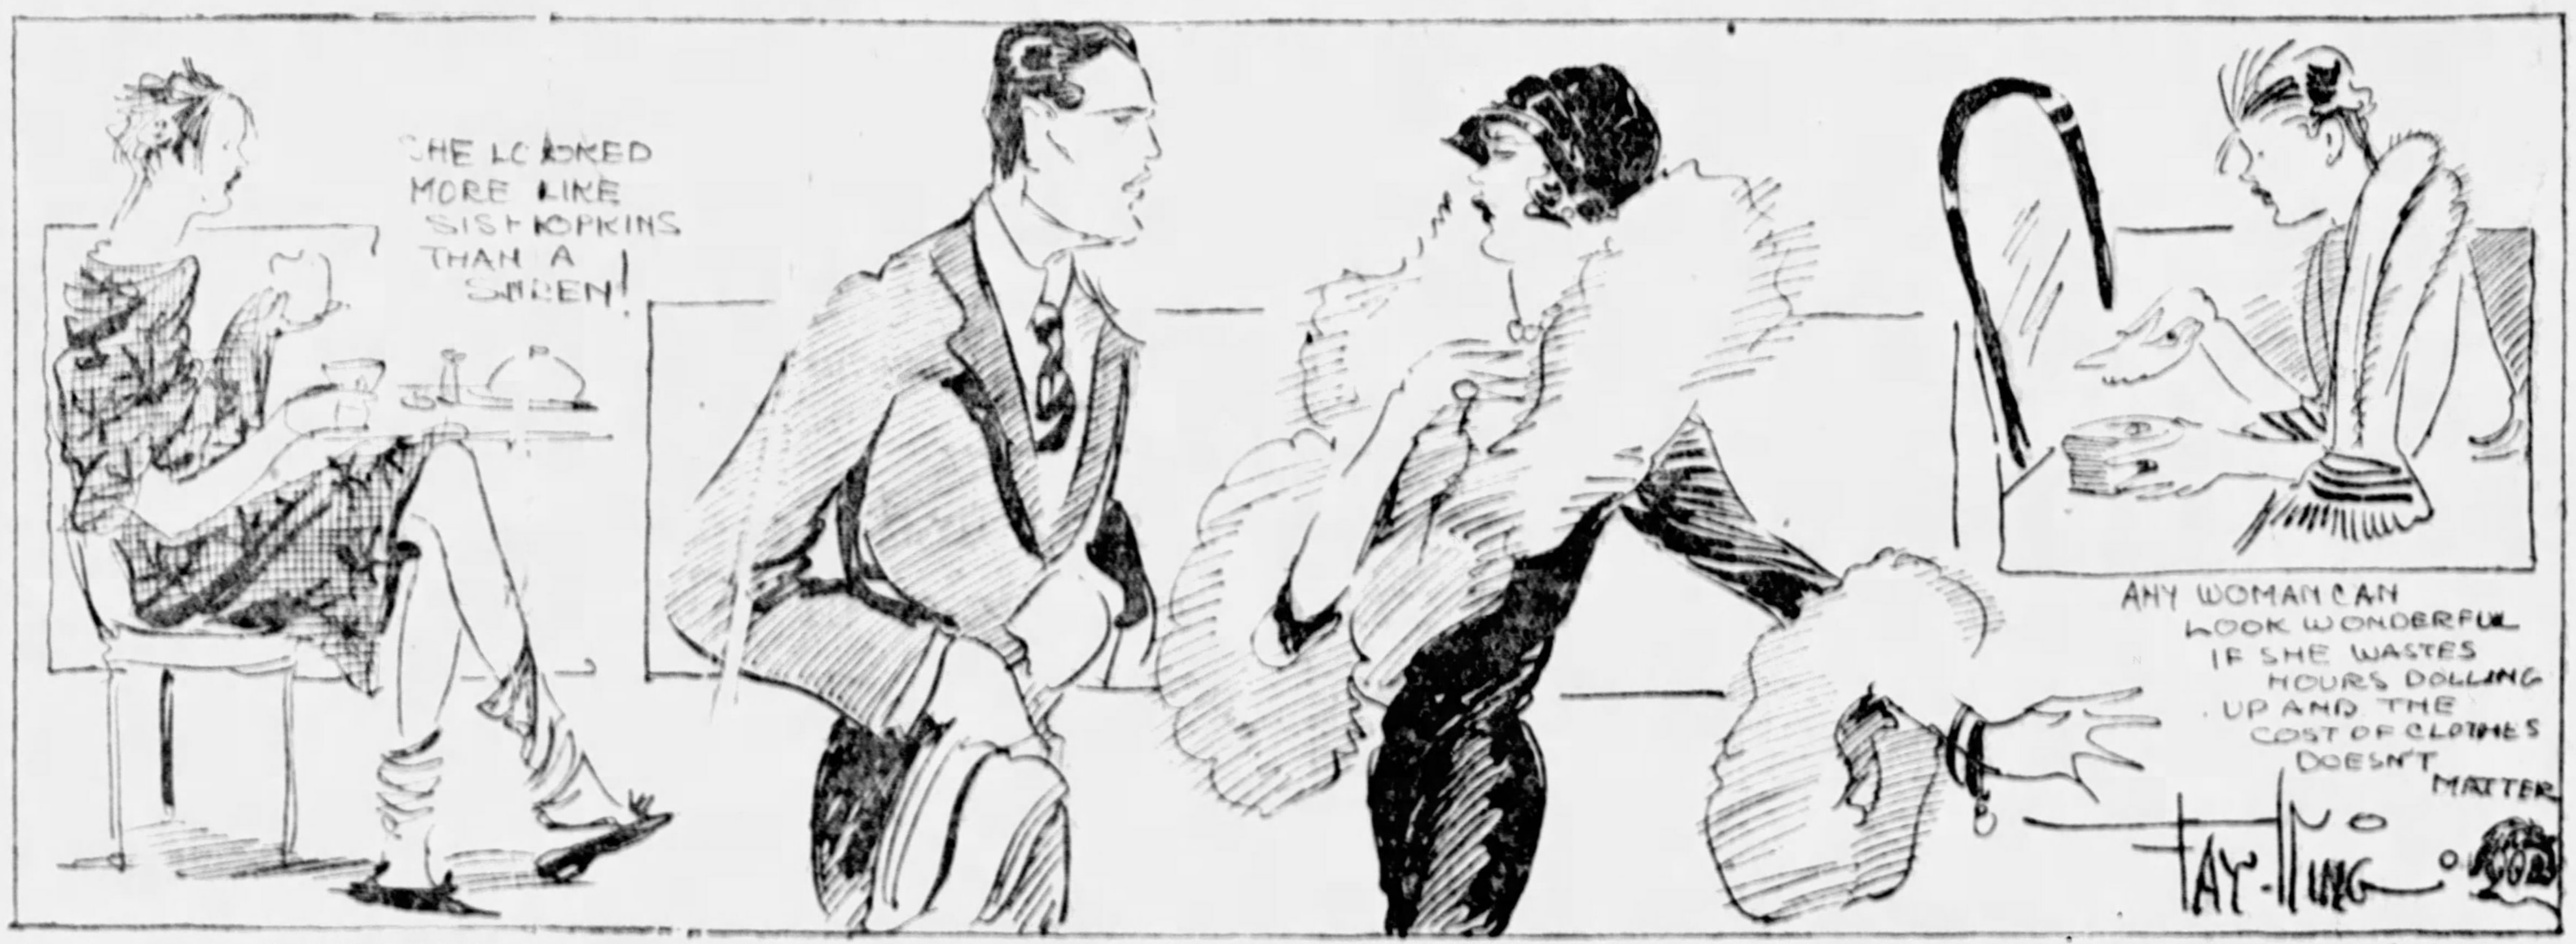
Richest Girl a Child of Twelve

THE richest girl in the world is said to be the 12-year-old daughter of the late J. B. Duke, the American tobacco "king," who left her about $150,000,000. Mr. Duke was the inventor of the popular "cigaret card."

Easy to Be a Siren by Dolling, Says Fay King



SHE LOOKED MORE LIKE SIS HOPKINS THAN A SIREN!
ANY WOMAN CAN LOOK WONDERFUL IF SHE WASTES HOURS DOLLING UP AND THE COST OF CLOTHES DOESN'T MATTER
FAY KING

By FAY KING

MEN who are dazzled by the beauty and well-dressedness of women they see and wonder why their own wives can't look as wonderful, should stop to think that if their wives spent as much time dolling up as these women do, and spent as much for their clothes, they might not only look as well, but even better!

Some of these "simple" dresses that look so inexpensive cost many times as much as the more elaborate over-trimmed things that one can pick up at a bargain.

Men who dole out a small weekly allowance to their wives and expect them to run the house, keep a good table, dress the children, and even save some of the money, must not expect them to look as well as the selfish women who put everything on their backs and spend more on marcels and facials than they ever would on children.

The plainest girl in the world can be put into the hands of a beauty expert and a fashionable modiste and in less time than you would believe it be turned out a vision of smartness and style.

But a woman who must run her house and raise her children and make $1 do the work of $2 cannot compete with the self-centered women who live only for themselves and their vanity!

It would perhaps have been even more of a shock to some of these admiring men had they seen one of the pretiest, best groomed girls I know as I saw her one morning at an impromptu breakfast we had together.

I couldn't believe that this "Sis Hopkins" was the siren I had always seen the picture of perfection!

It takes her from noon to dinner time to doll up the way she does when she dazzles all who see her.

When one considers the cost in time and dollars, it is not surprising that they look as well as they do, but that they don't look better!!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

PLENTY OF WATER ONE EXCELLENT TIP.

DR COPELAND

A FEW days ago the richest man in the world celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday. Mr. Rockefeller played golf and visited with his friends "hardly conscious of his great age."

As usual, this venerable man was asked for the rules responsible for his good health. Here they are:

1. Don't worry.
2. Don't acquire overweight.
3. Drink three quarts of water every day.
4. Exercise daily.
5. Sleep in fresh air.

Of course, I wouldn't worry much if I had Mr. Rockefeller's income! Would you?

But the trouble with the money business is that your funds have to be kept invested and safely invested. My observation of rich men convinces me they have much to worry over and I'm not surprised that they do worry.

Suppose I gave you [illegible], the principal of which you could not touch, but with the understanding that you must invest the income from the gift. How would you invest it?

This would worry you and I have no doubt most rich men are worried over the problem of investment. They are on pins and needles till they hear of Wall street's "closing quotations."

So when Mr. Rockefeller advises against worry he is voicing an admonition which applies to the rich quite as much as to the poor. It is good advice for everybody.

Acquiring overweight is a mistake. I refer to it as a "mistake" because in most instances it can be prevented.

It is foolish to practice all the violent methods recommended by those who would snatch weight from the body. Taking off flesh is a real undertaking, but Mr. Rockefeller chooses his words wisely when he says: "Don't acquire overweight."

That is the secret of slimness: Stay thin. Don't permit yourself to get fat.

The next bit of health advice is: Drink three quarts of water every day.

Perhaps three quarts is more than you need, but in addition to the fluid absorbed from the food, you shoul take at least two quarts of water daily. If you have a good heart and good kidneys, three quarts will be even better.

Everybody should drink eight glasses of water every day. How much do you take? Two glasses perhaps. No wonder you have constipation and indigestion. The waste materials cannot be dissolved and carried away without quantities of water.

To exercise daily and sleep in fresh air are fundamental health rules. They should be observed by everybody in the world.

My old friend Dr. Biggar, gave Mr. Rockefeller these rules of conduct. But Mr. Rockefeller is better than a lot of my patients—he does as he is told. My closing word today is this: Follow your doctor's advice and you will live to be 88. You may not get rich in money, but you will be rich in health, good temper and a multitude of friends.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

O. H. Q.—What is the average height for a boy aged 17?

2. Is there any way of increasing height?

A.—There is no specific height for any age.

2—I doubt it. You have four more years in which to grow.

Memories of Summer Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HERE we are home again, the summer holidays a thing of the past!

For two weeks, or two months, as the case may be, we have been breathing deep of the life-giving breath of Old Ocean, enjoying the gaiety of beach life with its swimming, sailing and motor-boating. Or possibly the mountains have been our vacation portion with their bracing air and deep woods. Whether you have sojourned on lake-shore, farm or river's brim, at the seaside or mountains, I trust your vacation has brought you home brimful of fresh, renewed energy and with delightful romantic memories.

Judging by past experience, letters will begin to pour in soon, telling me of vacation romances and the problems they represent. There may be accounts of flirtations that ended by being taken very seriously by one or both parties. There will be new engagements announced and old engagements broken as the result of those idle days and moonlit evenings.

There will be promises to correspond. There will be meetings in the midst of strenuous city life, leading to disillusionment.

Jack, who seemed so fascinating, heroic and romantic, when he acted as cowboy guide to the party at the Dude Ranch, may prove strangely ungainly in city clothes.

Oh, yes, vacation brings disillusionment or crushed hopes in more than one case.

May's vacation diary contained the following items among others:

"Tuesday: The last five days of my vacation and I've just found romance. For a dollar apiece for an afternoon, the handsomest sea captain I ever saw will take us out from the hotel to see different interesting places along the coast. I shall always sit next to him.

"Wednesday: He saved the lives of three men in a launch today when their shaft propeller or something broke. My hero!

"Thursday: He got something in his eye during our sail today and I fished it out. How romantic it would be to live in a cottage by the sea and be a captain's wife. He's handsomer than ever!

"Friday: He introduced me today to his fat wife and three fat children. My heart is broken!"

But after all, should vacation romance last?

Why should a vacation friendship outlast a vacation mood?

What is vacation for, anyway? A wholesome, good time, of course. And that is what a vacation friendship is for, also. So why waste time in regrets, even though you never hear of Tom or Dick or Charlie again?

What does it matter, even though Frank, when he looks you up in the city, seems a bit cheap and shallow and is obviously disappointed in you as a winter girl since he does not fall again? By force of contrast you will give more appreciative value to that quiet friendship with Hal. Even though Hal is not especially thrilling, he is such a "comfy," dependable friend that you decide to answer "yes" when he proposes again.

Vacation romance memories sometimes last as long as life—and are repeated in succeeding vacations. To have lastingly sweet memories, keep a sane sense of values and bring your own high valuation of yourself, your consideration for others with you on every vacation.

Regardless of whether it brings one word of love-making, a real vacation is the essence of romance, for it brings joy, adventure, beauty, fun and the regeneration born of Mother Nature's welcome home to her wandering children.

May your vacation memories inspire you to a healthier, happier, more successful year of work and play and so lead to lasting romance through marriage to The Man.

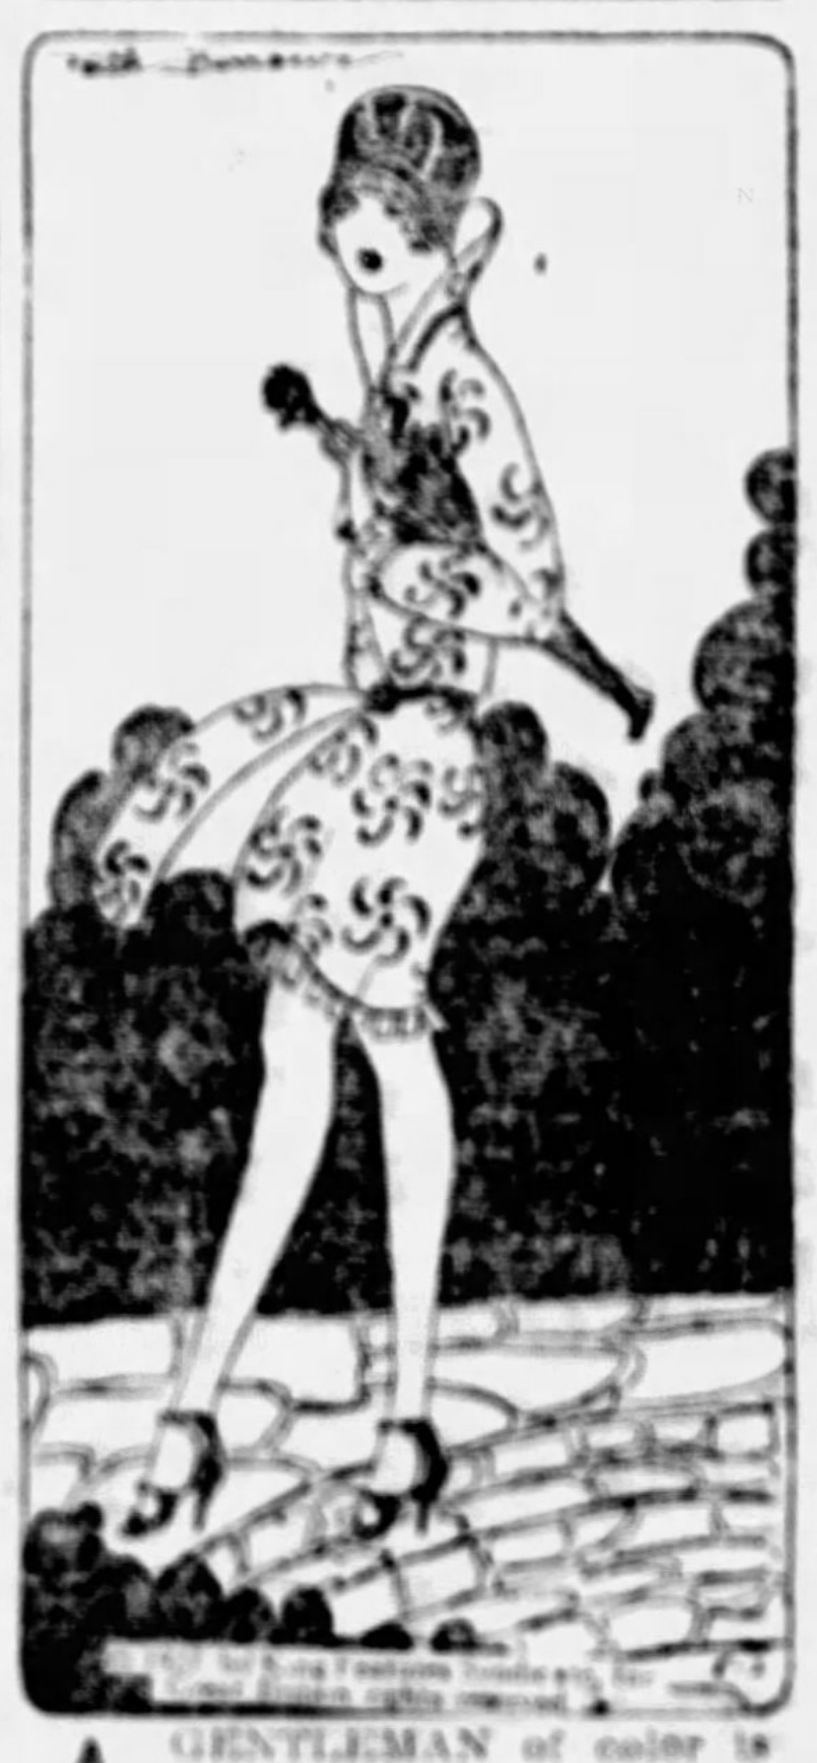
Ritzy Rosey



A GENTLEMAN of color is gleefully wrapped in the silken folds of Ritzy Rosey's newest umbrella. Although it is not unusual to see heads of animals, birds or humorous characters serve as umbrella handles, it is rarely that feet are displayed. Her transparent silk slicker is gaily flowered.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

1. How near the earth was the June comet?
2. Where do we get our word "wassail?" What does it mean?
3. Where do we get our word "ceramics" for the art of pottery making?
4. What is the highest temperature the human body can reach and still live?
5. What is the Alhambra?
6. What city has been called "The Northern Venice?"
7. When did the Dominion of Canada begin to exist?
8. How did "Uncle Sam" come to stand for the United States?
9. What country was once called "The Robinson Crusoe of Nations?"
10. Who was the inventor of modern water-color painting?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Spain introduced the slave trade into America.

2. All substances are composed of molecules. Each molecule may be a single atom, a few atoms of the same kind, or an association of groups of atoms of different kinds.

3. The country that Napoleon called "a political curiosity" was Andorra, Republic of the Pyrenees. It was founded in 805 A. D. by Charlemagne, and has about 5,000 inhabitants.

4. Paris is built on an island which is said to have been inhabited by the Parisii. They left the island to keep from being captured by Caesar, who built a wall and temple on the island. A town sprang up which took its name from the tribe which first inhabited the island. It dates from 53 B. C.

5. There are now 90 known different chemical elements.

6. When the great Italian painter Giotto was commanded by his master, Cimabue, to give evidence of his skill as a draughtsman and painter, Giotto offhand drew a nearly perfect O, a very difficult feat.

7. A cathedral is wherever the "cathedra," or bishop's seat is located. Here he gathers his presbyters about him and sends them forth on their various missions.

8. The Black Hole of Calcutta was a dungeon 20 feet square into which 146 persons, men and women, were thrust by the Rajah of Bengal in 1756. Nearly all died.

9. The smallest kingdom in the world is Monaco. It is [illegible] miles in circuit, including Monte Carlo.

10. The first "King of Great Britain" was James I of England and VI of Scotland. He ascended the throne in 1602.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, September 7

According to astrology, this should be a rarely fortunate day in which the stars stimulate the dwellers on the planet Earth.

It is a rule most auspicious for persons of high ambitions and should bring good luck to those who have already won success.

Politically, the men who hold office are supposed to be most lucky and able to continue the realization of their best-laid plans.

This is an auspicious sway for those who seek employment or advancement.

There should be special good luck for all who belong to the profession of journalism, for they will find much demand for their services.

Good returns are promised for those who advertise while this planetary government prevails.

This is a lucky wedding day, making not only for continued happiness, but for great prosperity and progress.

Theaters and all places of amusement should benefit under this direction of the stars.

The evening is read as unusually fortunate for any sort of entertainment.

Women are peculiarly well directed at this time, when they are to receive much recognition for public service, and particularly for important reform work.

Treachery affecting the international relations of foreign powers is foretold, and it will be most disturbing to Great Britain.

New honors for American diplomats are indicated, and among them two will gain great fame, it is prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of an eventful year, in which marriage for the young is probable.

Children born on this day probably will be uniformly happy and successful all through life. They should be lucky in love.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

WHY SUCCESSFUL WOMEN ARE LONELY

HELEN ROWLAND

Whenever I see a brilliant, capable, successful woman about to marry a nice, normal, efficient he-man, I close my eyes and shudder.

Because I know that one of two tragedies is bound to happen!

Either she is going to begin softening his backbone, vertebra by vertebra, by lifting all the responsibilities off of it.

Or, when the irresistible force of her ambition meets the immovable body of his masculine will and self-respect, there is going to be a terrible cataclysm! With broken hopes, shattered dreams and all sorts of wreckage in its wake.

A lot of women are born capable and efficient, and a lot of men are born sweet and beautiful and timid and spineless—and these make perfect mates.

Of course, it is painful to envisage a strong, fine, intelligent woman gazing tenderly down into the eyes of a sweet, adoring man and calling him her dear little helpmate. But, after all, if a woman MUST have a career, and hold the reins, why shouldn't she be satisfied with a "second" as a husband?

That is much fairer than taking a potentially fine, upstanding man and incidentally ruining him by making life too soft and easy for him. For, next to canned lobster, nothing on earth is so easily SPOILED as a man! Take him off the ice of hard work and put him in the sun of ease and contentment, and he becomes soft and impossible, in no time.

* * *

Love of hard work is something that the Lord put into awfully few men; and it is only the thought of some tender, helpless little golddigger, waiting for him to bring home the bacon, the Rolls-Royces and the pearl necklaces that keeps the average man working at all, and spurs him on to achievement.

* * *

On the other hand, the Lord DID make a lot of ineffectual weaklings and Do-littles, and SOMEBODY has got to take care of them. So why doesn't the brave bold girl with the strong right arm just accept one of these, and keep him for a PET?

* * *

Of course, nature is nature! And no matter how capable and successful a woman may be, she is still a WOMAN, and admires and longs for a capable, efficient he-man mate.

* * *

She may THINK that she is satisfied with ambition and work and her own latch-key. But all the time, her heart is crying out for love and babies and a big, strong shoulder to lean on. She may despise a gold-digger, but secretly she gets a lot more thrill out of having some man "give her things" than she does out of buying them for herself.

* * *

But you can't have EVERYTHING in this world. And a career and matrimony are the oil and water that won't mix. To a successful woman, a husband can be only an after-thought or a background—and that's what she ought to be content with.

* * *

It's a rare woman who can be a hundred per cent business success and a hundred per cent wife at the same time. And if you can't be an ideal wife, why demand an ideal husband? You won't get one, anyway!

Dorothy Dix Says:

A FEW YEARS HENCE "A LADY" WILL BE RARE ENOUGH FOR A MUSEUM SPECIMEN.

DOROTHY DIX

A MOTHER of my acquaintance was boasting the other day that her son was going to marry a lady.

"I thought the species was as extinct as the dodo," commented some one cynically. "All the young girls I know pride themselves on being considered 'good sports' and on their ability to drink and swear and tell off-colored stories, and, generally, to smash all the inhibitions that bound a young person in my day."

"That's true," responded the mother. "Girls who are ladies are so rare that probably in another generation the few remaining specimens will have been gathered together in the museums and we will be paying out money to behold them, as we do to see the other relics of prehistoric civilization.

"That is why I think my son is so extremely fortunate to have won one for a wife. For, say what you like, there is a grace and a charm and a distinction—a something apart—which sets a lady above the so-called modern girl, with her free ways and her ruthless disregard of conventions.

IT IS curious how this subtle distinction between the lady and the girl who isn't quite a lady shows itself. Take the matter of clothes, for instance. Mary's father has plenty of money and she dresses beautifully. Her frocks are the last word in smartness, but they are always modest.

"You never have the feeling that she undressed herself to come to a ball and that her costume is better designed for the privacy of the boudoir than for a public place. There is an extra layer of chiffon or an inch more to the skirt that takes away from the nakedness and that makes her costume the frock of an ingenue instead of a demimondaine.

"Mary is pretty and popular and has had plenty of beaux, but she has never found it necessary to buy attention from men by letting them kiss her and pet her and paw her over.

"Indeed, I doubt if any man has ever had the audacity even to offer her such familiarities, for there is such an aura of innocence and purity about her, of maidenly reserve, that the dullest man would not fail to perceive it, nor the most sensual fail to respect it.

"OF COURSE, men will always rub the down from the peach if they are permitted to do so and there are plenty of them who apparently don't mind a rose being bruised and soiled by being too much manhandled before they pick it up in the road, but they will never have the reverence for the girls who have let their lips be a free-lunch counter, so to speak, for every man who came along that they have for the girls who have kept themselves unspotted from the world and who have saved their first kiss for their sweethearts.

"Mary likes fun. She is no killjoy, no prunes-and-prisms type who is in a perpetual state of being shocked at the wickedness of the world; but she has never been on a wild party and she never drinks.

"There is nothing that would appeal to her taste in drinking vile, crude, bootleg liquor out of some man's hip-flask. She would not find it amusing to spend an evening in going from disreputable roadhouse to roadhouse with a crowd of intoxicated men and women, who had so far taken leave of their senses that they were literally not responsible for what they did.

"While, as for getting drunk herself, perish the thought that she could ever be like one of those beautiful girls with staggering feet and bleary eyes and disordered clothes showing [illegible] their escorts that one sees in restaurants or deathly sick being hustled by waiters to the dressing room.

"MARY is bright and vivacious and an interesting talker, but she never tells off-colored stories nor does she consider it necessary to discuss sex subjects, as so many young girls do, that their mothers only talked over with the family physician.

"Mary is quite aware that this generation didn't discover sex, as it thinks it has done. She knows that it is an old story about which everything has been said long ago, so it had just as well be accepted as a fact that one knows about but doesn't consider news with which to startle one's neighbors.

"Once I saw a man try to tell Mary a naughty story. She didn't hang her head or blush or make any protest. She simply looked at him with uncomprehending eyes, as if she hadn't an idea of what it was all about, and he broke off in the midst of it, for the dirtiest-minded man in the world hasn't the nerve to explain a filthy joke to an innocent girl.

"And Mary has the manners of a lady. She doesn't blurt out the first thing that pops into her head without regard to whether it will hurt or offend or not.

"SHE will never be quarrelsome and naggy. She will never have fights with her husband at the breakfast table. She will never say mean things to him, because she is a lady, and a lady couldn't do those things. And even if she bosses her husband, she will do it diplomatically—the iron hand in the velvet glove—instead of vulgarly henpecking him.

"And so I am delighted that my son is going to marry a lady. It takes a lot of assorted virtues to make a woman a good wife, but being a lady is the greatest of them all."

HE'S A STANDOUT FOR THAT MOST VALUABLE PLAYER PRIZE

What's all the shootin' about with regard to the "race" for the prize annually awarded to the most valuable player in the National League? They're talking about Gabby Hartnett, and Frankie Frisch, and Charley Root and others in the same breath with Paul Waner, the "hitting fool" of the Pirates—the guy who's always batting home his brother Lloyd and the other fellows who happen to be populating the sacks. The other day Paul belted his two hundredth hit and he's made several since. He's the first player in the big leagues to pass the double century mark, being well ahead of Lou Gehrig, who is leading the American League race. It's never a question of whether Paul made a hit in a game. It's always "How many did he get?" Generally it's three or four or five. He's one of the most natural hitters that ever threw a nightmare into a pitching staff. The most valuable player race really isn't a contest—it's a walkaway for Paul.

Davis Cup Safe--Harry Seymour

by JAMES J. LONG

ENUMERATING your poultry before the hatching process has been complated is an inadvisable proceeding, according to an oracle of old, and there still is an "if" of considerable size to be reckoned in connection with Pittsburgh's pennant chances in the most uncertain of all sports.

But in taking a chance on the hidden hazards of the remaining weeks of the season and speculating on some world series matters, the fact presents itself that in the event of the Pirates taking part in the October classic they will go into the big struggle with one of the smallest squads of eligible players in the history of baseball's blue ribbon.

OUTFIELDER ADAM COMOROSKY and Pitcher George Peery, who reported to Manager Owen Bush here yesterday, and Pitcher Walter Tauscher, who is due to arrive tomorrow, will not, of course, be eligible for the world series if the Buccaneers win out.

Nor will any other new players who may join the local team later.

The player limit of 25, which went into force on June 15, has been off since August 31, and each major league club may now carry as many as 40 athletes if it desires. But August 31 was the deadline for world series eligibility, and any player who was not with the pennant-winning club in either major league on that date will not be allowed to participate in any world series game.

In this connection it may be stated on the best of authority that Comorosky, Peery and Tauscher, as well as other recruits or veterans added to the roster later, will not be the only Pittsburgh players ineligible to take part in the world series if the Corsairs bag the National League bunting.

ONE other Pirate whose name will not get into the world series box scores if Pittsburgh is a principal is Pitcher Johnny Morrison. President Barney Dreyfuss had made up his mind on that point.

The only word received from Morrison since he was suspended and ducked away to his home in Kentucky came in a recent letter to President Dreyfuss, in which the pitcher said he was ill and asked for some money.

It developed that there was some back salary coming to Johnny, as the Pirate owner, at the pitcher's request, had retained part of his pay in 1925 and 1926, and invested it for him at a goodly rate of interest.

The Pittsburgh magnate, therefore, acceded at once to Morrison's request on that point, but as for reinstating

DEPENDS ON JOHNSTON, LOCAL DEAN SAYS

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

COMES for a visit Harry Seymour, the dean of local tennis men. Harry is by way of departing for the East to take in the Davis Cup matches. He's leaving a bit early for his annual lark—hobnobbing with the big men of the sport before the fireworks get under way. For years Harry has been the tennis oracle of these parts and there isn't a man anywhere in the world who, for our money, knows more about tennis, past, present and future, from the viewpoint of both playing and politics. That's a broad statement, but she goes as she lies.

HARRY is not overly worried about the United States' chances of losing the international matches. He thinks we'll pull through, all right. It all depends, he says, on Little Bill Johnston, the California paperweight midget, who has the best record of all of our Davis Cup stars, having lost only one match in 14 played in the singles and doubles. If Johnston is right, there'll be nothing to it, as Harry views the situation.

The impression seems to be rampant that our Big Bill Tilden is overtennised and our Little Bill Johnston undertennised. Harry thinks Big Bill will pull another of his great rallies on this occasion and be himself again and that Little Bill will come through.

"I notice," quoth Harry, "that there seems to be some doubt about whether or not the French will play Cochet in the singles. If they don't, they're crazy, and will be beaten before they start. He's the best bet they have."

IT IS one of Seymour's delights that Chuck Garland, the former darling of the local courts, and a member of the United States Davis Cup squad during his college days at Yale, will be manager of the United States forces this year. He will be master of strategy, and his word will go in any jams that may come up, thereby avoiding a repetition of some stormy scenes caused by differences of opinion in the past. Chuck carries the same cool, level tennis head on his shoulders that his father had before him, and the elder Garland, at the time of his death, some years ago, was high in the councils of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. It is an important role that young Chuck is filling this year, but his local friends are confident he will do it full justice.

Chuck now is making his home permanently in New York, where he represents a Pittsburgh firm. It used to be a treat to see him, when he was a kid sensation around here, make veterans defeat themselves through their own errors. He was the studious type and made every move on the courts count. He simply didn't make any mistakes and by his steadiness gradually beat down the morale of his opponents and the first thing the gallery would know the opponent would crack and start hammering everything back into the net or out of court or would find himself caught flatfooted out of position and unable to make a recovery as Chuck slammed one down the alley.

We have asked Seymour to carry our good wishes to Chuck. Many's the time he gave us a pleasant exhibition of the ART of tennis as it should be played.

WHILE he was here last week, we tried to pin down Frank Moran, the former local heavyweight contender, on what he thought of the impending Dempsey-Tunney return bout, but he wouldn't go any farther than to say that while it lasted he thought it would be one of the greatest heavyweight title battles of recent times, because of the grudge element connected with Dempsey's keen desire to avenge last year's defeat.

"And, anyway," declared the man who fought Jack Johnson 20 rounds in Paris and Jess Willard 10 rounds in New York while they held the title, "how can anyone say definitely so far in advance what will happen? Let me look at the two men 24 or 48 hours before they step into the ring, and I'll give you some idea of what I think, and it will be close to correct. I know that many things can happen on the eve of a big fight. A man can lose his form or suddenly find himself. In fact, that can happen in the last hour before the gong rings."

That's inside stuff from a man who has been through the mill and should know.

OAKMONT OARSMEN THIRD

BALTIMORE, Sept. 6.—The Oakmont Boat Club, entered in the junior double sculls event in the thirty-sixth annual Middle States regatta, finished a poor third yesterday when the races were held on the Patapsco River. The Oakmont scull, carrying Robert T. Roche and Robert Mawhinney, took third place because one of the four entries, the shell of the Arundel Boat Club, withdrew when Harry Susemihl collapsed.

Although Roche and Mawhinney rowed a strong race, they were outclassed by the other entries.

He was hitting around .380 when Garry Herrmann & Co. put out a fortune for him.

Divisions Announced For Hearst Shoot

Col. George McD. Weeks, War Department referee of the William Randolph Hearst rifle trophy matches among the R. O. T. C. units and educational institutions throughout the country, announced today the divisions which will compete in the sectional and national honors of the annual competition.

The sectionalizing by Col. McD. Weeks and his aides was based both on the locality and numerical strength of the schools in the United States and possessions. Each of the sections will carry trophies and medals for the highest teams standing in the three classifications, i. e., university and colleges, high schools and military academies. In addition the national perpetual trophies and gold medals are to be awarded to the teams winning the country-wide championships.

The states included in each division follows:

Middle West—Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

West—Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, Territory of Hawaii.

East—Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Porto Rico, Pennsylvania.

South—District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Arkansas.

It is also intended to slightly change the rules of former championships requiring even more keenness of vision and steadiness to win. The new plans have been submitted to Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States Army at Washington, D. C., for his approval. It is expected within the very near future details will be sent to the commanding general of each corps area with instructions that they co-operate fully in making 1927-28 matches the greatest ever held.

Sun-Tele Again First With Hot News On Pirates

The Sun-Telegraph scored two more "beats" on hot Pirate baseball news today.

It was first to announce that Kiki Cuyler would be benched in today's game in favor of Adam Comorosky, the recruit recalled from the Western League, which probably means the end of Cuyler as a fixture in the Corsair lineup.

And, while another local afternoon newspaper printed a story that neither Comorosky nor Pitcher George Peery, recalled with him from Wichita, had yet arrived in town, the Sun-Tele carried a picture of the pair in all editions today. It was snapped at Forbes Field yesterday afternoon immediately after their arrival at the park.

mark," he said, "and Comorosky has been hitting around .390 for Wichita all season. I am going to give him a chance to continue his good work and, if he fails to come through, Cuyler may get another chance and may be ready then.

The meeting was attended only by newspapermen aside from Bush and the officials of the club.

Owner Dreyfuss ridiculed a report that a deal already has been arranged whereby Cuyler will be sent to Cincinnati at the end of the season, possibly along with Pitcher Johnny Morrison, in exchange for First Baseman Wally Pipp, Catcher Bubbles Hargrave and Pitcher Luque.

"It's the bunk," was his cryptic comment.

BREWER STAR SUSPENDED FOR REFUSAL TO PLAY

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Frank Wilson, Milwaukee American Association club outfielder, has been indefinitely suspended because of his refusal to play unless paid immediately a bonus of $1,000, which he claims was promised him verbally by the late Otto Borchert if he hit .300.

The outfielder, who was obtained from the Boston Nationals with Harry Riconda for Lance Richbourg, was told by Henry J. Killilea, attorney for Mrs. Ruby Borchert, club owner, to play in Sunday's game and then see Mrs. Borchert concerning the alleged agreement.

This Wilson did not do, and the suspension followed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The two-year-old filly Anita Peabody, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, is en route to New York to run in the rich Belmont Futurity September 17. The filly, beaten only once in her racing career, exhibited fine workouts, inducing her owner to ship her East yesterday for the Futurity, accompanied by Wild Notes and Joan D'Albert, two other Leona Farm horses.

RUFUS TANKINS ENTERS LEGION MARATHON RACE

Rufus Tankins of the Edgar Thomson Steel Athletic Association has sent in his entry for the modified marathon race of 11 miles, which is to precede the track and field meet to be held at Edgar Thomson Park, Braddock, on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of Post 99 of the American Legion.

TRIANGLES TO MEET

The Pittsburgh Triangle Club will hold its pre-season basketball meeting Thursday evening at the home of Sherwood Henderson, 314 Bucyrus street, Elliott, at 8 o'clock. The following last year's players are requested to be present: Gergy, Gundler, Stick, Kirk, Rice, McAllister, Carothers, Karpinski, Boer and Weaver, also any other player wishing a tryout with this aggregation.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

THE cracking of the Chicago Cubs this season recalls the cracking of the Pirates of 1921. Of course, the Cubs still have a chance to come back this year, but the schedule is against them, and Pittsburgh and New York seem to be the logical candidates to battle down the stretch for first place.

HAVEY BOYLE.

Where the present Cubs are less unfortunate than the Pirates of 1921 is in sane analysis of their blow-up, an analysis denied the Pirates of 1921. While the baseball world is willing to say that the Cubs are an inferior club, which at no time had any great right to first place, the baseball world six years ago said harsh things about the Pirates.

In the east the experts were pretty well convinced that the Pirates of 1921 cracked due to just one reason, and that reason was that they had insufficient courage. A plainer word, descriptive of a symbolic color, was applied to the Pirates by the stern experts and their voices were so loud that they drowned the vain protests of Pittsburgh writers who refused to indulge in any such psychological analysis, but rather pointed out that the 1921 Pirates, after all, were an inferior ball club.

The Pirates of 1921 had an outfielder, Barnhart, at third base, and had only a fair second baseman, Tierney. The outfield was composed of Bigbee, Carey and Whitted. Gooch and Schmidt were the catchers. The best strength of the club lay in the pitching staff, Morrison, Cooper, Glazner, Hamilton and Adams, and in Maranville and Grimm, shortstop and first base, respectively. The club had little speed as a whole, but played a tight defensive game and almost stole the pennant from the superior Giants.

THE Giants had Cunningham, Young and Meusel in the outfield; Bancroft, Frisch, Kelly, Groh and Rawlings as infielders; Snyder and Smith as catchers, and two great pitchers in Douglas and Nehf. By almost any calculation that array was superior to the Pirates, but because the Pirates lost five games in one series to this superior club the cry went up in the East that the Pirates lacked nerve.

As a matter of fact the Pirates going into New York for that memorable series had little to be nervous about as they enjoyed a lead of seven and a half games. They lost five straight because the Giants were at their best, the Pirates at their worst, and on top of this every conceivable break went in favor of the New Yorkers.

IN the winter after the fearful blow-up, and when all kinds of stories were being sent around the circuit, stories mean as they were erroneous, it was Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, who had the right viewpoint, a viewpoint which stands up in the cold light of history. He said that George Gibson almost won a pennant with a third place ball club. And that was true.

But every reason, except the real

On the left is George Peery, a sorrel-topped left-hander of 20 summers who appears to have a bright future as a pitcher. Peery made the spring training trip with the Pirates and later was farmed to Wichita of the Western League, where he has been a consistent winner. The other boy is Adam Comorosky, star outfielder, who was batting close to .400 when called in from Wichita. He started in middle field for the Pirates today. The two recruits arrived late yesterday and were snapped immediately by a photographer for the Sun-Telegraph.

Guel won the annual Labor Day cup at the Greensburg Country Club yesterday with a gross score of 91 and a handicap of 25, giving him a net score of 66 to win the event. J. L. Bair and D. F. Mullane were second with 67, while F. V. Schlag and R. C. Copeland tied for third with 68. The fall handicap tournament will be held this month. Qualifying rounds will be held September [illegible] to September 17 and will be 36 holes.

Robbie Won't Quit, He Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Max Carey isn't likely to succeed Wilbert Robinson as manager of the Brooklyn club, even though the veteran outfielder temporarily will take over the reins, probably next week, while "Uncle Robbie" is on a scouting trip in the West.

Robinson advised today of reports he might abandon the helm, denied he had any intention of doing so, this year or next, explaining that Carey, as field captain, was the logical man to direct the club during his absence. Robbie expects to leave the team at St. Louis to scout the minors for new talent.

FLYNN BARS FANS FROM CAMP

LINCOLN FIELDS, CRETE, Ill., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Secret training began for Jack Dempsey today, with the crowds that have thronged the clubhouse lawn for the last week no longer welcome.

The hubbub and comment on Dempsey's ring workouts while he was trying to perfect a shift to escape right-hand swings has disturbed the former champion and his manager, Leo Flynn. Only newspapermen will be admitted to the race track camp now.

Dempsey yesterday visited for the first time the scene of his approaching title bout. The Labor Day celebration in the Soldier Field Stadium attracted the former champion as he came to town to have dinner with his wife and stopped long enough to make an appearance as referee in a boxing match on the Labor Day program.

The stadium held about 40,000 and as Dempsey entered he was greeted with an ovation accompanied by wild cheers and the throwing of hats and seat cushions.

For the next two days the former champion plans to take things easy. Two days of boxing and two days of rest appears to be Flynn's program.

"Jack is still eager to go," Flynn said, "and that's the way we want to keep him."

one, was advanced for the decline of the Pirates. Even the singing of the jolly Pirate quartet was blamed for the debacle, as if music in battle ever hurt an attacking force, not especially intent in a surprise advance. As a matter of fact it was the high spirit, the spirit of hustle engendered by a harmonious group, which allowed the inferior club to get within striking distance of the flag. Its decline and eventual demise was the most natural thing in the world, but you couldn't tell that to the boys who are such students of the mind that they can tell the mental makeup and the mental reactions of 25 different men in 1,000 different situations.

So far, no one has been unkind enough to say anything as mean about the Chicagoans of this year as was said about the Pirates of 1921. The same kind of a ball club is bowing, simply, to superior opposition, superior opposition thwarted for a time by injuries, but too strong to be long denied once the hospital list was eliminated.

THE Cubs have been a tight defensive ball club, led by the great Root, aided by splendid morale, by a good leader, and by the breaks that such a club needs to keep in front. The nature of the breaks was found in the fact that the Cubs went along all season without losing for any long stretch of time any of the regular players.

IN their present decline, Chicago may rest assured that Pittsburgh attributes only plain facts to their failure, and declines to delve into the shadowy psychology about which so many were positive in berating the Pirates of 1921.

A club with only one outstanding man in the infield, Grimm, and a club that needs juggling its infield makeup, has no apologies to make for leading the procession as long as the Cubs led it.

But it would not be surprising to hear a little later on about the weak-hearted Cubs and the old fighting spirit of the club which eventually wins.

NOW weakness of heart and the old fighting spirit may lose or win pennants, but those who can see such abstract things must be ranked as considerably shrewder than those who go only on the material things they see: injuries, base hits, good pitching and the breaks.

To the boys who berated the Pirates of 1921 we recommend the Cubs, first cousins of the Pirates of 1921, having much the same makeup. Rather than condemning the Chicagoans, fans are inclined to sympathize with them, and at least recall their fine exploits during the time they were battling at the top.

FAIRWAY WINS HISTORIC CHAMPAGNE STAKES

DONCASTER, Eng., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A derby possibility of next year was uncovered when Lord Derby's two-year-old colt Fairway won the historic Champagne stakes this afternoon by two lengths.

Marshal Field's brown filly Nancy was second, two lengths in front of J. Courtauld's colt Cyclonic. Nine of the best two-year-olds on the turf went the distance of six furlongs for stakes of about $11,000.

Scoring, What We Mean!

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Three players chalked up a golf record of a hole in one, an eagle, a birdie and a par on the 145-yard sixth hole of the Indian Springs Club Sunday. It is a par 3 hole. Al Price shot the hole in 1.

BLUFFMEN START SCRIMMAGE

Feeling that his charges have had sufficient calisthenics and preliminary work to bring them around to a semblance of that physical condition demanded by football, Head Coach Elmer F. Layden, of Duquesne University, has instituted short scrimmage sessions for the Bluff school candidates.

Two sessions a day are still being held by the Duke mentor, and although he has not as yet singled out any of his 65 candidates, he has been able to keep almost all the boys busy throughout the drills.

M'KEESPORT OLYMPICS TO HAVE GRID TEAM

The Olympic football team, which has represented McKeesport in independent football for many years, several times winning the championship of this section, will be back on the field the coming season, under the management of Fred Iverson, who handled the team in its heyday. This year the Olympics will be a lightweight team.

All home games will be played at Cycler Park, and the club also expects to play a few Sunday games in other cities.

Manager Iverson is now putting his team together and preparing for the opening game, which will be played the last Saturday in September or the first Saturday in October.

Locke, the former Olympic player, is requested to call Iverson, phone 3606, McKeesport, between 7 and 8 o'clock this evening, or at any time tomorrow.

NationalKing Close Second

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

ROBERT GRAHAM, one of the veteran stars of the local army of public linkers, scored a brilliant 65 to gain a three-stroke lead over more than half the field in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round in the annual city golf championship tournament at the Schenley Park course today. Although there are many capable players who have not yet posted scores, there are few among them who have attained such fame as McFarland, Kauffmann, Graham, Wessels, McDonough and Barr, already in, and it is expected that Graham's 65 will remain low for the day. The second 18 holes of the qualifying test will be played tomorrow.

The second best score, a 68, was returned by no less a celebrity than Carl S. Kauffmann, national public champion. Tom Barr and Dick Wessels, skilled players both, are tied for temporary third honors with 71's. Indications are that few, if any, of the Schenley "old guard" will fail to gain admittance to the championship flight of 16. The scores of the leaders:

Robert Graham	33-32—65
Carl S. Kauffmann	36-32—68
Tom Barr	36-35—71
Dick Wessels	37-34—71
W. H. McClelland	38-34—72
J. E. Quinlan	37-36—73
M. M. Dunn	40-33—73
Pat McDonough	37-36—73
R. J. Barr	37-37—74
Bernie McFarland	39-36—75
C. J. Dunn	37-38—75
J. F. Lally	37-39—76
Sam McBride	39-38—77
A. C. Hughes	38-39—77
H. Wiltscut	41-37—78
M. Galido	37-41—78
H. M. McHenry	42-36—78
Tom Davies	38-40—78
H. Stevenson	40-39—79
T. M. Lloyd	42-37—79

Dempsey an "Old Woman"

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Jack Dempsey got a good laugh yesterday. He was leaving his training ring all bundled up with a Turkish towel over his head and his bathrobe wrapped about him when some youngster yelled:

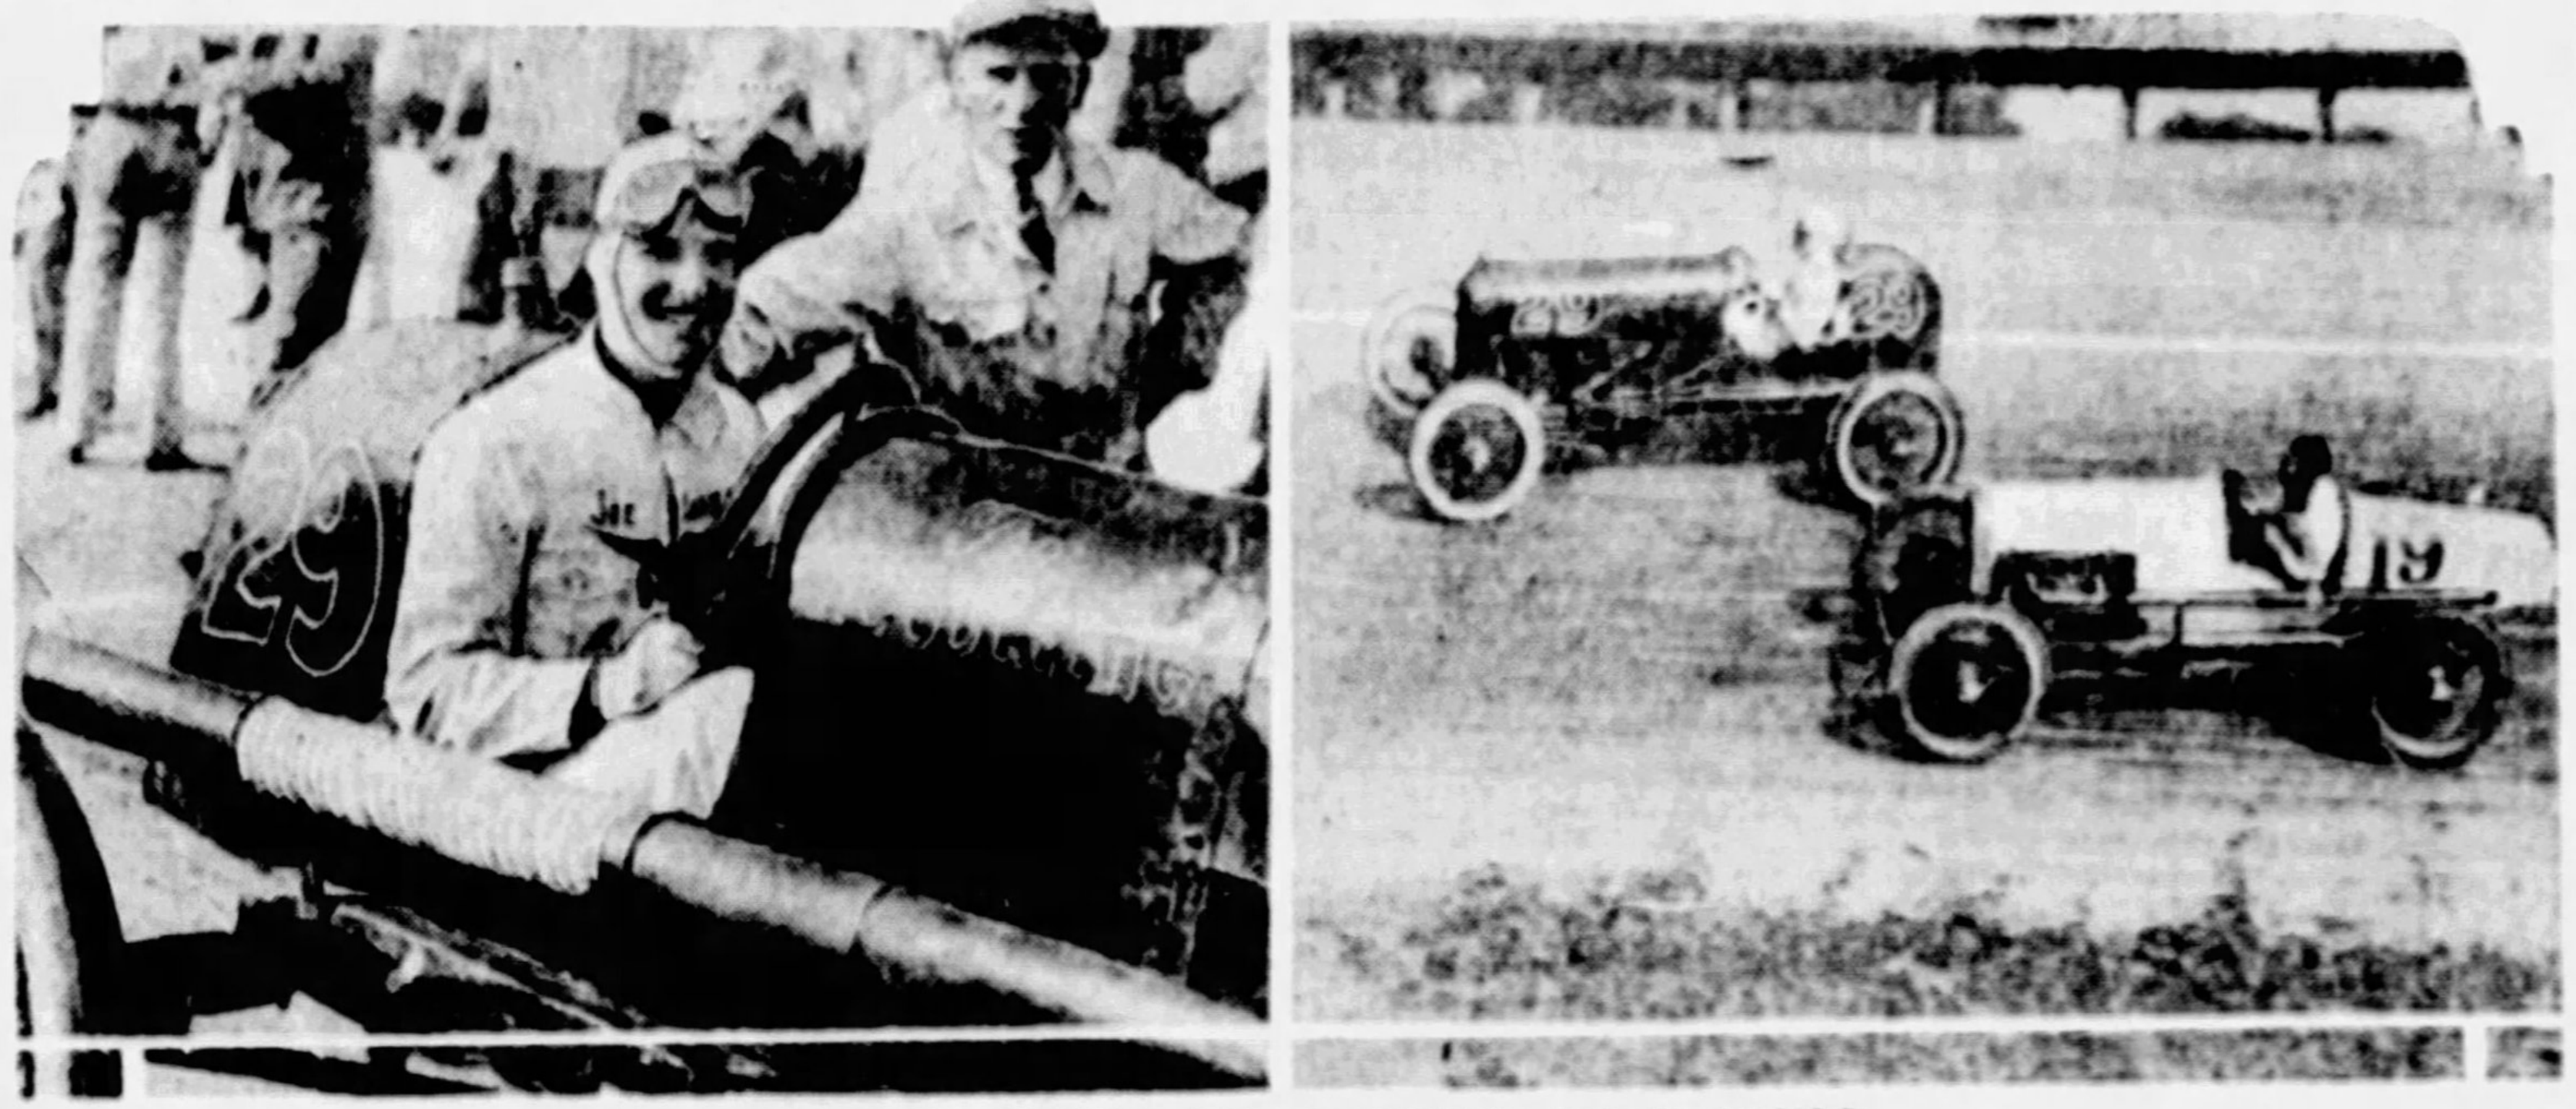
DOODLEBUG COPS BRIDGEVILLE RACE



McKEES ROCKS PILOT BEATS FAST FIELD

Coming through in the last 25 laps to take the lead over Sammy Swank, Jack Casey and Sammy Grabiak, who had been monopolizing the leadership, Joe Baker of McKees Rocks, shown on the left in his Fronty racer, "The Doodlebug," had a four-lap lead over his nearest competitor to win the long-distance grind on the local half-mile board oval yesterday. Baker is something of a daredevil driver, although he shows the caution of a veteran in taking the steep, tricky banks on the turns of the track. He is shown on the right whizzing past George Schoenberg in his race to victory. Baker's triumph was one of the most popular of the year.

BAKER AND CASEY RACE VICTORS

Joe Baker, of McKees Rocks, piloted his Fronty in a steady race to cop the 75-mile event, and Jack Casey, of Pittsburgh, was given a grand ovation when he chalked up his first victory in two years in winning the 25-mile classic on the half-mile board oval of the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville Speedway yesterday afternoon as a crowd of almost 10,000 looked on.

Sam Swank, of Akron, the favorite to cop when several of the other big stars withdrew at the last minute, drove a nice race, although engine trouble on several occasions caused him to lose ground.

Baker's time in the big race was 1 hour, 1 minute and 31 seconds, while Casey turned the 25 miles in 25 minutes and 25 seconds.

There was not a serious accident throughout, although little Johnny Clevenger, of Morgantown, in his Willys-Knight, almost met with disaster when he threw his rear right wheel on a turn—his superb brainwork at the crucial moment saved the day. A slippery spot on the northwest end of the track almost caused several accidents when first George Schoenberg hit it, went into a "snake" and then turned around completely to bang up against the upper railing and narrowly escape injury to himself and onrushing drivers, and then Swank and Herman Kress in turn had similar occurrences, even though not quite as marked.

By Associated Press.

ALTOONA, Pa.—Frank Lockhart outstripped a field of 14 in winning the 200-mile championship automobile race and a prize of $7,000. Piloting a Miller Special, Lockhart covered the distance in 1 hour, 49.4 seconds, an average of 117.5 miles an hour. DePaolo was second and Staff third.

KILBANE'S FATHER DEAD

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6. — (UP.)—Funeral services for John J. Kilbane, aged father of the former featherweight champion, will be held here Thursday, it was announced today. Kilbane died late yesterday after a short illness. He came to Cleveland from Ireland, 45 years ago, and guided his son Johnny to the top of the featherweight ranks without ever seeing him in action.

him, he says that the club's interests from the standpoint of discipline would not permit it, and that besides it would not be fair to the other players, who were faithful and remained on their jobs to fight for the pennant, to put Johnny on an equal footing with them after he deserted the team and ignored half a dozen requests to return when his services were urgently needed.

So Morrison will remain under suspension until the season is over, and if the Bucs win the flag he will lose his share of the world series melon, approximately $6,000, in addition to his year's losses in fine and salary.

WITH Morrison, Comorosky, Peery and Tauscher eliminated, as well as any others who may be added to the roster later, the Pirates, in the event of their winning the pennant, will go into the world series with only 23 players, quite the smallest number of eligibles with which any club has faced the diamond derby in recent years.

There will be eight eligible pitchers in Remy Kremer, Carmen Hill, Vic Aldridge, Lee Meadows, John Miljus, Joe Dawson, Mike Cvengros and Emil Ede.

The club will have three catchers in Earl Smith, Johnny Gooch and Roy Spencer.

For the infield there will be seven eligibles in Pie Traynor, Glenn Wright, George Grantham, Joe Harris, Hal Rhyne, Joe Cronin and Heinie Groh.

And for the outfield there will be five players available in Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Hazen Cuyler, Clyde Barnhart and Fred Brickell.

THE occasional outbursts of a few spectators at Forbes Field are not to be taken as an indication of the make-up of Pittsburgh fans in general, who are in the main the most loyal and patient and the fairest and best posted in the country. They know the game and how it should be played, and realize always that there is a good reason for everything that a manager does on the field.

But there are a few who start to criticize before they know what it's all about.

In the eighth inning of a recent close game, with Grantham on third, Smith on first, one out, and Kremer coming to bat, some of these began to boo when Manager Bush ran toward the bench. They could think of nothing else than that Bush was going to put in a pinch-hitter for Kremer.

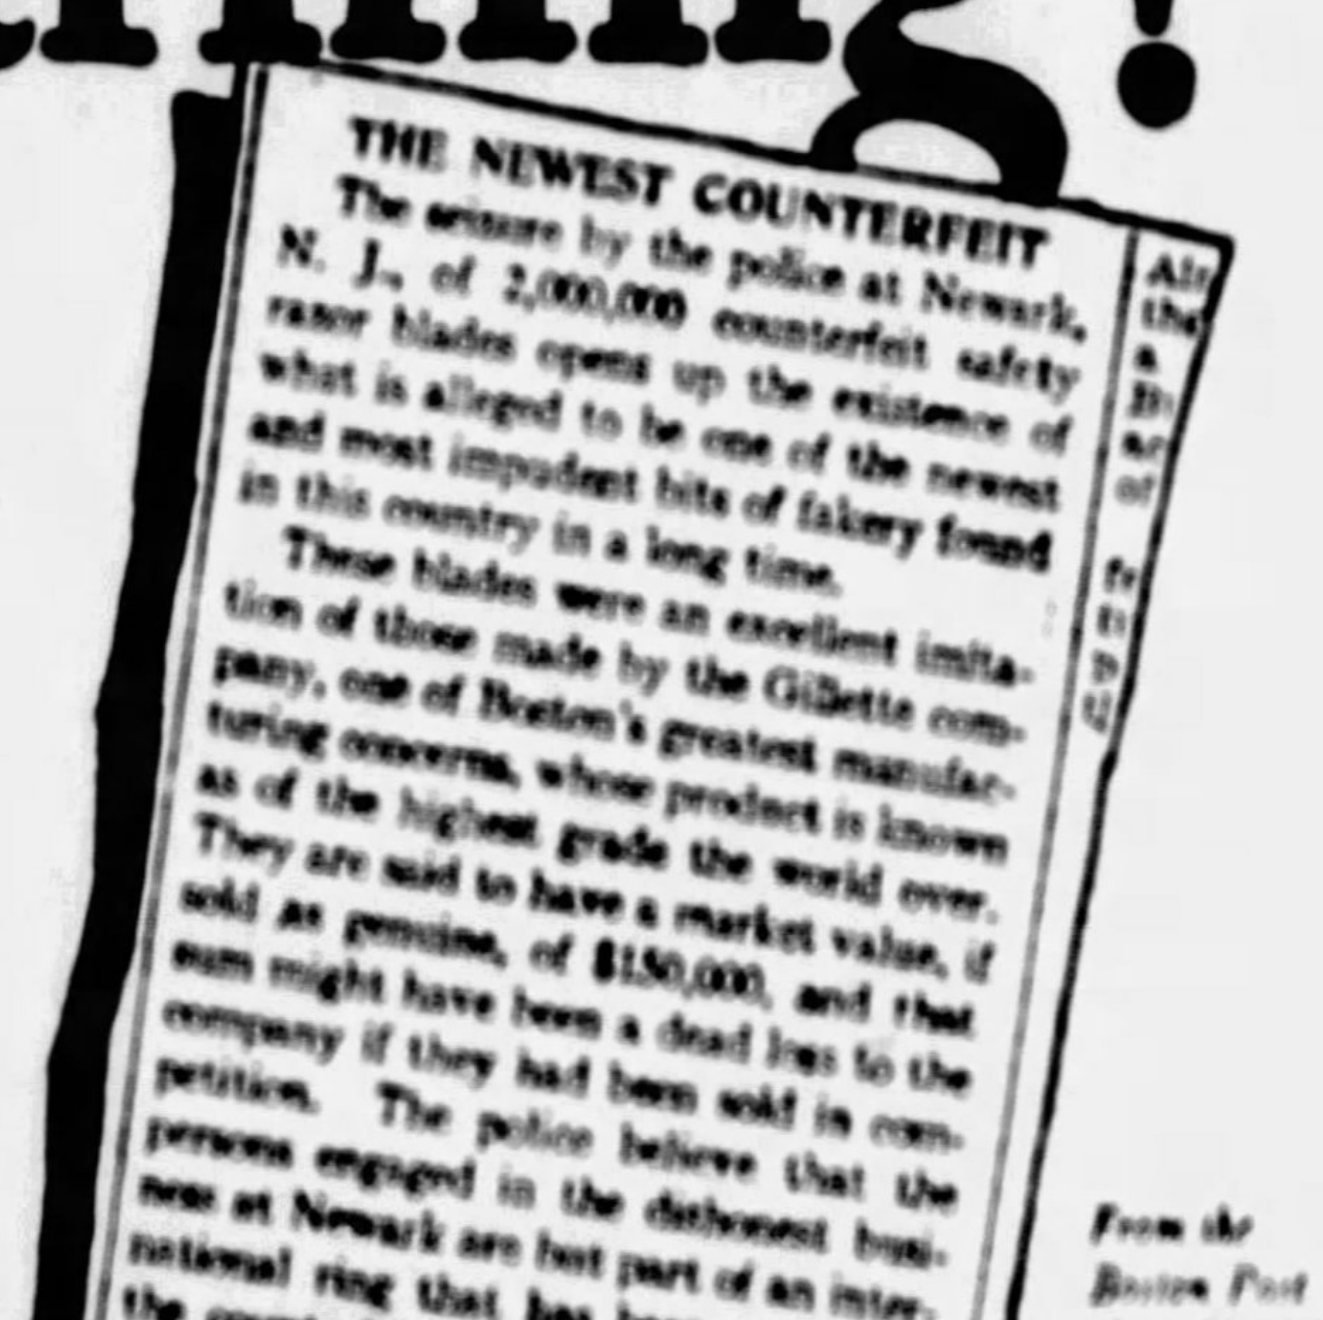
WHAT Donie was going to do, however, and what he actually did, was to send Brickell to first base to run for Smith. His idea was to avoid a double play, as Smith is a slow runner and a double play from second to first on a possible grounder by Kremer would have retired the Bucs without a run. The shift worked successfully, too, as the Pirates got three runs before the inning was over.

The grandstand managers, in addition to forgetting that booing either a home player or a visitor is no part of real sport, were a little hasty in their criticism of Bush, just as they were a little hasty a few weeks ago, unlike the real fans of the community, giving up the pennant as lost because the Pirates were five games below first place.

WILLOWS SWIM FRIDAY

Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Willows Pool, Oakmont, Press Anderson will stage the senior A. M. A. long distance swimming championship. The race is to last one hour and senior A. M. A. gold, silver and bronze championship medals will be awarded first, second and third places.

Warning!



THE NEWEST COUNTERFEIT

The seizure by the police at Newark, N. J., of 2,000,000 counterfeit safety razor blades opens up the existence of what is alleged to be one of the newest and most impudent bits of fakery found in this country in a long time.

These blades were an excellent imitation of those made by the Gillette company, one of Boston's greatest manufacturing concerns, whose product is known as of the highest grade the world over. They are said to have a market value, if sold as genuine, of $150,000, and that sum might have been a dead loss to the company if they had been sold in competition. The police believe that the persons engaged in the dishonest business at Newark are but part of an international ring that has been marketing the counterfeits.

Counterfeit Gillette Blades

To the Public:

RECENTLY, attempts have been made to foist upon the public safety razor blades in imitation of genuine Gillette Safety Razor Blades.

By placing the name Gillette on inferior blades and branding the packages with this Company's name and trade-mark, these unscrupulous individuals have attempted to place counterfeit blades in the hands of Gillette users.

In appearance these blades are difficult of detection. In use they are so inferior as to be easily recognized as base frauds.

Criminal trickery has enabled the makers of these imitation blades to simulate the appearance of the well-known Gillette Blade package.

To protect the users of Gillette Blades, we suggest that you purchase your Gillette Blades only from recognized, established retailers of Gillette Razors and Gillette Blades.

To the Trade:

COUNTERFEIT Gillette Blades may be offered to you. These imitation blades are difficult to detect from genuine Gillette Blades because of the close reproduction of the package. For your own protection and the protection of your trade, please purchase your supplies of Gillette Blades from reliable, legitimate sources of supply.

Do not buy blades offered to you as Gillette Blades from unknown sources or at irregular prices.

Please advise us promptly of names and addresses of persons offering Gillette Blades at unusual prices, giving all information possible.

STOCK AVERAGE CARRIED TO NEW HIGH

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Resumption of speculative operations for the advance after the double holiday carried the general industrial average to a new high record level today. Rails moved up with the industrials, although the gains were not as large. Indications of a continuance of easy money rates, seen in the announcement of terms of the new treasury financing and widespread predictions of an upturn in business helped to create bullish sentiment.

Practically all industrial leaders, such as Allied Chemical, American Can, American Smelting, Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric, General Motors, International Harvester, U. S. Steel and Woolworth broke through their previous top prices of the year, many of them to the highest levels ever recorded. Early gains ran from 1 to 7 points.

Merchandising shares gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength, special buying of Woolworth being attributed to the optimistic statement concerning the prospects of the new German subsidiary, which is planning a big expansion program. Weakness of U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Western Maryland, each of which dropped about 4 points, failed to check the upward movement in other quarters. Heaviness of Loew's probably was in reflection of the death of Marcus Loew, founder of the company.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans, but a plentiful supply of call money appeared to be available at the renewal figure of 3½ per cent. Pools were again actively at work, accounting for a number of new high records.

A sharp upturn in Liverpool encouraged buying and the markets both of New York and abroad were influenced by a crop report by the Southern Cotton Company indicating 12 [illegible] bales, although this was offset by an estimate by A. H. Pierce & Co., making the yield 12,[illegible] bales.

A New York stock exchange firm, usually well informed, says: "The Mellon interests are represented on the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturers and we understand that a close alignment between Westinghouse and United Gas Improvement is contemplated. Woolworth Swings Higher.

Woolworth went forward in sensational style, continuing the advance started several days ago. Much of the current buying in the stock is said to be for foreign account, although traders and investors on this side have been following the move, being fully aware of the stock's past performance and future possibilities. As regards the company's European business, President Parsons, returning from abroad, said: "We recently opened our first store in Bremen, followed by another in Berlin, with such successful result that we are prepared to extend this chain through Germany. As to our English business it continues to do exceptionally well and from reports I have from home our business is showing insistent improvement with prosperity rampant everywhere in America. I can see no let up in business until possibly the spring of 1928, when, as usual, the trend of politics will cause some hesitation."

Nash Registers New High.

Nash Motors was in urgent demand and rushed up easily to a new high above 90 on buying based on rumors of favorable dividend action. Company had the best month in its history in August and the Street feels confident that the stock will be placed on a regular dividend basis of $6 a year. It is assumed that the regular payments will be accompanied by extras. Regular rate is $4 annually at present but the last disbursement, August 1, consisted of the usual $1 quarterly payment and an extra 50 cents. There is also some talk of a split-up of the shares two for one. Early in 1926 the company paid a 300 per cent stock dividend on the old $100 par stock, which had sold up to $[illegible] a share. Current quotations on the present no par common compare with a low of 60 earlier in the year.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The raw sugar market was firmer early today, with a better inquiry and offerings light. Prices were unchanged at $4.77 for Cuban duty paid, with sales of about 60,000 bags of Cuban to local refiners and operators at this level.

The better inquiry in the spot market and firmness abroad, where the market was higher on account of unfavorable weather, had a strengthening influence in the raw sugar futures market during the forenoon session and caused active covering and some further outside buying. Prices at midday were at the best of the session thus far and from 3 to 6 points above the close of last week.

There was a more active withdrawal demand in refined sugar, with new business also showing signs of improvement, evidently prompted by the firmness in the spot market. Prices were unchanged at $5.75 to $6.00 for fine granulated.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 17 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables and small private crop figures.

December sold up to 22.92c and March to 23.05c, advances of about 17 to 24 points from Saturday's closing quotations, but this bulge met considerable realizing or liquidation and there were reactions of 9 or 10 points from the best by the end of the first hour.

A private crop report placed the condition at 53.7 and the indicated yield at only 12,[illegible] bales. There was probably some buying on these figures, but later another report placing the condition at 60.1 and the indicated yield at 13,[illegible], helped to offset the influence of the smaller figures. There also may have been a little selling on cable advices that the Master's Federation in Lancashire had recommended mills to close on Saturdays and Mondays for eight weeks.

Trading was less active later in the morning and the price movement comparatively narrow. There may have been a little selling on the reports that additional curtailment was recommended for Lancashire mills, but if so it was in small volume, and the market showed a generally steady undertone. At midday December was selling around 22.84c and March 22.98c, or about 14 to 17 points net higher.

$1,700,000,000 NEW FINANCING PLANNED

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. — The Treasury today laid the groundwork for the retirement of more than $2,000,000,000 of government securities between now and the end of the year.

New securities to be issued this month, to a potential total of nearly $1,700,000,000, were announced by Acting Secretary Ogden L. Mills. These new issues and their proceeds will be used to replace and to pay off the obligations maturing. They are: $250,000,000 3 per cent six-months certificates, at par. $250,000,000 3½ per cent three to five-year Treasury notes, at par. Additional 3½ per cent notes to the amount of second Liberty loan bonds offered in exchange for them. The amount of bonds subject to exchange is $1,161,000,000.

The notes issues in exchange for bonds will carry a premium of one-eighth of one per cent. As an inducement to bondholders to make the exchange two months additional interest will be paid on the bonds.

All the second Liberty bonds will cease to bear interest November 15 and must be surrendered at that time if not exchanged this month. By its exchange offer, the third since refunding of the issue was begun in March, the Treasury hopes greatly to reduce the amount of the bonds which must be paid off in November.

Retirement of these bonds is the biggest problem on the Treasury's program. Since March the total outstanding has been reduced from $3,104,000,000 to less than $1,200,000,000. There are also $250,000,000 of Treasury certificates to be paid off September 15 and $506,000,000 of certificates and notes to be paid off December 15.

Many millions will be saved to the government through reduction of interest rates involved in the financing program.

"The exchange offering of Treasury notes probably will be kept open until September 29," said Mills. "The offering of certificates of indebtedness and the cash offering of Treasury notes probably will be available for only a few days, the Secretary of the Treasury reserving the right to close the subscription books of these offerings, as well as the exchange offerings, at any time without notice."

An easy way to keep your personal accounts

A CHECKING account has many advantages besides its convenience in paying bills. Many individuals, for instance, keep an accurate account of their income and expenditures on the stubs of their check books. It is a simple, yet perfectly reliable and adequate method for those having moderate incomes.

A checking account makes it unnecessary to carry with you large sums of money, as funds for daily expenses can easily be obtained by cashing a check. Moreover, cancelled checks serve as indisputable proof of the payment of bills.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Announcement of the federal government's September 15 refinancing program had little immediate effect on the bond market, although there was some appearance of hesitancy, as if the details had proved somewhat disappointing. The flotation of $250,000,000 3½ per cent three to five year notes and a like amount of 3 per cent six-month certificates gave little cause to worry over the immediate credit condition, but there had been expectations in some quarters that long-term securities might be issued at rates somewhat lower than those announced. Government issues were irregular on the announcement, several of the Liberty Bonds declining slightly, while Treasury securities moved upward.

Domestic railroad and industrial obligations were rather quiet, and displayed no definite trend. Julius Kayser 5½s continued their steady advance, selling up fractionally to another new peak price of 104. Oregon Short Line 4s were moderately active just under their best price of the year and Katy 5s were in supply.

Foreign issues attracted little attention. French bonds appeared to have run the course of their recent rise which attended the wave of comment on projected refunding operations by the Paris government.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows. Bids omitted in sales volume. United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars:

OIL PRODUCTION TAKES SPURT

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States spurted upward by 18,403 barrels during the week ending September 3, the Oil and Gas Journal says today. Production was given as 2,525,558 barrels daily as compared with 2,507,155 barrels for the preceding week.

Production in the Greater Seminole area of Oklahoma was back over the maximum of 450,000 barrels a day agreed upon by the operators. After declining to an average of 436,115 for the week ending August 27 it rose to a daily average of 451,410 during the last week.

California showed an increase averaging 6,000 barrels a day in light and heavy crude oil and the week's gain in West Texas fields averaged more than 5,000 barrels a day.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

A fairly active market for practically all lines of fruit and vegetables opened this morning at the local wholesale produce districts. Home-grown green corn in bushel lots, onions by sacks and Georgia sweet potatoes in barrels were somewhat lower. The fruit market was generally steady. Cantaloupes and pears were reduced in price.

The poultry market continued steady on heavy hens and other poultry except springers, which were light. In the face of supplies, springers were liberal. No change was made in the quotations.

The butter market was steady and no change was made in price. The egg and cheese markets were very firm and sold at about unchanged quotations.

Carlot supplies were heavy, a total of 180 cars being on track. Arrivals included 9 apples, 10 cabbage, 71 cantaloupes, 6 celery, 62 grapes, 3 lemons, 8 lettuce, 6 onions, 9 oranges, 32 peaches, 29 pears, 45 potatoes, 23 sweet potatoes, 10 tomatoes, 3 watermelons and 6 cucumbers.

The hay market was steady and no change in the quotations was made. The grain market prices were tested this morning to conform with Western quotations. Oats were decreased 2c and corn 4c.

BREATH OF LIFE GIVEN TO BABY THEN LOST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Two physicians here kept a new-born baby alive for hours by breathing their own breath into its lungs and through other respiration methods, but finally lost their fight for life.

The baby, born to Mrs. Earl Weeks, Sunday, breathed faintly when born, stopped and rapidly grew cold.

Dr. Leon S. Gordon, young interne at Casualty Hospital, and Dr. Henry G. Hadley, a specialist in such cases, applied known methods to aid the infant in breathing and then for four and a half hours alternated in breathing into the baby's lungs.

Steady breathing eventually rewarded their efforts. Yesterday the child again ceased to breathe. The physicians who had left were speedily summoned. Again they resorted to breathing into the child's lungs. They alternated for two hours. But the little life departed. Dr. Hadley attributed death to asphyxia, caused by congestion of the lungs.

CONVICTS GREASE ROAD, SPILL PURSUING OFFICER

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Two men, believed to be William Peter Bishie, 31, a life-term convict, and William T. Lynch, 20, serving a 10 to 25-year term for a holdup, who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary Sunday night, were chased by Corp. Dodson and Patrolman Fleming of the Bethlehem detachment of state highway patrolmen early last night on the Bath-Bethlehem highway and were lost when the corporal was twice spilled after skidding on some liquid the men poured from their machine. This happened after Dodson had fired eight shots after them, four of which, he says he is certain, landed in the machine.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Impressive bullish demonstrations in many groups characterized trading on the curb market today after the double holiday. The movements included a long list of issues that established new high records on advances ranging from 1 to over 10 points. Public utilities were in increased demand, but the high priced industrial specialties still called for most consideration because of the manner in which these were in continued urgent demand and were among the record-breaking issues.

Singer Manufacturing, the highest priced of the active industrials, entered new high ground on an advance of 5 points to 435 and Royal Baking moved up 5 points to 312. Celanese first preferred rose over 5 points to above 165 and the common stock had a gain of over 7 points to above 80. Auburn Auto, with an advance of over a point, made a new high record at 122⅛. Curtis Publishing preferred was another strong feature, advancing a point to 116.

Special interest was attached to Lackawanna securities, which ranged in the forenoon from 66⅝ to 65. The trading in this stock was of special importance because of the fact that Delaware, Lackawanna and Western traded on the stock exchange sold ex the dividend of one-half share of Lackawanna securities stock. New York Central new stock made a new high record on an advance of 2 points to above 157.

A receding tendency was shown in the oil stocks generally, although Standard Oil of Indiana shares made a fractional advance. Humble and Imperial Oil of Canada both yielded about a point.

United Gas Improvement was a strong feature in the utility group. Lehigh Power was again heavily traded and made a fractional advance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Following is the official list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (odd lots omitted in sales volume in total list).

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Sharp setbacks in price formed the rule early today for grain. Favorable weather in spring wheat territory counted as a bear factor, and so, too, did Liverpool weakness, as well as reports by holiday observers that the corn crop is making progress. Starting ¾ to 1⅛c lower, wheat values subsequently hovered near to the initial range. Corn opened 1⅛c to 2 down, and showed but little power to rally. Oats were easy. Provisions tended to sag.

At noon wheat was 1⅛c to 1⅜c net lower and corn 1⅛c to 2½c down.

Emphasizing the market effect of ideal weather throughout the spring wheat region northwest were advices today that European harvest conditions appeared favorable. Besides, the amount of wheat on ocean passage for Europe showed an increase over last week and totaled 41,416,000 bushels, compared with 31,724,000 bushels a year ago.

Interesting detailed wheat crop estimates leading Chicago experts, who has been touring the spring wheat states and the Canadian prairie provinces. He figures the yield in North Dakota as 110,000,000 bushels, South Dakota, 35,000,000 bushels; Minnesota, 17,000,000 bushels, and the Canadian Northwest at 375,000,000 bushels.

Steel Company Shares Reach New High

A sensational advance in Blaw Knox Steel common shares featured the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, the stock selling up to $95 a share, a gain of 13 points over the previous price, recorded at the end of last week. Limited supply of the issue around last week's levels forced bids steadily higher, and the first transaction today was at 90, as against the close Saturday at 82. The 95 level did not hold, however, and there was a subsequent drop of 3 points to 92, at which figure several odd lots changed hands. Floor men were without information on the move, but it was thought favorable dividend action is under consideration by the Blaw Knox directors.

Share prices generally fluctuated within a narrow range, and figures posted on the board showed only minor fractional changes from the prices prevailing on the close last Saturday. Activity was confined to a few issues, generally to those which have been featured in the dealings over the past two weeks. Initial sales of Arkansas Gas were at 9⅛, up ⅛ from the close on Saturday. The stock appears to be pegged between 9 and 9½ and some of the traders believe it will hold close to those limits until such time as definite information regarding the reported deal with Cities Service is forthcoming. Lone Star was unchanged in the early, a block of the shares changing hands at 46⅝, the figure at which most of the trading Saturday took place.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was firm at 50⅞, but only a small volume of the stock was handled. Last sale on Screw and Bolt Saturday was at 50.

The general list maintained a steady tone throughout the afternoon session, although business continued in light volume. Screw & Bolt bettered its first price and reached 51, duplicating the record high established early last week. Lone Star held firm but held close to the initial quotation. Standard Sanitary showed moderate strength and was handled at 91, a full point advance over the last sale recorded on Saturday.

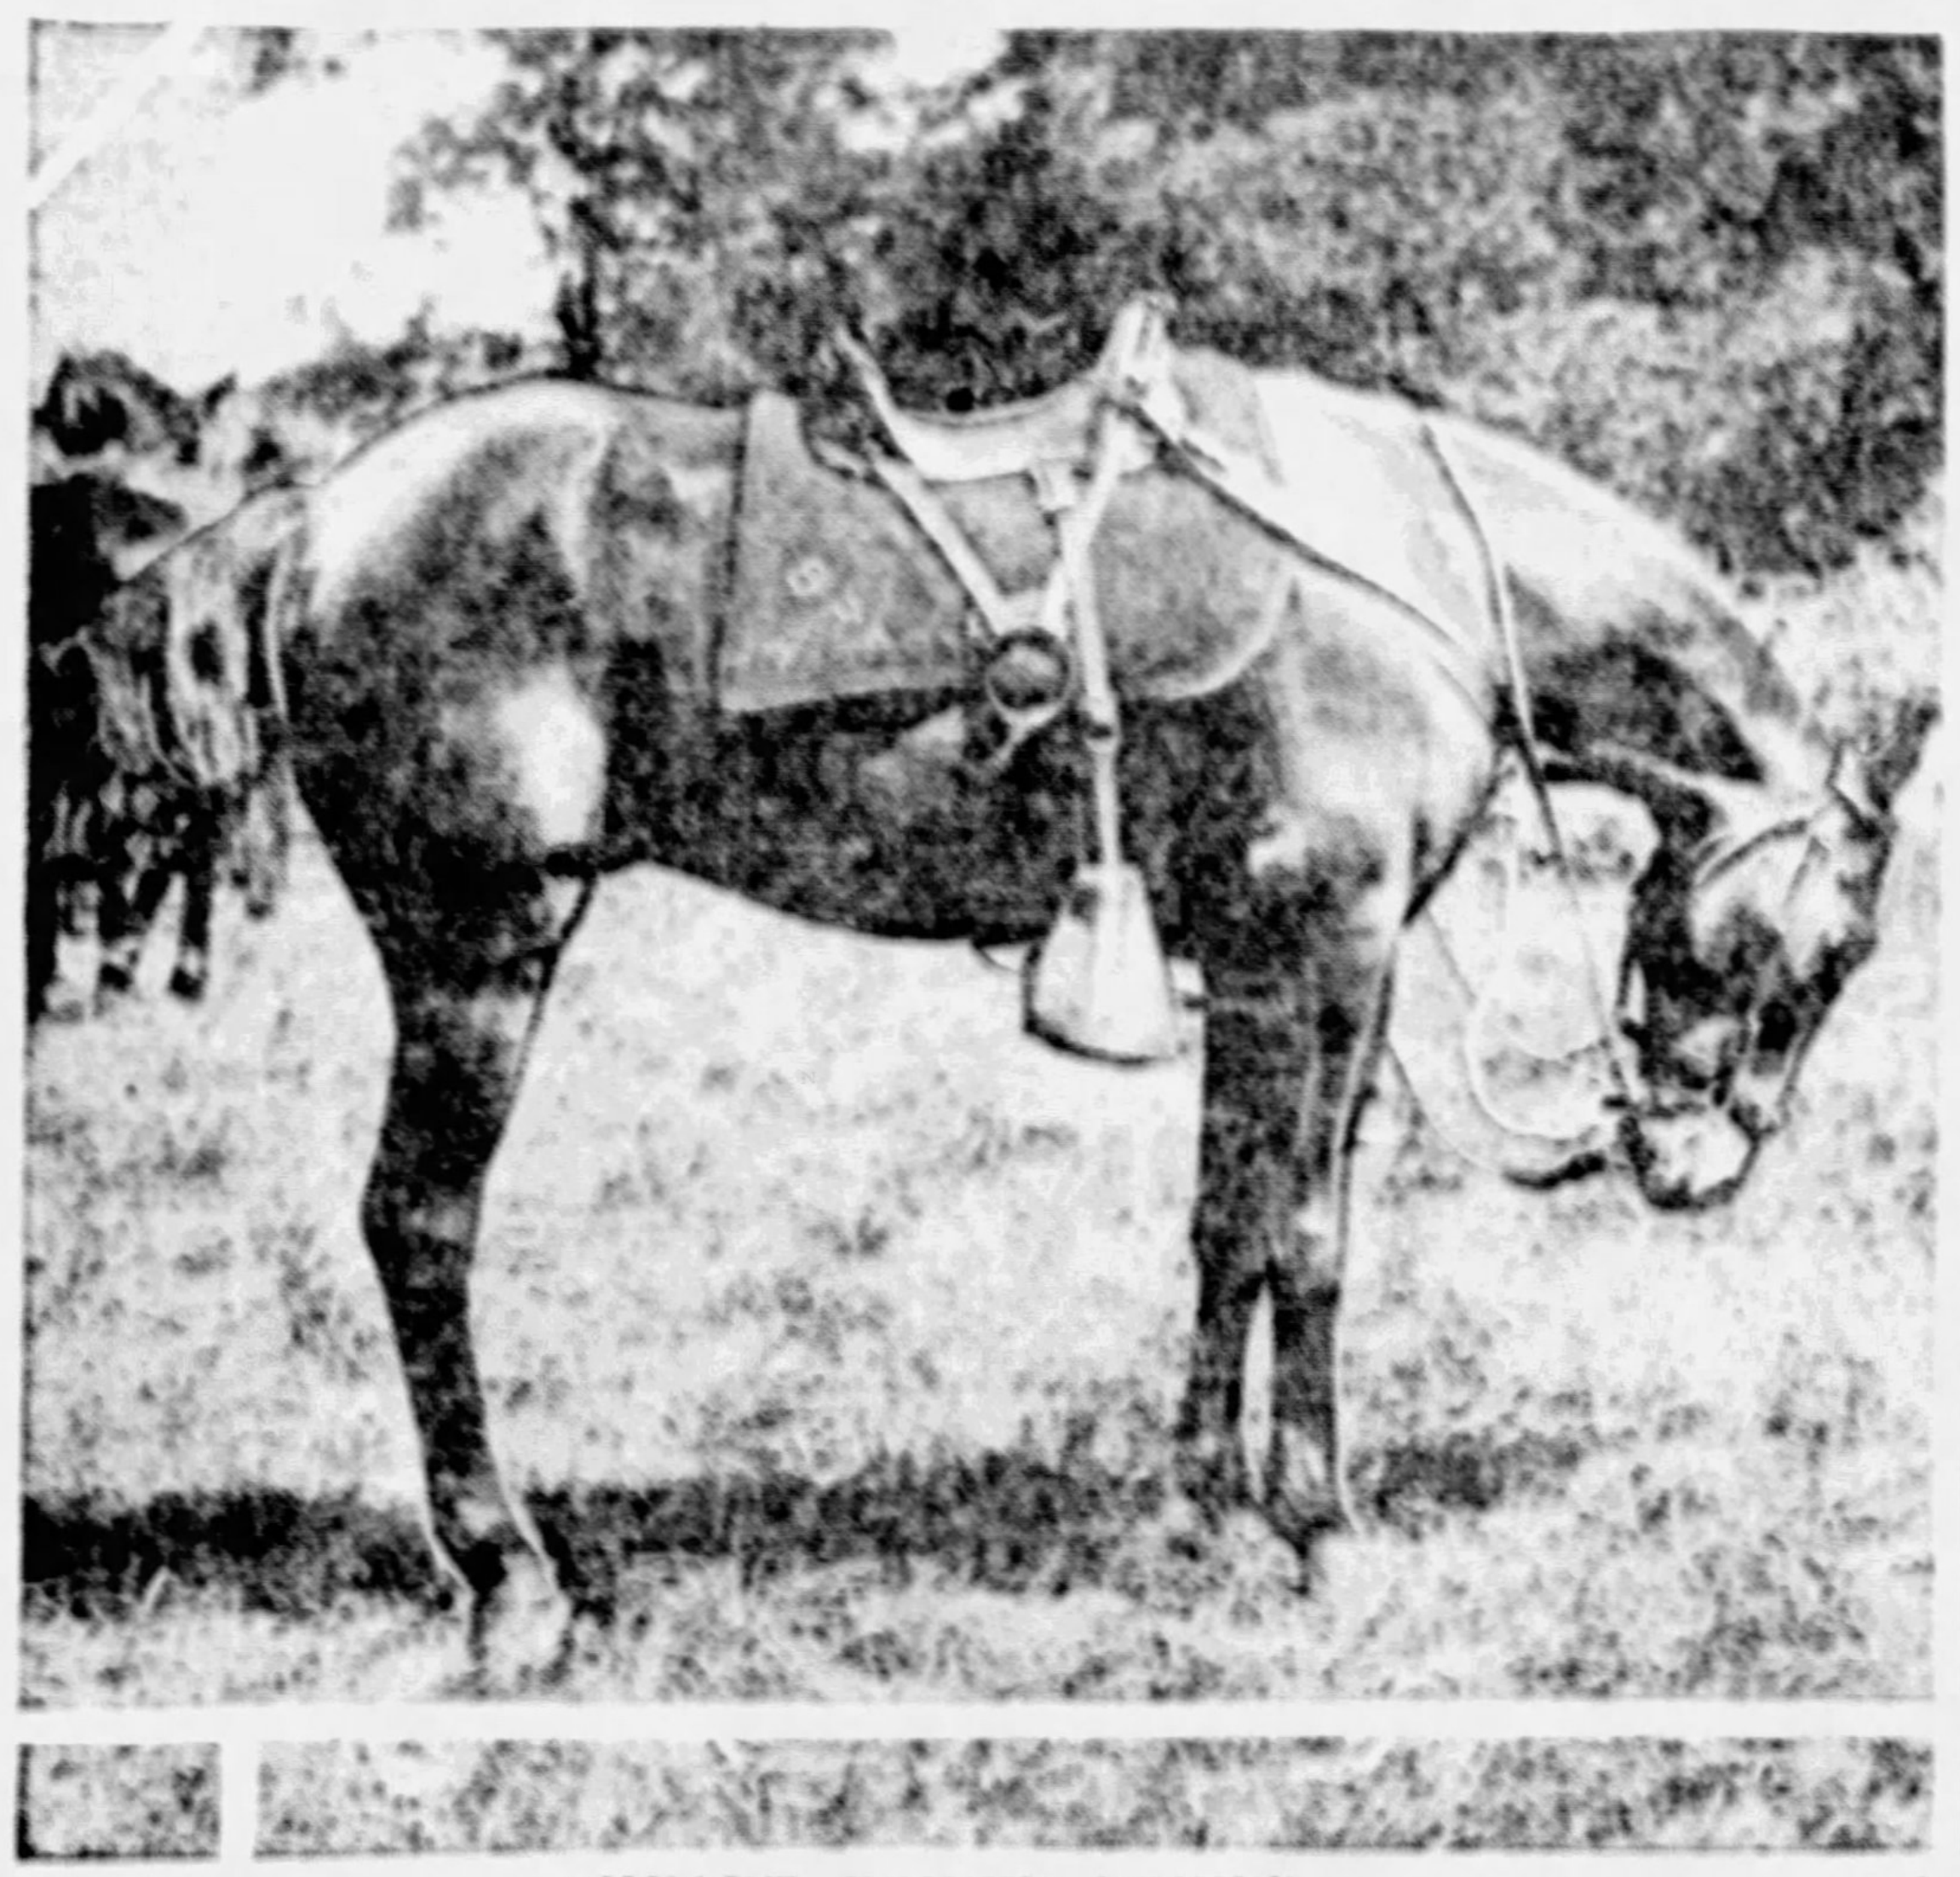
STATE TROOPERS -:- HOLD FIELD DAY -:- FOR PENSION FUND



"HEART BOWED DOWN"

"Andy" bows his head in sorrow. His master for three years, John J. Downey of Troop A, Greensburg barracks, state police, was killed August 22. The picture was snapped at field day exercises in Greensburg Monday.

TROOP "A" STEPS OUT

The old fair grounds at Greensburg attracted 10,000 persons who came to witness a field day exhibition of the prowess of members of Troop A, Pennsylvania state police. Proceeds from the event went into the Pennsylvania state police pension fund, providing pensions for dependents of Private John J. Downey, killed "in action" last week, and seven other members of Troop A who have given their lives in the performance of duty.

ASSEMBLY

Bugler S. A. Samrock sounds the call to "colors." Capt. Thomas J. McLaughlin, commander of Troop A, was master of ceremonies, assisted by Lieut. Thomas F. Martin and Sergt. A. Downing.

PREDICT END OF STRIKE HERE

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Termination of the coal strike that has tied up soft coal mining in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania may result tomorrow from a conference of officials of the mine operators and the United Mine Workers' Union here, it was reported today.

A new wage agreement, based on the Jacksonville wage scale, is in sight, according to authentic information, and tentative agreements have already been reached by both parties of the conflict, it was said.

That the strike has been definitely settled was denied by C. E. McLaughlin, secretary of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—On the eve of a conference tomorrow between Illinois bituminous miners and mine operators, the Chicago Daily Journal today published a news story that it had authoritative information that a settlement of the suspension which has lasted since last April 1 had been agreed upon.

The account immediately met denial, however, by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America at his home in Springfield, Ill.; Rice Miller, head of the Illinois owners, and others.

Mr. Lewis said that the miners and operators would confer in Chicago tomorrow, but that as yet no agreement had been reached.

In a later edition the Journal said: "Illinois coal operators and miners are certain that a conference between officials Wednesday will result in an agreement and an early resumption of work, probably not later than September 15.

"The Chicago conference that is to ratify the understanding said to have been reached, was to meet today, but owing to the fact that both operators and union officials were late in coming back from Labor Day outing caused the postponement Wednesday."

ROBBERY CHARGE FACES KILLERS

The boys, who are said to have signed confessions, were arraigned before Magistrate A. P. Brandon in Morals Court, accused of stealing $175 from the victim's pockets.

MOTORIST HELD IN MAN'S DEATH

Chalfant died from injuries suffered when he was struck by Gelman's machine at Penn and Aiken avenues.

Gelman, who was held in $2,500 bond, testified that when he tried to stop the car, his mother grabbed his arm.

CAMBRIA COURT DENIES DENNY CLAIM ON SON

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Holding that Jacie Murdock Denny, 10, looks upon his grandparents as parents rather than his father, whom he knows only casually, the Cambria County Court has awarded custody of the boy to the former, Jacob M. and Annie Y. Murdock, local residents. The court also ruled that John Denny, New York real estate man, shall not molest or interfere with his son. The father was ordered to pay costs.

Open Penn Theater At 6 O'Clock Tonight

Marcus Loew's new Penn Theater opens at 6 o'clock tonight, but the famous owner and producer will not be here to see the formal dedication of his greatest achievement, his death having intervened with the original plans to welcome the public at the new Penn Theater yesterday noon. Two performances will be given tonight, 7 and 9 p. m., reserved seats for last night being good for this evening's show.

Mr. Loew had made plans to be in Pittsburgh for the opening. A suite had been engaged for him at the William Penn Hotel. He was to have been accompanied by David Warfield, the noted actor and business associate of Mr. Loew.

SET FOR PREMIER

Everything was in readiness for the premier. Louis K. Sidney, divisional manager of the Loew theaters, was about to pass the word along to open the doors to the crowd which had gathered at the new playhouse when Jack A. Simons, manager of the Aldine, rushed in with the sad news received over news wires. Col. E. A. Schiller, vice president of the company, was standing with Sidney and the announcement so overwhelmed him that a physician had to be called. Col. Schiller left for New York soon after.

Announcement of Mr. Loew's death was made to the crowds as soon as the report was verified by telephone to New York. Silently the men, women and children who had gathered at the doors of the magnificent show house filed out.

Scores of telegrams arrived at the new theater throughout the day, congratulating Mr. Loew upon the occasion of the opening of his newest theater. Many of the messages were from movie stars and stage folk, as well as business associates and other prominent persons.

Sidney took the messages to his room in the William Penn.

"I don't think there was a man in the theatrical business who was so loved by those who worked for him," he said. "His death is a great shock to all of us, and you will find that the entire theatrical world is saddened by the passing of Marcus Loew."

QUIZ WOMAN IN MATE'S DEATH

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Dempsey Church, 42, of Riverview, O., held in the Belmont county jail without bond pending investigation into the cause of the death of her husband, the late John J. Church, 45, was questioned today by Prosecuting Attorney Paul V. Waddell. The question of preferring a charge of murder against the woman will be determined upon the report of an analysis of the vital organs of the victim. The analysis is now being conducted by the West Virginia state chemist.

Dr. Harry P. Campbell, of Wheeling, who performed an autopsy on the body of Church, said that he had found traces of poison.

BOY TOURISTS, WITH 30 CENTS, HELD BY POLICE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—With only 30 cents between them and en route to Pittsburgh to see the sister of one of the boys, a nurse in St. Francis Hospital there, Stanley Carley, 101 Jefferson street, and Joe Sdafran, 16 Jefferson street, both of Oil City, were picked up by police. Their parents ordered them returned to Oil City.

Sam Cellender, 6, of 16 Seventh street, Sharpsburg, suffered a fractured skull when he was struck by an automobile in Main street, Sharpsburg, today. St. Francis Hospital reported his condition as critical. John M. Simpson, of 7107 Upland street, driver, was held.

SAYS KILLING SUSPECT IS GANGSTER

Harry Kraus, 24, of 7427 Susquehanna street, suspect held for the murder of Edward Flynn, 60, engineer at the Homeopathic Hospital, was identified at the Frankstown Avenue Police Station this morning as one of four gangsters who held up and robbed Louis Iakatis, of 7314 Idlewild street, at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Iakatis was positive in his identification of the man. He said Kraus held a revolver against his body and took $40 in cash, a valuable gold watch and a stickpin.

The automobile used by the gangsters, according to Iakatis, answered the description of the car driven by the gang that attacked Flynn at Center avenue and Graham street. Iakatis said he was held up at 4 a. m. The attack on Flynn was made an hour later, and in the meantime several other persons in the East End district were robbed by the same gang.

Kraus, who also was identified by Flynn a few hours before his death, was ordered held over for further investigation by Magistrate William J. Soost. Other persons held up Sunday morning were summoned to the police station today in an effort to identify Kraus.

JUDGE GRAY URGES HEAVY REGISTRATION

"It is not possible to get a registration and poll of 100 per cent of the voters, but it surely ought to be possible to secure a registration and vote of 75 per cent of those qualified," said Judge James H. Gray, speaking at a meeting of members of the League of Women Voters in the North Side Community House today. Judge Gray urged the women to work for a large registration in Pittsburgh Thursday, the first day. Among the other speakers were Controller C. C. McGovern and Judge Frank I. Gollmar.

LESHER LAUDS TICKET

The only reason independent candidates have for objecting to the Republican organization slate is that they themselves were not able to get on the ticket, Attorney M. H. Lesher said at the first noon meeting today in the Regular Republican headquarters, Hotel Henry. Other speakers were John Francies, candidate for county treasurer, and Judge Nelson McVicar, seeking to succeed himself.

"There is not a candidate for judge who would not have been glad to be on this platform to plead for votes for our entire ticket," said Lesher. "They are disappointed because their names are not on our list. That may be a reason for personal dissatisfaction, but it will hardly appeal as a campaign issue."

STOLEN AUTO'S DRIVER HELD

Fred Zeltman, 26, of 722 East Lacock street, was ordered held for investigation when arraigned in North Side Police Court this morning charged with having had a stolen automobile in his possession. When arrested, the police say, he was about to drive away from Stockton avenue and Arch street with an automobile which had been stolen several hours before from Scott place. Police are communicating with Thomas Stanford, of Vanmeter, owner of the machine.

MINER, NEAR LATROBE, OVERCOME BY GAS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—Overcome by "black damp" which had penetrated the room in which he was working in the Brindle coal mine, near Latrobe, McCallum Morley, 34, of Baggaley, was found unconscious by miners at work in a side entry. He was rescued and an alarm was sounded to clear the mine of the noxious gas.

G. O. P. IN TENTH SPLITS OVER M'GOVERN

Breaking away from the organization slate, the Tenth Ward Republican Club has indorsed Controller C. C. McGovern for another term and has pledged its support to four independent candidates for judges of the Common Pleas Court.

The judicial candidates being supported by the club are Judges Richard W. Martin, James H. Gray and Frank I. Gollmar, seeking to succeed themselves, and Frank P. Patterson.

Letters announcing these indorsements were sent to the voters of the ward today by P. J. Donahoe, former councilman and president of the club. It was said that Mr. Donahoe this morning sent McGovern his personal check for $1,000 as a campaign contribution.

The Donahoe group in the ward for weeks has been engaged in an active campaign for William Scott for alderman. Scott is opposed by James P. Bailey, the candidate of the Kline city administration, and by Thomas Ford, brother-in-law of Alderman P. J. Sullivan of the Sixth, one of Senator M. G. Leslie's chief lieutenants. Charles I. Renz is the Donahoe candidate for constable.

A heavy vote for these candidates will show "the political bosses that in the Tenth Ward the people are still supreme," said the letter sent out today.

PITTSBURGHERS HELD IN PADDLE WHEEL GAMES

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 6.—Bennie Fromer, Harry Wilson, George Stark, John Ross and John Mintz, all of Pittsburgh, operating paddle wheels at the Stoneboro fair, were arrested, charged with gambling, and held for court by Justice of the Peace John Kelly, Stoneboro. WEDNESDAY NIGHT ONLY

MONEY FOR YOU

Here's an Amazing Opportunity. Here Is the Key to a Good Position. An Extra Pay Check Every Week, Whether Employed or Unemployed. Read Carefully and Investigate. You Can't Afford to Pass Up the Greatest Opportunity in Pittsburgh Today. So Make Up Your Mind to Answer This Ad.

BUT THIS OPPORTUNITY WILL NOT LAST LONG

$35 TO $75 WEEKLY

Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious person in the city of Pittsburgh would be amazed and glad to avail himself of this opportunity if he only knew the facts. YOU DON'T NEED EXPERIENCE AND YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the city's new administrative and expansion has made it necessary for us to open an entirely new department and has created an opportunity unparalleled for people to bring EXTRA WEEKLY INCOME. Work WILL NOT CONFLICT WITH PRESENT EMPLOYMENT. No SELLING. No canvassing. No Red Tape.

These positions can be filled during the spare hours (during day or evening) of mechanics, tradesmen, clerks, professional men and business men. Full time positions can be arranged for those desiring permanent work. ABSOLUTELY NO EXPERIENCE REQUIRED. FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION GIVEN from the start. You should earn NOT LESS than $44 to PER WEEK from the moment your name is placed upon the company's rolls. Of the scores of happy workers recently employed, very few earn less than $50 per week and are working but one hour per day. Positions (part time or permanent) are EXTREMELY SIMPLE in pleasant surroundings and most congenial atmosphere.

Do not confuse this ad with another of similar wording for YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING AND YOU CAN EARN FROM THE MOMENT YOU START.

This is REAL. This is GENUINE. Here is an opportunity to earn a REAL BANK ACCOUNT during the summer months. The work is extremely simple and can be done by anyone of ordinary intelligence and we will make you understand and know you can do the work before we ask you to start.

You must understand this is an unusual opportunity. Come and get the facts. We require white applicants over 25 years of age AND EVERYONE will be given utmost consideration.

This ad will appear until WEDNESDAY EVENING and none will be considered after 8:30 O'CLOCK Wednesday evening. Make up your mind NOW to answer on time. No APPLICANTS RECEIVED AT ANY OTHER HOUR (Daylight Saving Time.)

Last Call. Apply Paymaster.

APPLY WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 7TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE AND SMITHFIELD STREET.

Notice! Remember this is an entirely new department and here is your opportunity to get a position in it. Scores of new applicants have been given employment during the evenings or after business hours and even the office boy earns $55 per week. Many of our employes who are unemployed otherwise during the daytime have bought new cars and have opened new bank accounts as a result of this wonderful extra income opportunity. You can answer other ads every day of the week, but—remember you can only answer this ad Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

YOU SIMPLY CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT. Knowing how and why means EXTRA MONEY. Now if you really desire to open a REAL BANK ACCOUNT, DON'T MISS THIS. Do not answer this ad unless you are really sincere and anxious to earn an extra income. We will receive no applicants after 8:30 o'clock (daylight saving time) Wednesday evening, so make up your mind to answer on time. REGARDLESS OF PRESENT EMPLOYMENT, EVERYONE WILL BE GIVEN FULLEST CONSIDERATION AT ABOVE TIME, AND REMEMBER THE PLACE.

APPLY WEDNESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 7TH at 8:30 O'CLOCK, SUITE 601 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING, SEVENTH AVENUE AND SMITHFIELD STREET.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Dear Aunt Folle—

I was going to a party for my Sunday school associates in motion pictures and had saved some fruit juice for the punch. Imagine my embarrassment when we were all pinched for singing "Sweet Adeline."

EXTRA! MAURINE GUILTY

At Least She Feels That Way: Another Sweet Episode in Classic Opus of 1861.

The palatial La Folle residence, Moline, Illinois, where much of the action took place.

If you think hard you will recall that we left Maurine staggering after Helen Trevor had declared that Vivian Dagerfield "is mine, and mine alone!" Then she had asked Maurine for a kiss. Did Maurine kick Helen in the face? No, indeed.

"So hiding my heart's trouble with smile,
I leaned and kissed her dainty mouth; the while
I felt a guilt-joy*, as of some sweet sin,
When my lips fell where his so late had been.*
And all day long I bore about with me
A sense of shame—yet mixed with satisfaction,
As some starved child might steal a loaf, and be Sad with the guilt resulting from her action,
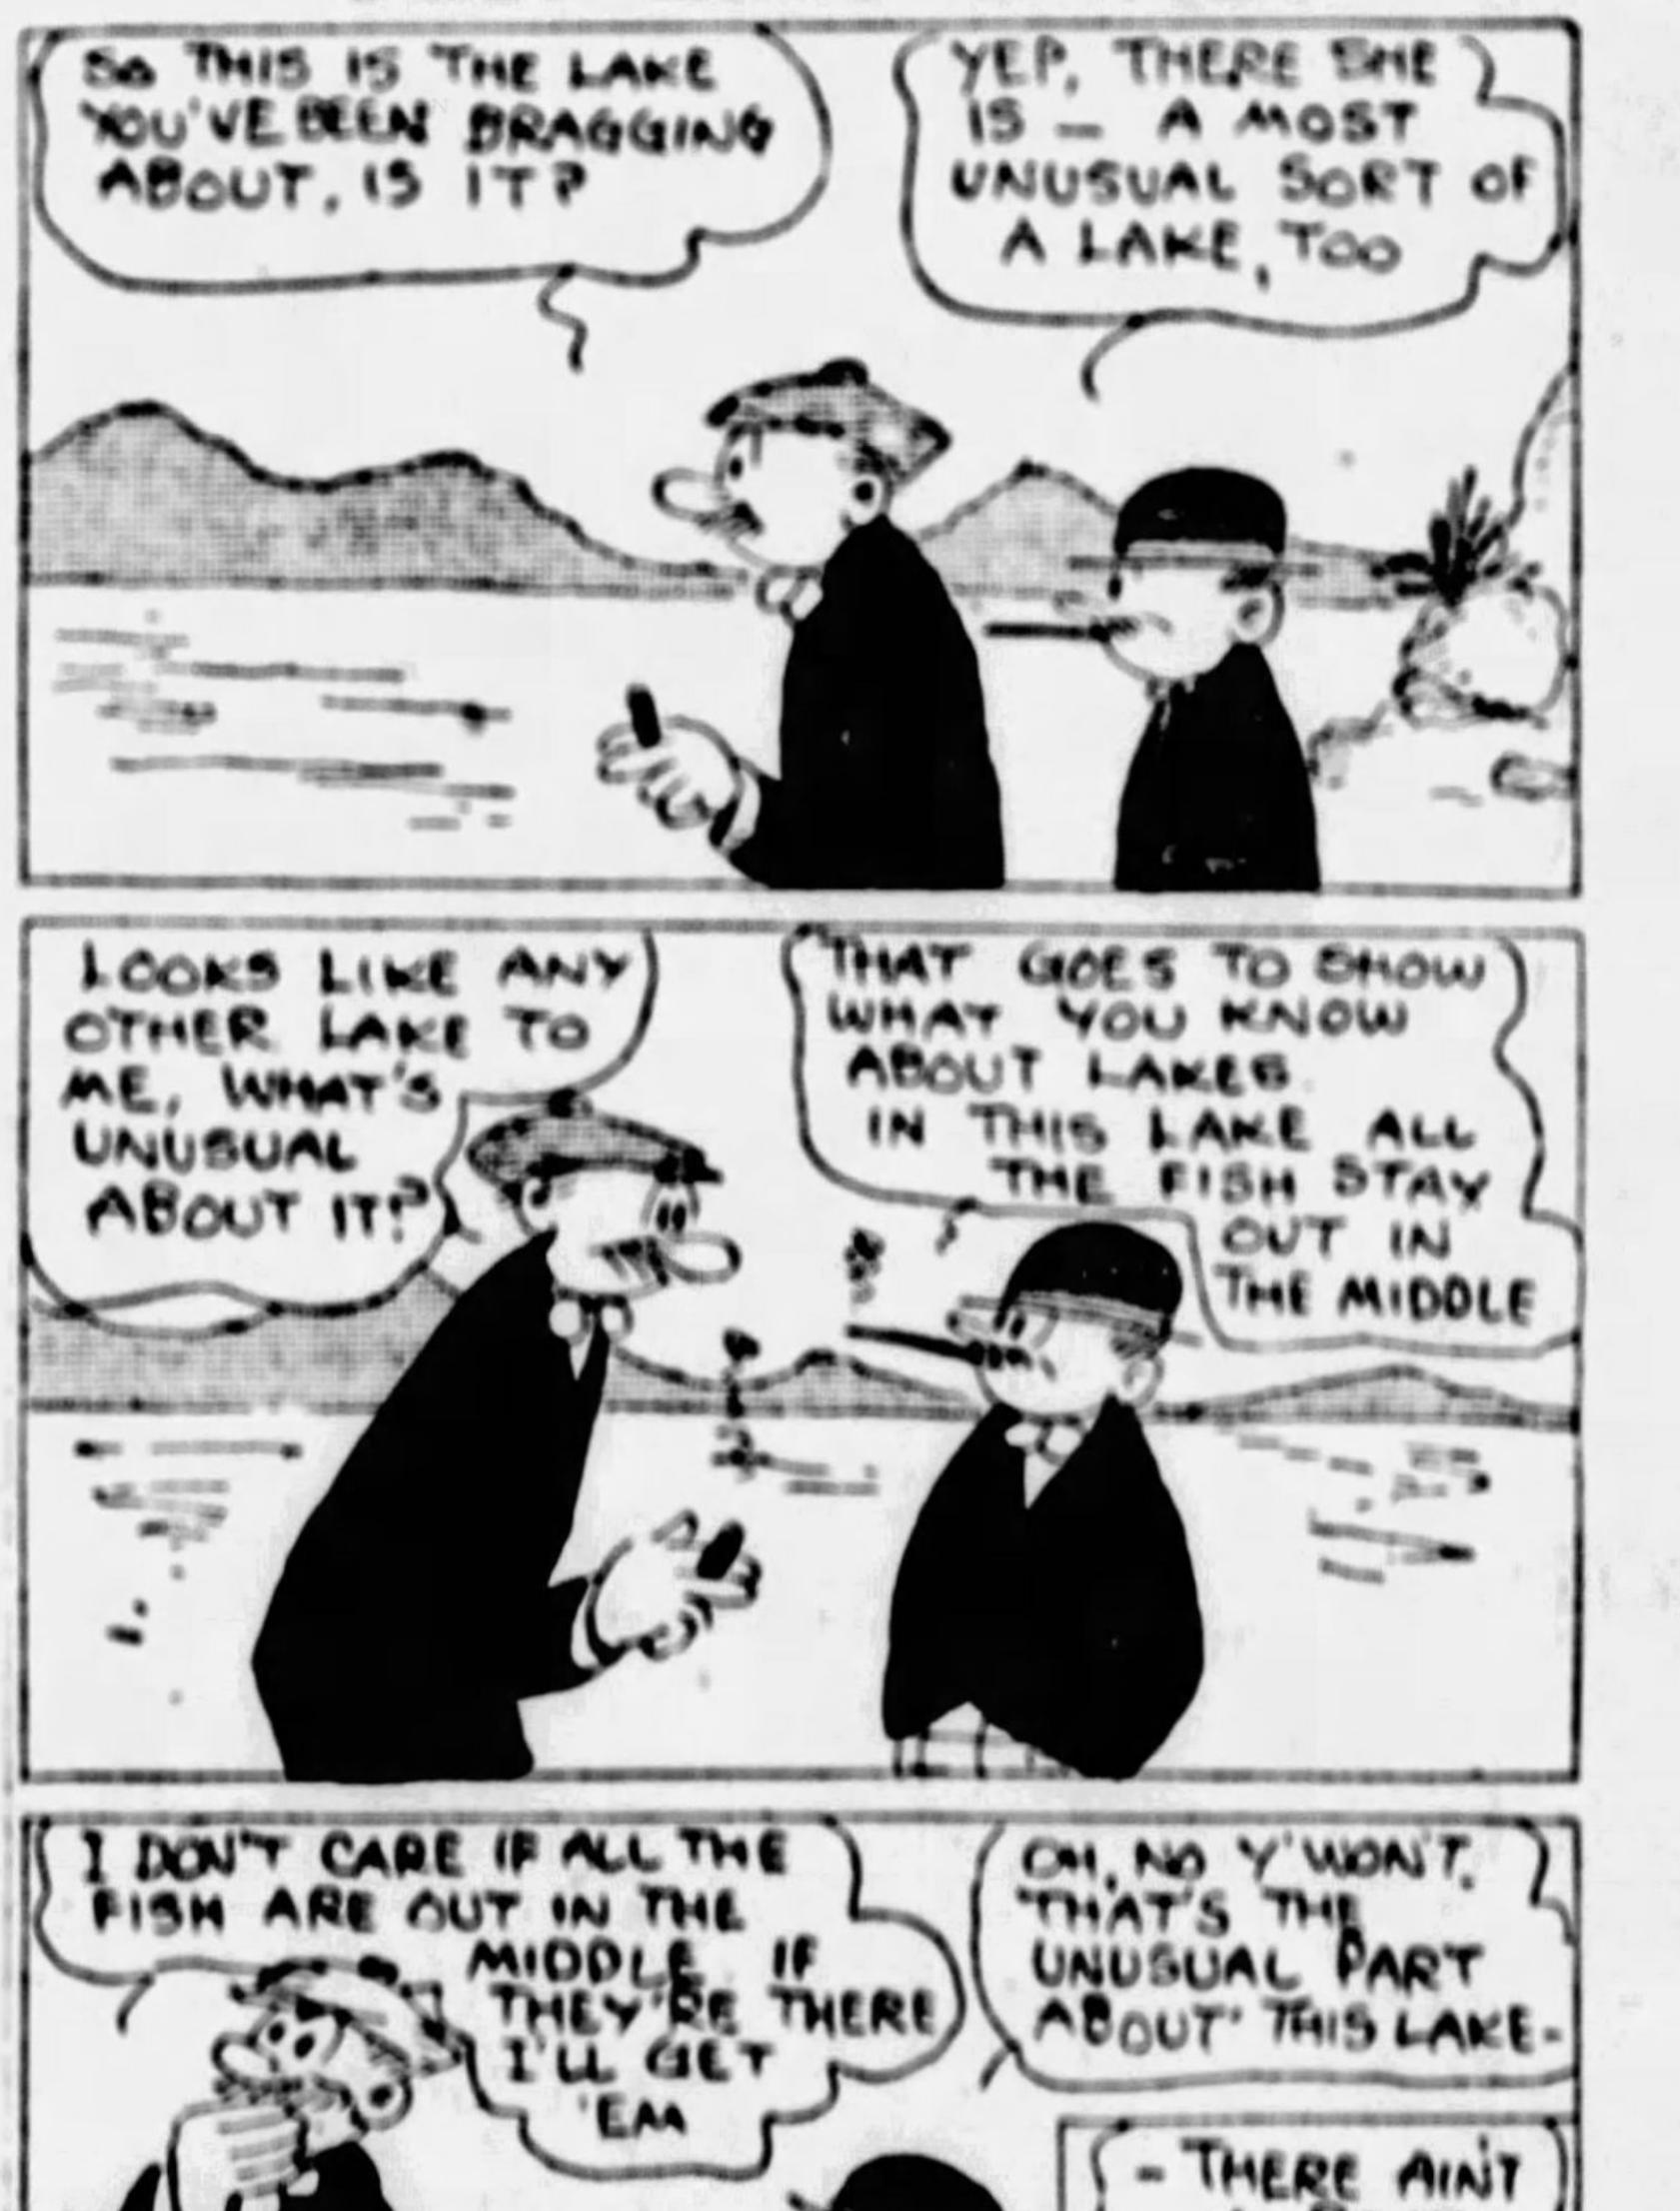
While yet the morsel in her mouth was sweet.*
That ev'ning when the house had settled down
To sleep and quiet, to my room there crept
A lithe young form—

What's this? What's this? Tomorrow we will see. We shall see.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Everybody be quiet. I want to play "Two Black Crows" on the phonograph.

Just Like a Man



SO THIS IS THE LAKE YOU'VE BEEN BRAGGING ABOUT, IS IT?

I DON'T CARE IF ALL THE FISH ARE OUT IN THE MIDDLE. IF THEY'RE THERE I'LL GET 'EM
OH, NO Y' WON'T, THAT'S THE UNUSUAL PART ABOUT THIS LAKE —
— THERE AIN'T A BOAT ON IT

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

HE shows Europe what's what.

The mayor of New York is stepping around Europe showing those foreign diplomats that a mayor doesn't have to have four chins and broken arches.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

There is no doubt that Mayor Walker is the best dressed executive.

We have plenty of well-dressed candidates for office. But after they inherit the nomination they seem to go to pieces, like a soda cracker in an aquarium.

They develop spare tires under the chin, grapefruit in the knees and eggitis of the vest.

Mayor Walker has always been a Bo Brummel. That wasn't so important 10 years ago. But now that women have the privilege of voting, they cast their ballots for the man with the most influential cravat.

They want no mayor whose record can be read on his vest.

Mayor Walker is making a good showing over in Europe, although some old mossbacks think that his hat is too collegiate.

But he represents America over there. The Prince of Wales represented England. But we have the edge on Britian, for Walker is too smart to get on a horse.

He was only stumped on one occasion. That was in Venice, where the question arose about strict attire for a gondola.

In order to be on the safe side, Mayor Walker wore a folding opera hat and water wings and carried a jaunty stepladder in place of his cane.

He won first prize for the best dressed couple of mayors. Which also is important, for he is top man for New York City. And New York is the largest town in the Democratic party.

Every mayor in every American town should be sent to Europe to look over Berlin, London, Venice and other municipal pools. Then they will appreciate their own towns better.

We have seen pictures of the mayor's tour, and he still retains his 100 per cent nobbiness. The creases in his trousers sparkle like spangles on a trapeze performer.

Which is one thing we cannot understand. It takes a European tailor two weeks to clean and press your clothes.

Jimmy has either got two pairs of trousers, or he must be carrying an electric flatiron with him.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "WHAT DO YOU THINK?"

MANY people have a real
TALENT for getting HURT. They seem to have CULTIVATED it,
Some take great PRIDE in it, and Quaintly misname it
"SENSITIVENESS."
We live in a HURRYING
World, so obviously
Everyone is LIABLE to Get PUSHED,
In which case one
SMILES, pushes harder,
Or takes oneself
OUT of the CROWD,
To stop in the SCRAMBLE of daily LIFE
And ARGUE about other People's bad manners seems RIDICULOUS. Get on,
Get over it, or GET
OUT. But don't clutter
Up the SIDEWALK,
PEOPLE with big THINGS in their HEADS and Hearts are not HURT by TRIFLES. LITTLE things
Hurt little people. In Life, nothing is bigger Than the SPACE we give
It in our THOUGHTS.

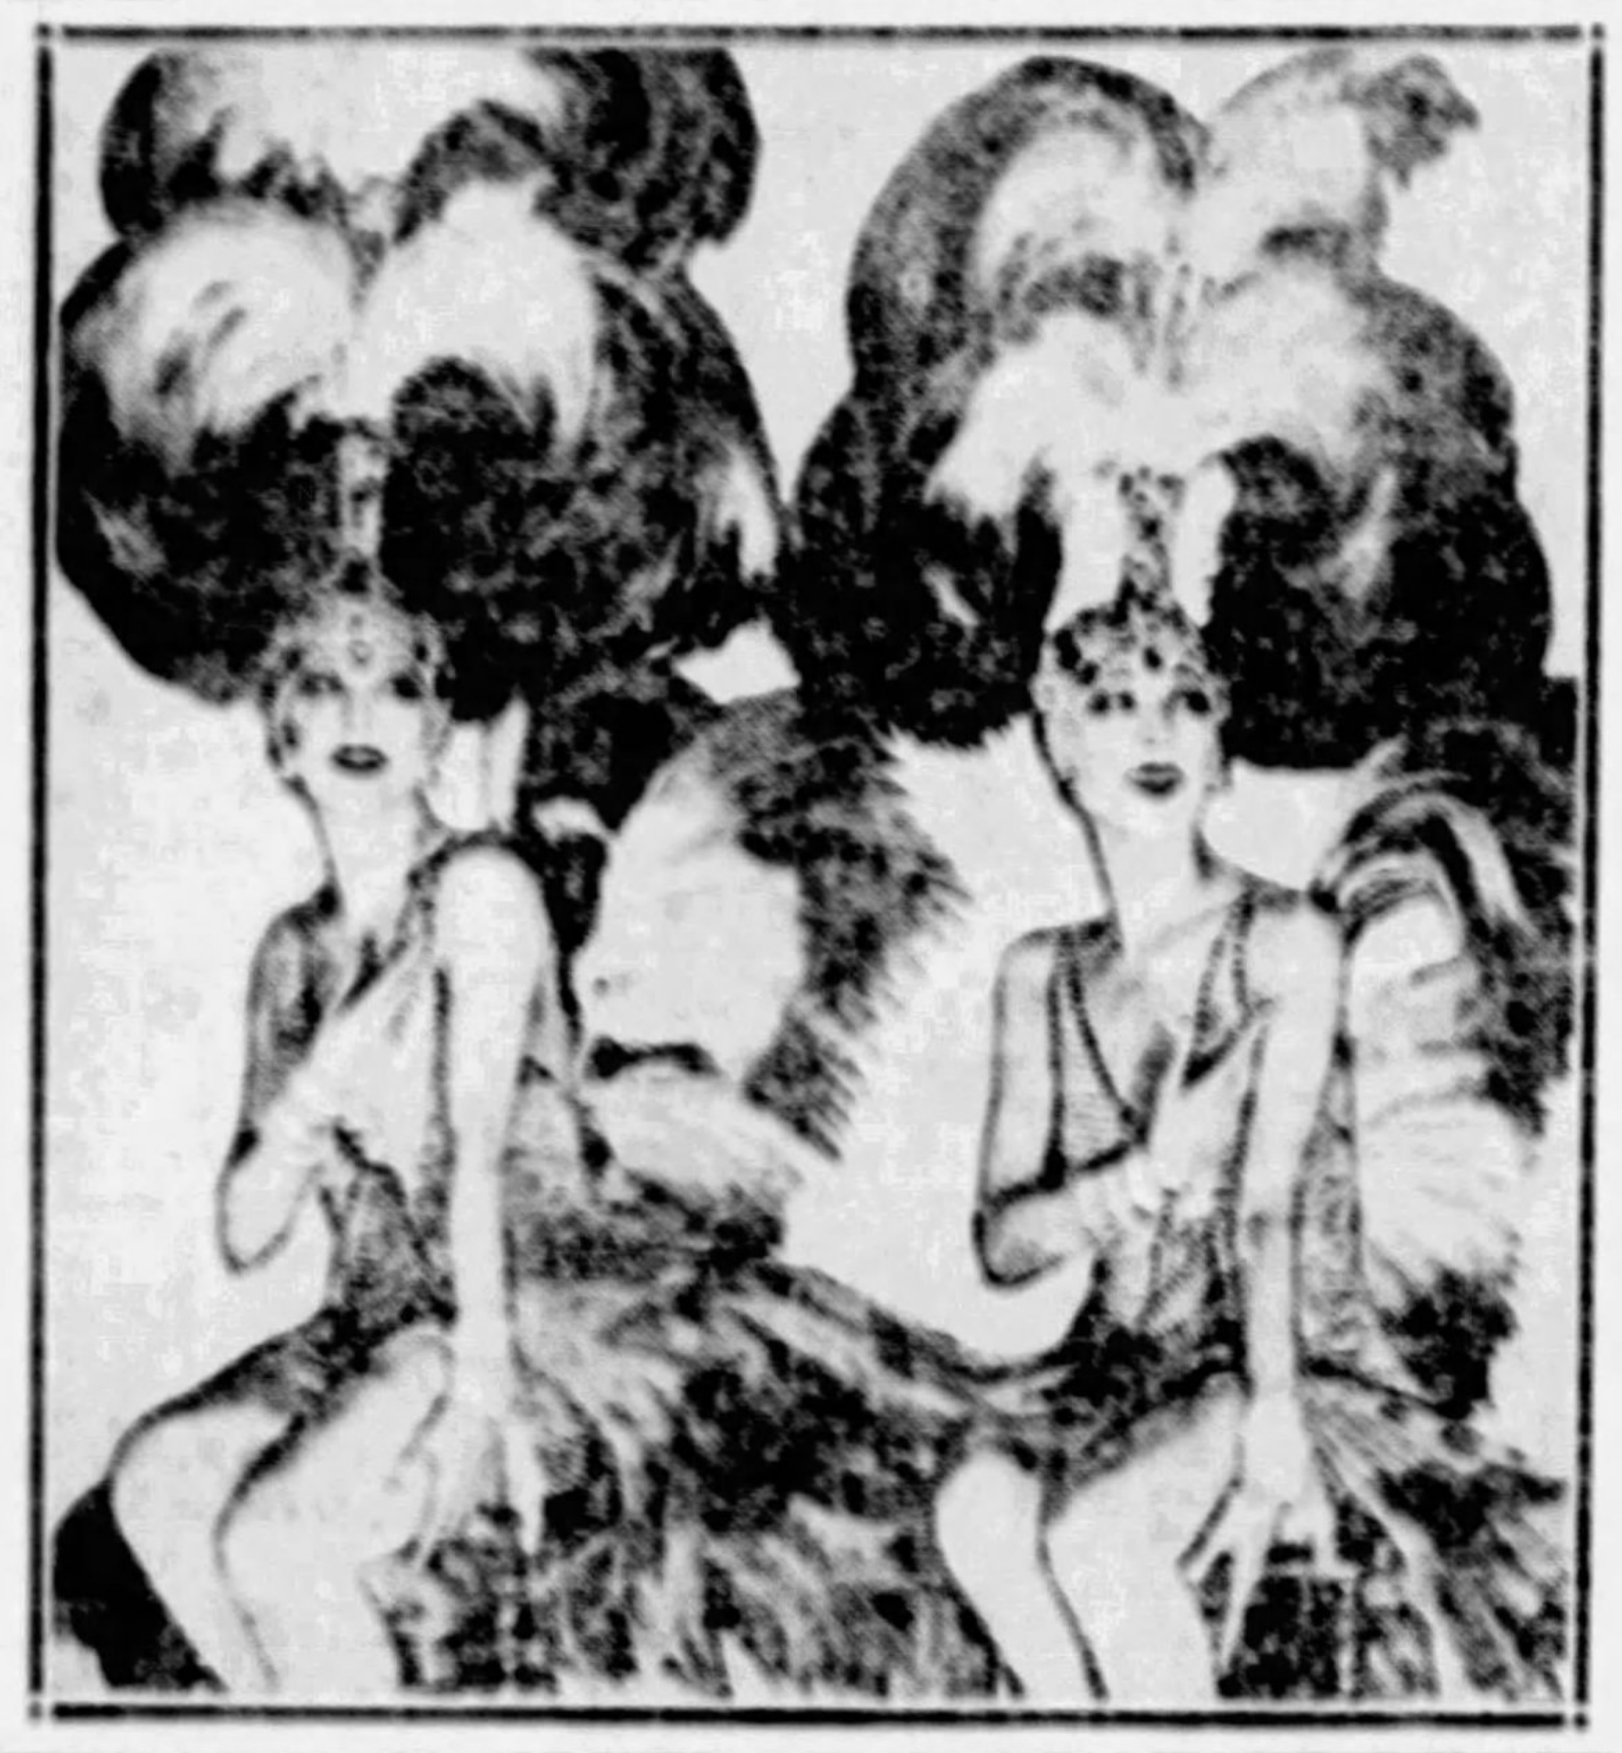
Fancy Costumes

More on Body, Less on Head, Might Look Better.



THE WELL KNOWN DOLLY SISTERS IN PARIS

You behold here two little sisters, said to be twins, known to the stage as the Dolly Sisters. These costumes they are wearing now on the stage in France are highly creditable to the imagination of French costume makers.

These talented young ladies are beautiful beyond doubt, their costumes are striking, to put it mildly. Some of the old fashioned will say that less on the head and more on the body would be an improvement.

In the old days when they were little girls on "the Sidewalks of New York," looking timidly at passers by, and wondering how they would make a living, they were probably more pleasing to the intelligent eye than they are in this elaborate dress—and undress.

However, they have been earning a living for themselves and those that depend on them. They do it ably. They know what the audience wants, namely, something it has NEVER SEEN BEFORE. So that is what the Dolly Sisters give them.

In case young female readers are thinking of going to fancy dress parties this winter, this picture many supply interesting suggestions. The Sun-Telegraph, however, offers this suggestion: CONSIDERABLY MORE SKIRT, EVEN IF THE SIZE OF THE HEADDRESS HAS TO BE SACRIFICED.

Schools Make Living Here Worth $1,000 a Year More

Pittsburgh's educational forces are prepared to resume the task of teaching not only the three "R's" but the higher branches of education as well. In the public and parochial institutions the school year begins with the passing of Labor Day.

Our facilities for instructing children and advanced students of collegiate age have long been a matter of pride to Pittsburgh residents. They are so extensive and so varied and so complete that we often are envied by those living in other cities, many of whom send their sons and daughters here to take up college courses.

How many have thought about how much it is worth just to live in Pittsburgh, if the educational factor is a consideration? One man with a son to educate, said $1,000 a year increase in salary would not tempt him to move away. A wage earner, he was able to send his boy to college here. If he had to bear the expense of sending him away from home elsewhere the cost would have been a bar in his case.

The same situation exists in many families. They are $1,000 a year or more richer because they live within trolley reach of such great institutions of learning as Pittsburgh boasts.

This year, too, we have an important addition to our cultural facilities. The new Catholic High School for Boys in Fifth avenue is equipped to care for 1,500 students. That means a great deal in the lives of a large number of persons. It means a great deal in shaping the lives of future citizens—future fathers—future captains of industry, perhaps, or leaders in other lines.

Loew Got To Ladder Top By Disregarding Blows

The late Marcus Loew was what folks like to call a "success." Moreover, he was a "self-made" man. He arose from the bottom to the top. He had to fight his way—every foot of it. If Fortune seemed to smile on him it was because Fortune had to.

In the beginning Fortune did not smile. All he received from the fickle dame was hard knocks—blows that felled him after he had got toe-holds on the ladder. He was not even allowed to begin to climb. Every time he put a foot on the first ladder rung he was stunned, but not crushed, by a blow that swept all his beginnings away as effectively as the tides level the sands of the shore.

He rode to the top on the wave of motion picture popularity. He SAW Opportunity and GRASPED it. All of us now see the opportunity that was present 20—15—10 years ago. He saw it when it came and that was why he became what folks call a success.

At the opening of the Aldine as a Loew unit, Mr. Loew visited Pittsburgh. He was asked [illegible] did not build a large theater in Pittsburgh—something t[illegible]mpare with the great modern houses. "Find me a plot of ground and I will do it," he replied. The inquisitor could not think of an available plot.

Mr. Loew more than fulfilled his promise. He found the ground upon which to build and he builded. There were difficulties in the way not dreamed of by the ordinary person who thinks that with money one can do anything. Mr. Loew surmounted these difficulties.

You see, he was what folks call a success.

Time to Tame Jungles

Students of geography, building on the report that Redfern's plane may have been forced down in the jungle, remind us that in the backland of British Guiana and in Central Brazil are two great areas which have never been explored by white men. Both lie along Redfern's intended route.

They are practically impenetrable by land, but aviation offers a n[illegible] approach. Whatever the fate of the missing flier—and h[illegible] for his safety persists—here is a challenge to exploration [illegible]h his daring renews.

The nerve which conquers and maps the polar wastes will [illegible]t long be content to let jungles flout man's mastery of nature.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

The First Writing

SEVERAL times last year I referred to the remarkable discoveries at a little place named Glozel, not far north of Vichy, in France, of prehistoric objects, believed to belong to the Neolithic age and marked with figures which seem to have been alphabetic characters. Many more of these have lately been found. They are engraved on both clay tablets and hard pebbles, and they exist in great abundance. The repetition of the same forms over and over again on different objects, and the limitation of the variety of shapes, strengthen the hypothesis that they really are of an alphabetic nature, and must have been designed to express and record thought conceived in some unknown language.

Apparent alphabetic signs engraved or painted on stones in Neolithic, or immediately succeeding, times have long been known, and these newly discovered ones at Glozel bear, in some cases, a striking resemblance to those before found elsewhere. If they are what they appear to be they throw back the invention of an alphabet, unknown thousands of years beyond the time of the Phoenicians, to whom it has long been customary to ascribe this most important advance.

A question, however, has arisen with regard to the date of the making of the objects found at Glozel. Some archaeologists and historians, led by Camille Jullian, the distinguished author of many works on the history of the ancient inhabitants of Gaul, insist that they are not of Neolithic but rather of Gallo-Roman origin, and consequently of relatively recent date. Others, including some of the leading archaeologists of Europe, maintain that they far antedate Celtic and Roman times, and belong at least to the later Stone Age.

The latest discovery at Glozel is that of two oval tombs, containing human remains and many funerary objects, such as vessels in clay, inscribed with animal figures, clay tablets covered with "alphabetic signs," a schist ring bearing an inscription, bone "harpoons," polished stone hatchets, a clay "idol" of his "bi-sexual type," etc. None of these objects, declare the discoverers, is of Gallo-Roman origin but all are Neolithic.

Of course no progress has yet been made in deciphering the precise meanings of the inscriptions left by these supposed first alphabet makers, but it would be inconsistent with the inquiring and speculative era in which we live, if no imaginary picture of the ancient life at Glozel had been drawn. Messrs. Morelet and Fraudin have made such a picture, in which pre-historic Glozel appears as the place of origin of the art of writing at least, if not of the very first alphabetical signs, and also the birthplace of the ceramic art in its funerary if not in its domestic character.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The longest lease in the City of London, if not in the world, is that on two buildings in Bury street? St. Mary Axe has just been sold for 10,000 years, on a yearly rental of $1,000. The usual period of a lease is 99 years, although a term of 999 years has been known.

At one time the ant was used by surgeons to bind the edges of a wound. When brought into contact with the wound the pugnacious creature closed its jaws, biting through the skin and joining the two edges?

A little girl, now aged 12, who was born without arms, has, by reason of the care shown to her at the Bethesda Home, Manchester, England, acquired the same dexterity with her feet as a normal person shows with hands, and is able to feed herself and write with her toes.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY.

Your Home

MOST persons have two periods in their lives when they are led.

First they are led by their parents, and later they allow their children to lead them.

Is your home dictated by the wishes of your boys and girls?

Have you reached the place where your children tell you what they will or will not do and demand that you do, or do not do, certain things they stipulate?

If this is a picture of your home, who is to blame?

Because you do not put forth the effort necessary to curb and control your children, you have allowed them to become overbearing.

You have permitted disobedience and it has resulted in arrogance on their part.

It may be a little late for you to assert yourself on their behalf, but it is better to start while they are living in your home.

Permitting them to lead you will destroy your peace of mind, and may result harmfully to both you and your children.

Knew His Wife

A WEALTHY business man who, incidentally, had insured his life for £10,000, went on a trip to South America.

Shortly after a report was published that the ship had sunk and there was no news of the safety of the man in question.

A week later, however, the brother of the missing man received a cable from Rio de Janeiro:

"Safe after all. Break news gently to wife."—London Answers.

COL. CRACKNELL got up from the barber's chair, tipped his man and walked swiftly out of the shop.

"Why do you call him colonel?" a man asked the barber. "As far as I know, there's not a soul in the place who ever does."

The barber was cornered. He really didn't know why he called the man colonel, but at last he had a bright idea.

"Well," he remarked suavely, "he once came in and bought a pair of military brushes."

Ye Towne Gossip

"Before the hunting expedition had been out for an hour a buck was sighted. The men let the boy (nine years of age) have the first shot. The youngster brought the deer down, the bullet breaking a foreleg. The happy boy then traveled homeward and prepared for a party staged in the afternoon."

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

To say a man is bound to believe is neither true nor sense. —Swift.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—New York is the greatest quick lunch town in the world. The hurry-up lunch room is to Manhattanese what the cafeteria is to Los Angelans or circular bars to Paris. They have in a way taken place of the old-time corner saloon as a meeting place.

Every lunch room has regulars just as did the old corner bar. It is not unusual to find six lunch rooms to a block, sometimes a dozen. It is the hasty serving of meals that gives them their quick names. Patrons often eat leisurely and linger.

Countermen in the Broadway section gain a following as did the old-time barkeep. He slips a patron an extra cup of coffee or a slice of pie "on the house." He is known as Joe, Billy or Jake, and most of his working life seems concentrated on buying a diamond stud on the installment plan.

Much Broadway slang is minted in the one-armed rookeries and two or four-a-day vaudevillians find zippy material hanging around them. Fortunes have been made in a few years by mushrooming a little hole in the wall into a chain of eateries.

For no particular reason a lunchroom will pop into sudden popularity and often to protect it from inroads of competition the proprietor will open other places in the neighborhood sub rosa. On upper Broadway, for instance, is a Hanover. A few doors away is the Revonah, the name backwards, under the same management.

Lunch rooms offer varied ideas in decoration. There are those white-tiled sanitized places, the heavy mahogany spots with windows filled with Danish pastry, the sandwich bars with pink spiced hams and huge roasts and white-capped slicers.

And the glorified delicatessen places—like Reuben's—with gold braided carriage starters out front.

There is a class of middle-aged retired men in New York known as "Board Room Men." From 10 a. m. until the Exchange puts up the shutters they are found in board rooms of brokerage offices. They are not heavy gamblers and consequently their winnings and losings are not large. They are singularly crisp and aloof—rarely accepting tips or giving them.

Dave Stamper, a gifted composer, and Edna Leedom, an equally gifted comedienne, could not find congenial companionship in marriage, but they did in divorce. Their marriage went on the rocks and each went to a separate apartment. Mr. Stamper began writing music for a play for his erstwhile wife. They visit cafes and theaters together and along Broadway they are known as "pals." Wilson Mizner used to say: "Many men have lost their best friends by marrying them."

* * *

There is another New Yorker who once dabbled in theatricals. He married twice and from each wife has been divorced. Now all three are warm friends. When he takes one out to dinner or the play he usually takes the other. None has married and strangely enough he is paying alimony to each. Just an alimony glutton.

* * *

Too, there are many of those club husbands in the metropolis. Mostly they have married in the winter of life and arranged not to give up the ease of bachelordom. They live at clubs and their wives are established in their own apartments. Several times a week they have dinner and see a play together and to all appearances are content.

* * *

One husband has his own apartment on the floor below that of his wife in a big Park avenue apartment house. Neither calls on the other without being announced. Formal, what! I am told they discuss money matters only through their banker. Incidentally, "the dew is still on the rose" in Fannie Hurst's separate menage marriage. It has proved a success.

The Visiting Nurse

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is proposed to inaugurate a Visiting Nurse Service Week.

We have all sorts of days from Christmas and Fourth of July to Mothers' and Fathers' Day. But there is no more pressing need than to have some time set apart when we should all help along with the visiting nurse.

The immediate problem of almost every family in the world is their health. The need for health underlies all other things. The nurse is simply an expert in the laws of health.

In so many cases we are prey to all kinds of ignorance and superstition, especially in regard to health. We are led astray by numerous advertisements on nostrums and cure-alls. Dependence upon these imperils the health of many a family.

The nurse is trained in the established rules of health and disseminates information about these rules. We are not always able to secure a physician, and doctors are often extremely busy or too high priced for our means. Many a family who cannot get the services of a doctor is reassured and comforted by the presence of the nurse. Her sure and self-possessed manner is helpful to all of the family. It comforts the mother to know that her child is properly attended to. She does the best she can but is limited by her lack of knowledge.

Who can tell how much health and joy has been disseminated by these visitants in their daily rounds. Their business is to bring comfort and assistance to all. Without respect to creed or nationality they take care of all who are human beings and perhaps the visiting nurse is the finest example of the true Christian spirit. She helps to heal in accordance with the laws of nature and there is no finer business in which one can be engaged. Neither is there a better way for one disposed to help humanity than to contribute to their support. They have an open door to all distressed and all are pleased to see them come. They are the true ministering angels to tormented humanity.

Whatever your creed or whatever may be the color of your mind, you safely join in the spirit of this institution.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Red Flowers

RED flowers glowing in a vase, how brave, how bright their bloom! What wealth of loveliness they lend to all the shadowed room! Red flowers that flaunt their beauty here against the somber walls, till, like trumpet, bold and clear unto the soul it calls. Such beauty blossoms in a life, sometimes, that else is dark, and through the clouds and shadows there it sends its deathless spark. Men find it in a look, a laugh, some trifle few would prize, and yet it burns away earth's chaff, lights paths to Paradise. Such beauty comes to you, to me to gladden all our days, and yet, despite its marvels rare, it blooms in common ways. For hearts are brave, and need not much to banish doubt and gloom; only, perhaps, a song, a touch, red flowers in a room!

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

EDISON PHONO
Every Edison Phonograph bears my signature; without it no machine is genuine
Thomas A Edison
Kuchenmeister

IT WAS inevitable that the phonograph should find its way into the "nickelodeons" and other public places of entertainment. For this purpose the nickel-in-the-slot machine was devised and many a song hit of the day owed its popularity to the publicity it received in that way.

FEW of us realize the many and varied forms through which the phonograph went to reach its present state. One of the curious, but little known, was the two-horn speaker type. For exhibition purposes and concert work the sound could be thrown two ways at once.

EXERCISING great ingenuity Edison, in 1900, succeeded in making a real phonograph to sell at the unheard-of price of $10. This was his "Gem" with a clock-key winder and wax cylinder. The making of this machine was discontinued, however, a number of years ago.

CLOSELY associated with the wax-cylinder days of the "talking-machine" were the two trade-marks shown above, one entitled "The Phonograph," the other, "Looking for the Band." Both have been discarded. They have been replaced by Edison's portrait. (Continued Tomorrow.)
